BOILING radiators were common sight today in local service stations. Operator Jack Hawkins warms up in the steam coming from Mrs. H. De Beck's car. Many drivers had too little anti-freeze.

STEAM rose like mist from Greater Victoria harbors this morning, sending sea watchers scurrying to telephones. The water was warmer than the air. But there was no sign of anyone swimming.

MEMO TO PROBE

Denis Denied Bribe Attempt Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified today that there was an undetermined sum of money to be paid to the Liberal party in addition to the $20,000 he says he was offered by a ministerial assistant as a bribe.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in a memo read to the Dorion judicial inquiry today that he was informed Sept. 2 of allegations of bribery against Raymond Denis and that the former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay had denied them.

The memo also said that Justice Minister Favreau had informed the prime minister at the same time that the RCMP was investigating.

Mr. Pearson was quoted as saying in the memo that Mr. Denis was immediately sent on leave while the investigation was taking place and that the prime minister was content to await the result of the RCMP investigation.

The prime minister's memo was read before the inquiry by Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government.

He said it was a copy of a statement Mr. Pearson had been unable to make in the Commons before the inquiry opened because of the procedural situation.

Mr. Deschenes said the memo was attached to a letter from Mr. Pearson to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion who was appointed by the federal cabinet to inquire into allegations of bribery and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers.

HEARD STORY NOV. 23

The memo said that on the evening of Nov. 23 and the morning of Nov. 24 Mr. Pearson first learned of the details of the allegations and of the RCMP reports.

It said that as Mr. Pearson had told the Commons Nov. 24, he had not known until then of the involvement of his parliamentary secretary, Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard, in the Rivard affair.

Mr. Rouleau resigned as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, saying in the Commons that he had made representations in connection with an application for bail for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, whose extradition from Canada is being sought by the United States government.

Rivard is wanted by U.S. authorities on narcotics smuggling charges.

Mr. Pearson's memo noted that Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary North, had asked him in the Commons on Nov. 24 as to when the prime minister first heard of the allegations aginst Denis.

The memo said his answer at that time to Mr. Harkness "should be clarified." He had first learned of the content of the RCMP reports shortly before the justice department estimates came up for debate in the Commons on Nov. 23.

However, Mr. Favreau had informed him on Sept. 2 of the allegations, the denial and that the RCMP were investigating.

Earlier, Mr. Lamontagne testified that he rejected immediately $20,000 offered him by Denis.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was slightly surprised but not shocked at the offer. He interpreted it as an offer not to oppose bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government in the case. The U.S. wants Rivard extradited to face narcotics smuggling charges under an indictment which links his name with the Mafia international crime syndicate.

As the hearing went into its second day, there were these developments:

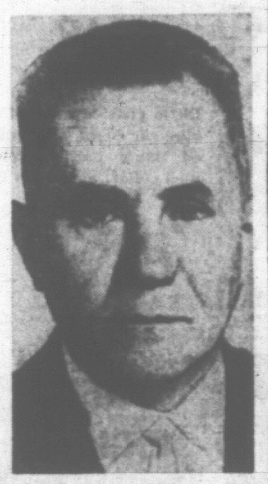

RULES OUT EFFORTS

1. Chief Justice Dorion ruled against efforts to find out source of information placed on the Commons record by Erik Nielsen, MP for Yukon, which sparked the appointment of the judicial inquiry.

2. The judge also ruled that counsel for the four opposition political parties — Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats,

New Soviet Premier Will Go to London

KOSYGIN
... to see Wilson

LONDON (UPI) — Alexei Kosygin, the new Soviet premier, will travel to London "in the new year" for talks with Britain's Labor government, Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced today.

The visit was expected to be Kosygin's first abroad since he took over from ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev Oct. 15 — the same day Wilson's Labor party was elected to power.

Wilson said Kosygin also was "anxious" for him to go to Moscow.

The Prime Minister, who talked with President Johnson in Washington last week in his first trip abroad since his election, also announced new journeys in his stated campaign to become a welder of western and world unity.

After his scheduled meeting with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard in Bonn Jan. 22, he said, he would be making trips to Paris and Rome for talks with government leaders there.

Alberta Storm Leaves 5 Dead, Moves to Sask.

By The Canadian Press

One of the worst prairie blizzards in history continued to batter parts of southern Saskatchewan today after dealing a savage blow to Alberta.

At least five deaths were attributed to the storm in Alberta.

One man died of exposure, three men died from apparent heart attacks and another man burned to death in a shack Tuesday near St. Albert, Alta., in a fire believed to have started near a heater.

Four men reported missing at midnight Monday on a 22-mile car trip to Alliance in central Alberta turned up safely at a farm house.

The storm centred today at Swift Current in southern Saskatchewan where temperatures dipped to 30 below and winds hit 70 miles an hour.

Alberta reported similar conditions Tuesday but the winds eased today. Temperatures remained far below zero.

Schools closed, travel was cut to essentials and the public was warned to stay home.

A Calgary hospital official warned residents not to walk more than four blocks in the storm.

Clem Trimming, 80, of the Red Deer district was found dead in his shack after his wood-burning stove went out. Police said the inside temperature matched the outside reading—30 below.

Edmoniton postmen were told not to complete their afternoon deliveries Tuesday and a Calgary milk company official said some of his drivers were still trying to complete their calls at midnight.

Some areas in Southern Alberta reported electrical failures Tuesday and as the brunt of the storm struck Saskatchewan, the southwestern part of the province was plunged into darkness when two power lines touched, causing a short circuit.

Weather officials said the combination of strong wind and extremely cold temperatures made the blizzard one of the worst in history. A wind chill of 105 degrees below zero was reported at Moose Jaw by RCAF weather officials.

Cold Wave Increases Flood Fear

FAIRBANKS (AP) — Alaska remained in the grip Tuesday of a massive cold wave that sent temperatures to 60 degrees below zero, endangered two areas with flooding from ice-choked rivers and froze the usually moderate Alaska Panhandle.

Fort Yukon and the Cooper River Valley recorded 60-below temperatures Monday night, as did Dawson in the Yukon Territory.

On the Kenai Peninsula, the Kenai River was jammed with ice for seven miles from below Soldotna to the town of Kenai. Six families were evacuated during the weekend.

12 Die In U.K. Fog Accidents

LONDON (Reuters) — At least 12 persons were reported dead in Britain today after a wave of automobile accidents Tuesday night brought on by dense freezing fog and icy roads.

A blanket of fog spread to nearly all parts of the country and plummeting temperatures threatened to turn flood-stricken areas of Wales and the West of England into icebound islands.

Early today, police closed off the M-1 motorway linking London and Birmingham after an accordion pile-up of 70 cars and trucks in which one man was killed.

On the M-6 motorway two persons were killed and nine were injured when 20 vehicles collided in fog and ice.

Big Snowstorm Hits North U.S.

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A mammoth snowstorm packing deadly winds churned through the northern United States today, driving temperatures far below zero in some areas and closing schools and roads.

The powerful storm, described by the weather bureau as almost unprecedented for late autumn, covered the entire northwestern quarter of the U.S.

A weather bureau meteorologist in Helena said "venturing out of doors is considered dan-

Coldest Ever For December

By PETE LOUDON

A freezing north wind brought snow and record-shattering temperatures to Greater Victoria Tuesday night . . . and there's more snow threatening.

It was the coldest night ever recorded in December.

And the mercury nudged the all-time low of 6.4 degrees registered Jan. 13, 1950.

Our overnight low: 6.9 degrees.

The weather stunned Victoria and before the community was fully recovered, weatherman Bill Mackie said:

"The next weather system heading south from Alaska could bring an appreciable amount of snow by tomorrow—and I do mean snow."

He said it will be clear tonight with the odd cloud and the occasional snow flurry, but the potential for early Thursday is snow. Low tonight 15 (a bit higher), Thursday 25.

It was snowing at Sooke before noon.

The 40-mile north wind that hit Victoria late Tuesday left the city gasping.

- Hundreds of residents found water pipes frozen today.
- Hundreds of cars were weather-bound.
- Power was disrupted in some areas, ferries were rocked, a radio station was put off the air, small boats were harbor-locked.

Other Stories, Pictures On Pages 13, 14

Police and fire departments and city and district road crews worked overtime with weather problems and warnings went out against fire and collision dangers. But through it all, the loss in accidents was small.

There was only three-tenths of an inch of snow but it made roads glassy.

Mrs. Irene Evans, 2715 Maddison, and her son Robert went to hospital after their car shot over a 20-foot embankment on Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum.

There were tie-ups at most main intersections as drivers slid and skidded homeward from work. All police departments today reported abandoned cars. There were only about a dozen collisions reported however.

Chimney fires were numerous, there were two house fires in Central Saanich this morning and a small fire today at B.C. Forest Products in Victoria.

But the biggest trouble and the biggest fire threat came from frozen pipes and domestic attempts to thaw them.

Three city plumbers said they had a total of 72 calls early today.

"As fast as we thaw them, they're freezing again," said Shade Brothers.

MOTHERS, CHILDREN ANSWER PLEA

Donations Ease Agony of Parents

By MARGE GILROY

A mother of seven, a mother of four, and a grandmother of six are among the recent contributors who have helped to boost the "Help The Hungry Child" fund past last year's total at this time.

Total today is $6,658.71.

In a sense these contributors represent all mothers who realize the agony parents in other countries must feel when they are not able to place a bowl of food on the table.

But it is not only a mother who can respond to the call of a hungry child. It is sometimes another child.

Recently when a four-year-old boy saw another boy on television crying because he was hungry, he took the jar of pennies he had been saving for a toy tractor and asked his mother to give them to the hungry boy.

Another $1.55 came from Pam Wills and Susan Trythall who used the potato masher to grind up flower petals to make perfume, which they sold in the neighborhood.

Viki and Cheryl Barber, Jacqueline LaRoy and Brenda Gordon formed a theatre club and performed in the base-

PC Senator Bids to Block Endorsation of Leaf Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—A fresh flood of flag talk welled up in Parliament Tuesday, highlighted by a move in the Senate to kill off the yet-unborn red maple leaf flag.

In the Commons another hassle developed over a special committee's report recommending that the Union Jack be designated as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and membership in the Commonwealth.

Both Houses were headed for more of the same today.

Tuesday's events were an anti-climax, however, to Monday night's roaring wind-up of the Commons main flag debate in which a closure-imposed vote adopted the maple leaf flag, 163 to 78, after 33 days of bitter argument.

The chosen design is a single red leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

But it requires Senate endorsation and a proclamation by the Queen before it can fly over the nation.

A bid to deny that endorsation was made by Senator Grattan O'Leary of Ottawa who moved that the government suspend action on the maple leaf

MEMBER PUTS PUNCH INTO FLAG ARGUMENT

OTTAWA (UPI)—A Liberal MP and a Conservative MP tangled briefly in the corridor outside the Commons following Tuesday morning's hectic windup to the national flag debate, it was disclosed today.

Eye-witnesses said at least one punch was thrown before the pair were separated by onlookers. The two MPs were identified as James Byrne (L—Kootenay-East) and A. D. Alkenbrack (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox).

Both men played down the clash, although neither denied it.

HEALTH BOARD

Storm Brews Over Money

By AB KENT

First squall in a larger storm looming over Metro Health was felt at a board meeting Tuesday when Victoria balked at technicalities involving new program expenditures.

The conflict broke when Victoria delegate Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson objected to a $300 item that will pay expenses for a Vancouver-based audiologist who will come here to help pre-school hard of hearing youngsters.

"I have strict instructions from my council not to approve any money expenditure not provided for in the budget until we get a new agreement," Ald Wilson said.

Trouble continued with discussion of the next item on the agenda, the appointment of a pediatrician, for which an interview had been scheduled today.

Again, Mrs. Wilson objected to the engagement until city council had a chance to approve the salary range.

NO LEGAL STATUS

Mrs. Wilson was accompanied at the meeting by city manager Dennis Young, who said the health board really had no legal status to make such decisions and it was up to the councils to approve cost items.

At one point the air became frosty as Mr. Young expressed a difference of opinion with Metro Health senior officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Board chairman Reeve R. Gordon Lee, of Central Saanich, cut in to remind Mr. Young he was present as an observer only, and that his remarks must be directed through the chairman.

Mr. Young apologized and said he hadn't suggested Dr. Whitbread had acted improperly.

CLARIFICATION

Reeve Lee remarked at the end of the meeting that as a result of it "we may obtain certain clarification of problems and cost administration. The meeting has not been entirely protractive without some good coming of it."

"If we had a proper basis we wouldn't have these bothers," Ald. Wilson said.

The chairman said the matter would be reviewed before the next meeting.

The city wants Metro Health to be set up on properly constituted lines permitting each area represented to control cost items.

Mr. Young said the city balked Tuesday to try to force realization that there is no proper constitution.

He had commented that expenditure of money as proposed from an annual bequest would not likely be approved by city council if the service was to be provided in the entire Metro Health area.

This referred to the audiologist, which Dr. Whitbread wants to start in January or February as part of program being initiated throughout B.C.

JANUARY START

It was agreed to start the service in January and include the cost in the 1965 budget.

Mr. Young said the city's concern was for use of staff paid by Victoria without having control over their use by the health service.

Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, together with the provincial government, pay most of Metro Health costs.

Mrs. Wilson said the city would vote against the salary range for a pediatrician if it were not included in the 1965 budget. Reeve Lee said this would circumscribe the medical health officers.

"Yes it would," Mrs. Wilson said.

Mr. Lee wondered whether it was not enough that the city had a member on the board when the salary scale was approved by it in September.

"No," Mrs. Wilson said. "It's the three municipalities that have to approve."

"What are we here for if not to send back information from the board? Is it up to the chairman?" asked school district 63 representative Mrs. J. M. Thomas.

"I simply cannot be expected to send back all the details we deal with here," Mrs. Wilson replied.

ADVISORY BODY

"The board is no more than an advisory body without legal constitution," Mr. Young said.

"It is only an agreement—unsigned—between the municipalities and the provincial government and its employees are employed by either the city or the board.

"When employee salaries change . . . the city should have the opportunity to say yea or nay.

"A properly constituted Metro Board of Health could be established. Meanwhile, we go through these rather embarrassing procedures."

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, school district 61 chairman, said Oak Bay, the city and Esquimalt should be informed of the proposed salary range and meanwhile the interview be postponed. The board agreed.

gerous unless a person is thoroughly prepared."

A van carrying nine prisoners from the county jail in Seattle, Wash., to a reformatory tipped over on a snowy highway, but officials took no chances — a tow truck righted the vehicle with the prisoners still inside.

Schools were closed in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Washington states.

Visibility was cut to zero in blowing snow in some areas.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for Montana, Wyoming and North and South Dakota.

DUST BLOWS

Huge clouds of dust floated over the plains of Kansas and Colorado.

Residents in Bear Valley, southeast of Denver, reported up to four inches of dirt accumulation. The Colorado department of agriculture said the winter wheat crop was hit hard. It also reported a shortage of cattle forage.

Destructive winds accompanied by bitter cold belted Washington state, closing schools to an estimated 10,000 pupils. Snow falls ranged from one to 12 inche .

BALCER NOT INVITED TO CAUCUS

OTTAWA (CP)—Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Conservative party, said today he and other Quebec Conservative MPs received no invitations to a special party caucus Tuesday to discuss further strategy on the flag.

"I didn't know about the caucus until after it was over and it is a fact that we did not have any invitations," Mr. Balcer said. "That's all we can say, at the moment."

Eric Winkler, party whip, said that notices of the caucus meeting went to the offices of all Conservative MPs without exception and that his office early today had confirmed receipt of the notices.

Canadian Beauty Unpopular in U.K.

MARY LOU . . . fuss over Queen

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Mary Lou Farrell of St. John's, Miss Dominion of Canada for 1964, says she was the most unpopular contestant in the Miss World contest in London because of controversy over the Queen's visit to Canada.

Miss Farrell said she was shunned by the press and photographers excluded her from pictures.

"They would pick out so many girls to pose," she said. "When I told them I was Miss Canada, they would take me out and put another girl in."

She said one reporter told her he was leaving her out because "you didn't want our Queen in your country."

Miss Farrell was eliminated in the first round of the contest in London. She will be a participant in the Miss United Nations contest to be held in Spain in May and the Miss International contest in June.

Gov't. Non-Committal On UBCM Requests

The Union of B.C. Municipalities, Tuesday made a strong pitch for higher provincial grants in lieu of taxes and extension of grants to university buildings.

But UBCM president Reeve Peter Jenewein of Maple Ridge said the provincial cabinet was non-committal.

The request was among eight made by the UBCM executive at its annual meeting with government ministers.

It said the present 15-mill payment on a severely restricted number of provincial holdings in various municipalities—which produces $500,000 in civic revenues including slightly more than $90,000 to Victoria—was unrealistic.

The brief urged the government to increase the 15-mill grants—which would significantly help Victoria—or at least reduce the number of exempt properties such as universities—which would help Oak Bay and Saanich.

"A university, unlike public school buildings, served the province as a whole and not just the municipality in which by chance it is situated," the brief pointed out.

The civic leaders also pointed out that federal grants in lieu of property taxes on its holdings are more generous than those of the province.

Other points raised by the brief—all of them resolutions adopted at the annual UBCM convention in September — sought:

A procedure permitting the UBCM executive to discuss draft legislation affecting municipalities before it is brought to the legislature; legislation permitting commercial sports and entertainment on Sunday afternoons on a local option basis; establishment of an ambulance service by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service;

Elimination of the present tax exemption for Pacific Great Eastern railway trackage; establishment of a research staff on air pollution and tighter control of potential offendors; establishment of provincial chronic hospitals; and exemption of municipal purchases from the provincial sales tax.

Green Belt Resolution Supported

Ae resolution designed to prevent Saanich Peninsula becoming one huge subdivision was passed unanimously Monday at a public meeting of the local branch of the Community Planning Association.

The resolution urges provincial and municipal governments to halt the conversion of farm, recreational and parkland to other uses.

It also asks removal of school taxes from farmland. The farmer should be taxed only on his house and land until another base for education tax is found.

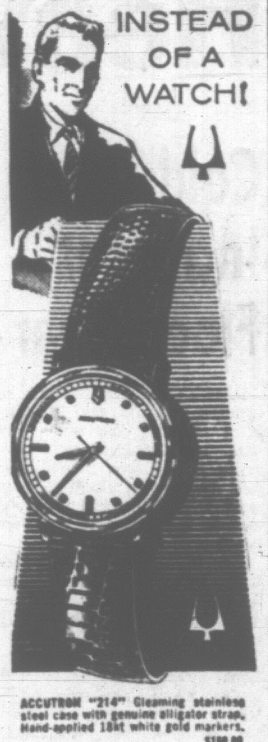

Moderator Hugh Stephen said the district has 163,000 residents on 81,000 acres. The population is expected to increase to 250,000 by 1981.

District agriculturalist Alan Littler said the only real solution is to make farming so attractive people will stay on the land.

'SUGGESTION'

NATO Studies Nuclear Mines In W. Germany

By HAROLD MORRISON

PARIS (CP)—West Germany today raised what NATO spokesmen described as "vague peripheral suggestion" that atomic land mines sown along the West German border might increase the deterrent against attack from the east.

The spokesman said German Defence Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel touched on this idea only briefly as the defence ministers of the 15-country western alliance shifted discussion to military aspects of NATO.

The land mines suggestion appeared to be extremely sensitive and German officials urged reporters to pay little attention to it. It had been circulated in the German press as just one of a number of German ideas for some time, they said.

It also had been raised in various western military committees and had been given virtually no support from the other major powers, they added.

Officials said the nuclear mines concerned would be American and would remain under U.S. control. They would be intended to act as a nuclear "tripwire" to deter a Communist attack without involving strategic retaliation.

The sources made it clear the mines would not go off automatically if troops moved into the area, but would have to be exploded by defenders and would have elaborate safety devices.

The sources called them the "lowest echelon of the graduated deterrent."

German sources said the idea for placing the nuclear mines on the border originated in Washington.

U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and British Defence Minister Denis Healey were among the morning speakers. A Canadian spokesman said McNamara underscored the estimated huge numbers who would die if a nuclear attack was launched against Europe.

The spokesman said both McNamara and Healey gave strong support to the argument, which Canada also advances, that NATO should take up again the necessity of making a thorough review of NATO military strategy.

A NATO committee had been instructed, as a result of the alliance conference at Ottawa last year, to undertake this massive review but apparently progress had lagged partly because of lack of French enthusiasm.

The Canadian spokesman said French Defence Minister Pierre Messmer argued that NATO strategy exists and that a review looking to future revisions is unnecessary.

However, the spokesman added that in view of the statements of Britain and the U.S., there likely would be strong support to reopen the review. Canada believes this is essential to consider whether the strategy is adequate in view of a changing world situation.

Five NATO countries have decided to move ahead in the meantime with consideration of a nuclear multilateral force despite the blunt charge by France that such a force would be either a sham or would lead to proliferation of nuclear weapons.

After meeting briefly outside the NATO ministerial conference Tuesday night, the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, West Germany, the Netherlands and Italy agreed to hold a meeting of deputy ministers next month to consider further action on various NATO nuclear force plans.

Earlier in the day, External Affairs Minister Martin urged the foreign ministers of the 15-country alliance to keep nuclear discussions within the NATO framework. Otherwise, he said, separate bargaining might lead to a separate organization that one day might become a rival of NATO itself.

Martin told a press conference later he believed he succeeded in getting his point across, and that there would be a great deal of care and lengthy discussions before any final decision is reached. He was sure that NATO members were so responsible that they would not take a step that could disrupt and disunite the alliance.

But as Martin spoke, there were indications the nuclear cleavage within NATO had not been overcome. An American spokesman said the brief outside meeting which lasted about 10 minutes was open to attendance by all NATO members though only five countries decided to attend.

Martin said, however, he had not received any invitation and a French spokesman said France also had received no notice of the gathering.

Both added that even if they had been invited, they would not have attended. Canada does not intend to join any NATO nuclear force and France favors instead a separate European deterrent under French leadership.

ALL SMILES today were Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy and his wife Joan as the Senator left hospital in Boston six months after breaking his back in an airplane crash. He was able to walk out unaided. The Kennedys will holiday in Florida until the new Senate session starts Jan. 4. (AP Wirephoto.)

West Firepower Listed by U.S.

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of Defence Robert S. McNamara told the Western allies today the United States has a mighty arsenal of weapons for the protection of Europe that includes more than 800 intercontinental ballistics missiles.

In a speech to the council of ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, McNamara gave a revealing picture of American military strength.

The defence secretary said U.S. nuclear power includes:

- More than 300 Polaris missiles.
- Hundreds of B52 bombers.
- Total nuclear firepower located in Germany alone which is more than 5,000 times that of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

With all this power, McNamara said the United States sees no point in increasing expenditures on strategic weapons for the alliance.

He added that, in general, the present structural goals for forces within Europe appeared adequate if a few countries would go ahead and fulfil their commitments under those goals.

SUMMING UP

In summing up, McNamara told the council that roughly 40 per cent of the entire American nuclear weapons power is located in Europe or allocated there and in the Atlantic area.

When he said there was no point in increasing strategic military spending, McNamara added that members of the alliance already were doing and planning everything necessary in this respect.

PICKS UP PRECEDENT FROM POLITICAL IDOL FDR

Pressure Tactics Out for LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is picking up precedent from his political idol and tutor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the fields of official oratory and diplomatic niceties.

The White House announced Tuesday that:

—Johnson will deliver a nighttime address to Congress—and the people—on the state of the union Jan. 4 rather than the usual noontime report. Not since Roosevelt delivered a State of the Union address at 9 p.m. Jan. 3, 1936—Johnson picked the same hour—has one been presented at night.

—From now on new ambassadors to the United States will be received in the executive mansion proper, instead of the presidential office in the west wing, to present their credentials. Eight of them did so Tuesday in the Blue Room. Roosevelt received envoys in the same room.

When Johnson speaks on the night of Jan. 4, he will be addressing the first session of the 89th Congress—an address that will be carried by television and radio networks.

It was the second session of the 74th Congress that Roosevelt addressed on that January night 29 years ago.

TO AVOID TACTICS

The New York Times, the Chicago Daily News, the Baltimore Sun and the Los Angeles Times also reported that Johnson is going into his first full term determined to avoid high pressure tactics at home and abroad.

The New York Times in an article by Tom Wicker said Johnson's attitude "reflects a conviction that he could stumble into trouble by 'throwing his weight around'—either with the nation's allies, with the Chinese Communists or with highly independent members of Congress."

The Baltimore Sun in an article by Phillip Potter said Johnson is going to use his election mandate "in a relaxed way both at home and abroad, cognizant that power used is power dissipated — and that more flies can be caught with honey than with vinegar."

On international matters, the New York Times said Johnson plans "no fundamental change in the United States course of action in the guerrilla wafare in South Viet Nam.

NO DEADLINE

"He is not mounting a hard selling effort or setting a deadline for the establishment of the controversial mixed - manned nuclear fleet and he is willing to accept modification of the plan to meet the needs of the Westerh allies."

The Baltimore Sun said that "everything will be done that can be done to assure the Russians that America's aims and objectives are what we say they are — to find ways and means of preventing the dissemination and proliferation of nuclear weapons."

The Flag of Canada

CANADA NOW HAS A NATIONAL flag. Except for approval by the Senate—and it is not likely the Upper House will seek to add unduly to the flood of debate which has engaged the Commons—and the formal proclamation by the Queen, the creation of a Canadian emblem is now assured.

The flag has not emerged from the best of beginnings. The political wrangling, the wide disagreement on design, the questioning of motives, the criticism of timing—all these were unfortunate accompaniments of what should have been a joyful and welcome experience for all Canadians. But that is behind us now. We have a flag.

Prime Minister Pearson urges Canadians to accept and be proud of the emblem which was chosen by a Parliamentary committee and made official by the only body which holds that right—the Parliament of Canada. We should now forget all the alternatives, the "better ideas", the bitterness and suspicion which marked the much-too-long debate.

The flag is made up of Canada's long-established official colors—red and white. It consists of a maple leaf symbol long known to Canadians and widely recognized overseas. It will now mean, at home and abroad, what Canadians make it mean. One thing it will mean is that where it flies there will be freedom—freedom even to fly with it another flag if abiding sentiment so directs.

Soon it will be familiar, the acknowledged symbol of our nationhood, a part of our lives.

Let us respect it, value it, preserve it. We have a flag.

Higher Fares Are No Solution

THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMmission approval of a large increase in bus fares comes as no surprise. Dr. Henry F. Angus, chairman of the commission, had all but spelled it out in statements before the formal announcement.

But will this cut losses on public transit in Victoria and Vancouver? Obviously the 50 per cent increase will reduce the number of bus riders, many of whom are in the lower income groups.

Some of these passengers will walk—if they are able. Others will stay at home or curtail the frequency of their trips. In other cases workers requiring transportation to and from jobs will expand the car pools and some will drive their own automobiles. This seems inevitable unless a substantial subsidy is provided in a way to ease the load on the bus patrons.

It must be clear to the operators of the system that patronage will fall off as fares go up. That, in the natural course of events, would lead to a reduction in service.

The eventual result could be a public transportation system of such a low standard that the municipalities concerned would have to step in and rescue the service—at public expense.

Should this happen, the Hydro, which does not want the transportation business, would be relieved of a major obligation placed upon it by Mr. Bennett's take-over of the B.C. Electric, and Mr. Bennett would then have eliminated a lot of the skim milk and retained the cream of his expropriation.

A swelling protest against the fare increase can be expected immediately from the bus-using public and the municipal authorities elected to serve the residents. That protest has no doubt been anticipated. When it has exhausted itself against the obduracy of the Hydro's stand—buttressed no doubt by Mr. Bennett—the municipalities will have to turn to alternatives to help meet the costs of public transportation for those who need it.

That would bring the issue around full circle to consideration of subsidies and from what revenue source they can be obtained. Historically—and in earlier years logically—they have been provided out of the high earnings from electrical power. It would be up to the municipalities to find a substitute for that revenue since the government has not shown any inclination to accept civic suggestions that it counter-balance the municipalities' assumption of the money-losing transit system by giving them the money-making electrical distribution system.

The fares have been increased on a basis which, as Dr. Angus warned, precluded consideration of public convenience, the social consequences of a higher charge and the question of children's transportation.

But these considerations cannot be swept under the rug. They exist. They demand attention. Conceivably they may be tossed into the laps of the municipalities.

The Public Utilities Commission has brought down a decision on the application to raise fares. That decision does not begin to provide a solution for the public urban transit problem either now or in the future.

Any sizable community needs a transportation system, just as a nation does. If that system cannot be self-supporting, then a subsidy from public funds is the answer. But before the municipalities can subsidize bus lines from their tax revenues the province will have to reopen the whole question of municipal financing, which is far from satisfactory even now.

The Senate Says 'No'

THE SENATE HAS KILLED the bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia, and Premier Bennett will have to turn to more constitutionally acceptable methods if he still wishes to use his government powers to encourage the growth of a provincially centered capital market.

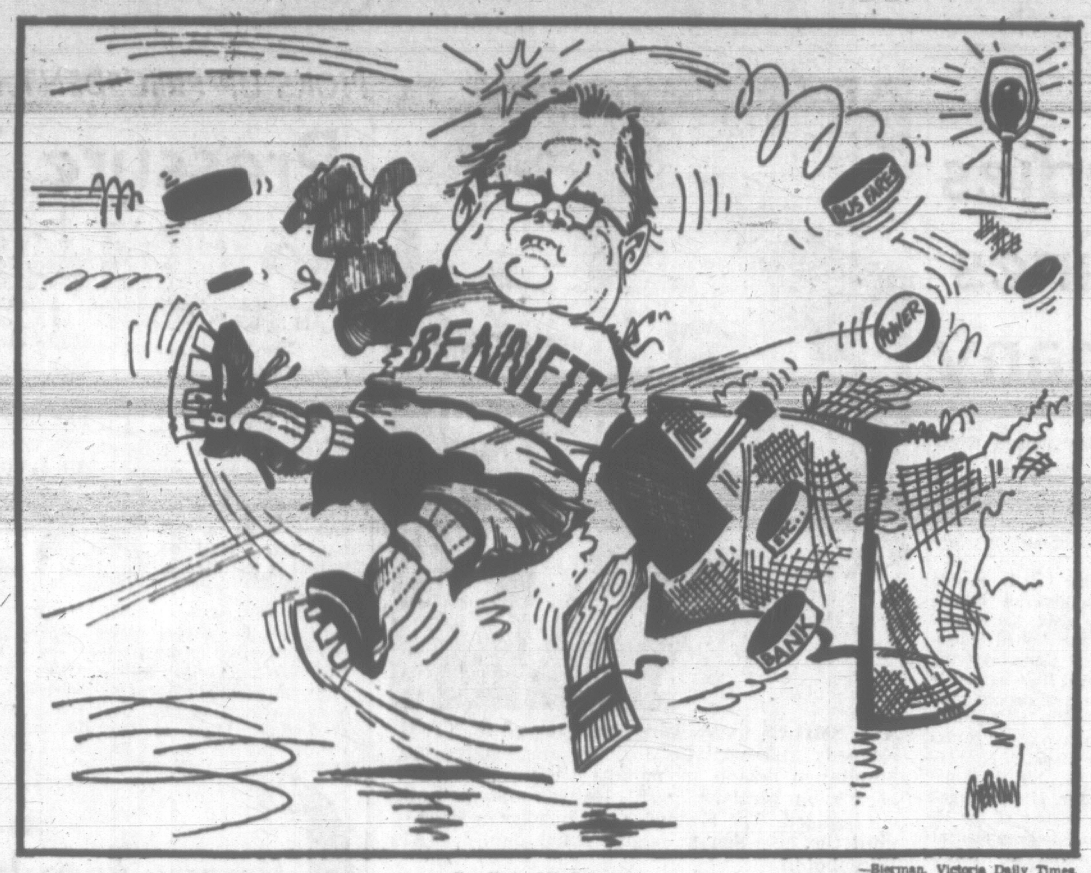

The Senate committee rejection was based specifically on the point that a bank with shares owned by a provincial government could lead to provincial control of an institution with a federal charter. But in this province the concern of businessmen is of a more direct nature: they fear that a government-controlled bank would interfere in private enterprise for political purposes.

If Mr. Bennett's main intention in promoting the bank is—and he has claimed this many times — to shift some of the weight of financial control in Canada from east to west, there are several moves he can make. First, he can use his influence with Creditiste Party leader Raoul Caouette to free legislation, now bottled up in the Commons by the Creditistes, which would permit the Laurentide Bank in Vancouver and the Bank of Western Canada in Winnipeg to receive charters.

Mr. Bennett can also encourage the private interests which he has claimed were intending to become associated with the Bank of British Columbia to go ahead on their own without any financial help from government and seek a charter for a new bank. If there is a need for the bank—and Mr. Bennett claims there is—why would it not be just as successful without the government's capital, particularly since the government's proposed share was cut down from 25 per cent to 10 per cent? If the Bank of British Columbia was to be free from political influence—as Mr. Bennett adamantly maintained it would be — then why would it not succeed as well with only $90 millions in capitalization, after withdrawal of the government, as it would be with $100 millions?

Finally, if Mr. Bennett feels that availability of risk capital in British Columbia is not sufficient to promote growth and development on a scale which he feels is necessary, he is free to bring in legislation creating a provincial development fund, similar to those in Quebec and other provinces, through which provincial residents could invest in new enterprises in partnership with the government and with private interests. This, of course, is less desirable than encouraging private capital to take on the whole risk of new development, but it does at least avoid the constitutional danger inherent in provincial invasion of the chartered banking field.

However, in the long run there is no more important way in which government can attract capital and spur development than by simply being good government. If a province such as British Columbia, with great resources and opportunities to be exploited, has legislation which is fair and just and not subject to capricious or whimsical changes at the discretion of those in power, there should be no problem of attracting risk capital on good terms. In fact, judging by the development which is taking place now and is promised for the future, there is no problem.

Commonwealth Secretariat Coming Soon?

SOMETIME in January, officials of all Commonwealth countries will meet here to study formation of a Commonwealth secretariat. Background work on the secretariat has been in progress for five months. It is hoped—officially, that is—that January's meeting will enable the project to be carried through to completion.

Purser

But there are great misgivings behind the scenes, where it is recognized that the secretariat may be a turning point in the history of the Commonwealth. The question is which way the Commonwealth will turn.

Purposes Set

Present discussions arise from a passage in the communique issued at the end of last July's conference of Commonwealth prime ministers here. It called for a study of the best way to establish a Commonwealth secretariat which would exist for the following purposes:

". . . To disseminate factual information to all member countries on matters of common concern; to assist existing agencies, both official and unofficial, in the promotion of Commonwealth links in all fields; and to help to co-ordinate, in co-operation with the host country, the preparations for future meetings of Commonwealth heads of government and, where appropriate, for meetings of other Commonwealth ministers. This secretariat, being recruited from member countries and financed by their contributions, would be at the service of all Commonwealth governments and would be a visible symbol of the spirit of co-operation which animates the Commonwealth."

It would be more than a symbol. It would change the nature of the Commonwealth, which now is an informal assemblage of nations united by one and only one factor common to all: the historical accident of former British rule. It would give the Commonwealth the machinery to make it a formal working body, just as the United Nations is a formal working body by virtue of its huge secretariat organization.

This possibility was viewed with plain horror by the British before the July Commonwealth prime ministers conference. Before the conference began, it now is known, the then Commonwealth Relations Secretary, Mr. Duncan Sandys, privately told a group of persons intimately concerned with the Commonwealth that he was against giving it institutions on the UN pattern. New links and new contacts would continue to be formed, but formal institutions, he said, would weaken the Commonwealth. The United Nations structure made its activities public and encouraged its members to strike attitudes. Only in the loosely-structured Commonwealth as it now is could such unlike-minded nations meet in the informality, frankness and privacy that is its essence.

Changed Dominance

This view was largely shared by other white Commonwealth countries before the conference, and it is easy to see why. In the past there have been suggestions from white Commonwealth countries for creating formal Commonwealth institutions, but these were resisted by other members. In those days the white members would have dominated any formal Commonwealth bodies.

This year the tables were turned. Non-white countries dominate in number and population if not in wealth, development and know-how. Led by the Africans and especially by Ghana, they now sought a formal, central Commonwealth organization and won the first round with an agreement to study its formation.

Commonwealth conference communiques are unanimous agreements and there was no formally stated dissenting opinion from the white members. Indeed, after several months of preliminary work following the conference, official policy here appeared to have swung behind the idea of a Commonwealth secretariat. In the dying days of the Conservative government one of its members declared in an interview that the conference decision to examine the secretariat proposal was a "watershed" in Commonwealth development.

No Life on Memories

Mr. John Tilney, Joint Parliamentary Secretary in the Commonwealth Relations Office until the election threw him and Mr. Sandys onto the Opposition benches, stressed the communique's declared aim that the secretariat serve "all" members of the Commonwealth. "I cannot see the survival of the Commonwealth unless it is a benefit to all its members," he said. "It cannot live on memories."

In less official circles this had the ring of a government trying to come to terms with development passing beyond its control. An immensely skeptical Socialist, prominent in Labor Party thinking on international matters, was convinced that the CRO even under the last government was really trying to steer developments away from formation of a secretariat. He described the proposal as a "takeover bid" by the non-white Commonwealth countries and said Labor's best hope was for it to "die on its feet."

He wished to remain anonymous—wisely, because on December 3 Mr. Arthur Bottomley, the new Labor Commonwealth Relations Secretary, spoke cautiously, but on the record and favorably, of the proposal. (First of two articles.)

A Notable and Intelligent Caution in Russia

THE new leaders of the Soviet Union are holding their cards close to their chests. But one immediate aim is to offer the Russian people some clearly defined contrasts with the tenure of Nikita Khrushchev.

The deposed chairman asserted in 1959 that the leader of a government should behave like a bulldozer in attacking bureaucratic obstacles. Khrushchev lived this advice to the hilt but now the bureaucrats have retired the bulldozer and are busily repairing its damage.

Private conversations reveal that Khrushchev really had succeeded in boring, annoying and disappointing the Russian people, particularly the intelligentsia, to an extent that the West had not realized. The Brezhnev-Kosygin policy of drawing marked contrasts between the old era and the new is good government policy because there is much damage to undo and good politics.

One key contrast is the new leaders' emphasis that they have reversed the Khrushchev priorities and are giving domestic problems clear precedence over foreign relations. Khrushchev's capital hopping had roused a strongly negative reaction which stemmed from the realization that matters at home were being neglected.

Another key facet of the new government is a determination to move slowly and analytically against the spectrum of problems. These are cautious bureaucrats and a deliberate pace is their best answer to the people's resentment over the slapdash character of Khrushchev's solutions.

The new leaders counter the sentiment that Khrushchev talked too much with a stiff silence. They say they will not yield interviews until they have acted. Khrushchev's penchant for publicity has been transformed by Brezhnev and Kosygin into stern abstention from any act that could be considered a pursuit of publicity.

The standing of the new men with the public appears to rest upon respect for their educated efficiency and a confidence that they will be practical in the national interest. There are no signs of belief that either is a unique figure and some intimations of regret that Frol Kozlov is not healthy enough to take over.

But a second upheaval in the Kremlin, widely predicted in the West as likely to bring a new face into power, would sit badly with the Soviet intelligentsia. Repeatedly asserting that Khrushchev was unseated by constitutional means, they reject suggestions that Kremlin politics are in a state of flux. They want Brezhnev and Kosygin to have a chance to meet the problems.

A broad confidence in the pragmatism of the new team is the key to the seemingly staunch confidence of thoughtful Russians that the liberalization of Soviet life and the policy of co-existence will be maintained. These were the great innovations of the Khrushchev era and the Russian say they are certain that the new leaders will be practical enough to expand them.

One important change of emphasis is observed. Two and one-half years ago one heard many fervent expressions of a yearning for closer relations between the United States and Russia. Today much of the fervency is missing because people seem to feel that the present relations are tolerable and that further progress may require some delay.

The diplomatic climate suggests that the details of the Brezhnev-Kosygin foreign policy are not set. A certain ambiguity has crept into the scene and officials at the Foreign Ministry have withdrawn into somewhat noncommital shells.

This tentative atmosphere was conveyed at the Kremlin reception on November 7 when Defence Minister Marshal Malinovsky spoke critically of Robert McNamara. Kosygin went immediately to Foy Kohler, the American ambassador, and asked him what he thought of Malinovsky's remarks. In their ensuing talk Kosygin said his government would like to improve relations with the United States. In another corner of the room Brezhnev was talking with equal earnestness to Chou En Lai, the visitor from Peking.

These practical men know they cannot simultaneously improve their relations with Peking and Washington. Their government will be most safely judged by its acts. One wise diplomat here will no longer risk predictions on the policies of the Presidium. "If Khrushchev didn't know what was happening," he said, "why should I?"

For Better Understanding

In Montreal it is quite commonplace to see French or English being used to explain official conditions to the public. However, to print a full editorial in French as you did — even Montreal English newspapers have not come to see this as important. French-speaking newspapers, on the other hand, do not print editorial points of view in English.

I am just as pleasantly surprised as the mayors of Quebec towns were when they visited your city last month. I was not there myself though. I read of the event in a French-language newspaper, the weekly, La Patrie. Not only did the mayors appreciate that the editorial appeared in French, they were also very impressed that the city of Victoria gave them a welcome in the language they would use when they are among themselves, in French.

This event has opened channels of thought which were somewhat blocked. We hope the rest of Canada will eventually be able to see why French Canada is in a particular position.

That B.C. should be the province that would go to such length in greeting French Canadians is evidence that there the problem is approached with greater objectivity. Here in Eastern Canada it seems that English-speaking Canadians are far removed from what happens in the French-speaking community. On the other hand, more and more adults and children go to school to learn French. Communication, however, is nearly nil. It seems to be high time that what is now an idea should be put into practice.

A great sector of the community, the academic world of both groups, English and French, have very few points of contact. There is the probability that fear of French-speaking people has been instrumental in bringing this situation about. The fear might be that language, law and culture may disappear in an 'ocean' of English if there is too great an appreciation by young people in Quebec for the other, (English) part of Quebec.

The economy in the past has been run by English businessmen; today the French Canadians want their part of that section. Similar developments to the Columbia Power project are going on in Quebec. It seems as if there is a struggle for prestige going on as well.

What is needed; it seems to me, is better communication, better understanding among English-speaking people and French-speaking people here in Quebec and later on all over Canada. I would like to see more efforts, such as yours, to print at least once a week a French original article encouraged by French Canadians or a translation of an English article in that edition. And vice versa, I would greet an original article in English in a French language newspaper at least once a week.

There are many opportunities to express thoughts and conclusions of the matter concerning a Canada that is united. First contacts must be established.

For Closer Relations

Montreal Le Devoir

Many Quebec personalities have recently expressed the hope that influential voices will begin expressing English Canada's point of view on relations between the two ethnic groups.

Symphathetic voices exist in English Canada and often make themselves heard. From memory we could mention men like Eugene Forsey, Murray Ballantyne, Ramsay Cook, Paul Fox, Davie Fulton etc. But the French-Canadians wonder in what degree these voices are a reflection of English Canada's true sentiments.

An inquiry made recently among more than 500 students of a Western university offers us a revealing test . . . The results indicate that we are far from true understanding.

The inquiry contained six questions aimed at measuring the quality of information those questioned possess. These were elementary questions dealing, among other things, with certain French-Canadian personalities and the importance of the French-speaking group within the Canadian population. These questions were followed by others dealing with the usual sources of information of the students.

Only about half the answers were exact, which is disconcerting in view of the simplicity of the questions.

More serious, however, is that the students questioned are terribly passive towards the problem of the two cultures. About 80 per cent have participated only rarely or occasionally in discussions on biculturalism . . . The majority, more than three-quarters, only know what they read in the newspapers or heard on radio or television. Only about five per cent have been made aware of the problem through speeches or elaborated talks.

In other words the problem of two cultures is a subject about which we hear now and again while reading the newspaper or watching television. It is not a matter which inspires personal enterprise or active research. The problem is viewed rather mechanically . . .

This is only a poll among one group of Western students but it allows some provisional conclusions. The first is that a good part of English Canada continues to sleep placidly on the problems now stirring up French Canada and enlightened English-Canadians. The second is that an immense work of education remains to be done to make the political problem of this country known in all its reality.

The dialogue has started between the elite of each ethnic group. But if they want to avoid wasting their time, the elite of English Canada should start a dialogue within their own milieu without delay. (Claude Ryan)

Thanks

May I take advantage of your correspondence column to thank the voters of Victoria who supported me at the polls in the recent civic election.

Their continued confidence is a challenge which I shall do my best to meet.

Difficult Enough

May I make this plea for fair play for the McPherson Playhouse management?

Surely the difficulties are numerous enough without adding to them by continual sniping by busybodies and pressure groups.

NATURE ON THE ISLAND — By DR. CLIFF CARL

Coots, a Distinctive Bird

Each fall the coots gather on local lakes to spend the winter in social gatherings that may involve several hundred birds. Part of each day is spent searching for food, seeds, plant tissue and small animals in the weedy shallows but many hours are whiled away drifting aimlessly in large rafts. Occasionally birds will come ashore to seek grit or to peck among the debris but most of the time they remain afloat.

Carl

Coots and their relatives, the gallinules and rails, are a distinctive group of birds. Their feet are somewhat like those of shore birds except that the toes are longer in proportion to the rest of the body and the hindmost toe rests flat on the ground to give maximum support when walking on floating vegetation or soft mud. The toes of the coot are further distinguished by being flattened in a series of lobes, adding greatly to their efficiency as swimming organs. This feature alone places our American coot and the only other species, the black coot of Europe, in a small group all by themselves.

However, there is no need to examine toes to recognize a coot; the general features are distinctive. The body is a uniform slaty grey, darkening to black on the head, and the prominent ivory-white bill extends back on the head to form a brown-colored frontal shield. The over-all appearance is duck-like but its movements are hen-like because as it swims or walks the head bobs in time with the leg movement much like a chicken or pigeon.

Occasionally coots will be seen along the sea coast but they much prefer fresh water. After spending the winter on lakes, both on the coast and in the southern interior, the birds spread over most of the province to breed. The nests are often floating structures of bullrush stems and other plant material, usually anchored to stalks of vegetation and containing from 6 to 15 spotted eggs.

The chicks are most unusual looking. They are covered all over with dark fuzzy plumage except the top of the head which is bald. The ends of the long hairy feathers of the head and neck range in color from pale orange to bright orange-red, while the pate and other bare spots are purple or reddish. The black-tipped bill has a vermilion to maroon base; the legs are bluish-grey.

★ ★ ★

These grotesque young take to the water as soon as hatched and actively swim and dive. They may remain submerged, hanging to a plant stem for a surprisingly long time—up to three minutes according to one observer! The chicks grow quickly but the feet outstrip the body, with the result that before its second month of life the young bird is provided with a remarkably large set of paddles with which it propels itself along the weedy shores.

When the birds are developed enough to fly they also use the legs to get them airborne; in rhythmic strides they skitter along the surface until sufficient speed is gained for the wings to lift them clear.

Coot noises are quite unlike those of any other bird. The most usual sound is a mechanical grating kuk-kuk-kuk but various croaks, cackles and other unbird-like notes are produced at times. In the general cacophony of a swamp in spring the voice of the coot is a distinctive feature.

Wildfowl hunters in general have no great love for the coot. Athough it is exceedingly numerous at times and makes a relatively easy target its flesh is not particularly palatable. Perhaps for this reason it goes under the name of mud-hen in shooting circles.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

If there was ever a time when the citizens of Greater Victoria should sit down and hold a few post-mortems, it is now, with figures of the recent civic elections still clear in their minds.

These figures show the total number eligible to vote in the city and municipalities, also the total number that did vote, in each case.

It's an amazing revelation and appalling in its significance.

It points, coldly and clearly, to the fact that the majority of men and women who pay taxes or who are tenants in the Greater Victoria area, couldn't care less as to how the affairs of the area are run.

Anyone looking at the total voting figures is entitled to believe that people must be very lazy indeed, when even the ones registered and eligible to vote, did not do so.

What is the matter? Why do they take so little interest in civic affairs?

★ ★ ★

Is it, as many say, that this generation has spawned a breed of watchers, not doers. Robots who are lulled into a sporific state of mind by radio and television?

Men and women stream out to Beacon Hill Park and jam the approaches to the waterfront for miles, if a flight of airplanes does gymnastics in the sky.

They jump out of bed in the middle of the night, get into their cars and hightail it to the scene by the thousands, if a mill or a warehouse catches fire and burns to the ground.

Right now, if it was suddenly announced that someone was dropping from the clouds by parachute and would probably land at Clover Point, hundreds would be on their way out there before you could wink an eye.

Yet, when it comes to taking a short time to study the qualifications of those standing for civic office and to choosing the ones best suited for the job, they sit back in their easy chairs and go to sleep.

★ ★ ★

There are citizens, of course, who do take their responsibilities seriously. They know the over-all plans of the various communities and they vote in the way they think will be best for these areas.

If there were more of them the right candidates would certainly be chosen to represent us, in every area.

Trouble is that because the vast majority shirk their duty, this small core of responsible people is sometimes over-shadowed and outvoted by another group — the ones who are backing some particular cause and who lobby and get up petitions to support it.

They are concerned with one thing and one thing only. They know nothing of the larger problems of their areas, or the plans and the needs.

They give little heed to whether a person running for office is equipped — or has the time—to cope with the often complex patterns of civic or municipal governments.

With them it's merely a matter of whether they gain what they want (in most instances a small part of the over-all plan for their area) or not.

It's a sad state of affairs!

On the one hand we read that Greater Victoria is entering its golden era. Its face is changing rapidly. Community-wise, we are growing up.

On the other, we see by published figures that in the civic and municipal elections last Saturday, only 14,480 of the 59,894 eligible voters in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, went to the polls.

It looks very much as if the people are lagging far behind!

TRADE MINISTER

Tax Planning More Difficult

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday big business will find decreasing opportunities to avoid paying corporation tax.

Addressing a city service club on the topic, "The Changing Tides of Tax Planning," Mr. Loffmark attributed the decrease to a changing emphasis on such tax policies.

Arrangements that comply with the letter of the law but are contrary to its spirit are no longer of avail, the minister said. Tax laws are being revised to frustrate such arrangements and finance ministers and treasury boards are given powers of decision that can not be appealed.

The principle that the taxpayer is entitled to do everything possible to escape taxes is giving place to the principle that devices to avoid tax are not permissible where avoidance is their purpose or effect, he said.

CHANGE GENERAL

Mr. Loffmark, a lawyer, accountant, former professor of commerce at the University of B.C. and author of several books on tax, estate planning and government regulation of business, said he was not speaking only of Canadian law but of a development common to Canada, the United Kingdom, the United States and other countries.

"A tax planner can no longer tell you if a particular arrangement of business affairs for tax reduction will be successful because decision lies in the minds of ministers and boards and tax planners can not read their minds," Mr. Loffmark said.

Mr. Loffmark predicted that the doors would soon be shut tight against tax avoidance by company surplus stripping, creation of low tax subsidiaries to do the business of a high-tax corporation, creation of asset and income holding companies in Caribbean Islands and all othe transactions such as share redemption and acquisition of conversion designed to lessen tax liability.

REMOVE CURBS, BRITISH PM TELLS CANADA

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson said Tuesday night the Canadian government could help British exports by removing impediments to them.

He said in the House of Commons:

"Both governments are anxious to see an increase in British exports to Canada which would reduce the present heavy imbalance of trade.

"The Canadian government can help by removing impediments to our exports."

Major Car Companies Optimistic

DETROIT (AP) — The three major auto companies agree that business will continue fine in 1965, with Ford Motor Co. the most optimistic.

Henry Ford II told his annual yearend press conference Tuesday that car and trucks sales in the United States next year might reach 10,100,000 vehicles.

A day earlier, Chrysler president Lynn A. Townsend said 1965 car and truck sales would total at least 9,500,000 and could exceed 10,000,000.

Frederic G. Donner, chairman of the board of General Motors—largest of the auto makers—said Sunday that 1965 sales could surpass 1964s expected total of 9,200,000.

DOMESTIC MARKET

The big difference between the Ford board chairman and Donner was in their estimate of the 1965 domestic car market. Donner said it could exceed 7,800,000 units; Ford predicted it would reach 8,700,000. Townsend's figure was about 8,000,000.

The Ford chairman, as Chrysler and General Motors did earlier, expressed confidence that the industry would maintain its growth pattern. He said about $700,000,000 of the company's three-year, $1,600,000,000 expansion and modernization plan would be spent in 1965, compared to $465,000,000 this year.

Asked if he had any suggestions for curbing what he called excessive union power, Ford replied: "Something has to be done, but just what I don't know. I would be happy to discuss it with labor leaders."

'Big Steel' Firms Open Wage Talks

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Negotiators for the nation's "big 11" basic steel producers resumed contract talks today with the United Steelworkers of America, which is seeking major wage concessions for its 1.2 million members.

At the formal opening of the talks Tuesday it was all smiles and guarded optimism. But sources close to both sides said privately there would be a long and hard road to an agreement.

J. Warren Shaver, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp.'s bargaining team and his union counterpart, James Griffin, director of USW district 26 in Youngstown, Ohio, expressed guarded hope talks would continue to proceed on an amiable level after their opening two-hour session Tuesday.

"The meeting went fine," Shaver said, adding he was "hopeful" a contract agreement could be reached.

Griffin said the union "got in a good opening statement which was supplemented by several union representatives."

Joseph Molony, Buffalo, district 4 director who met with Bethlehem Steel Co. negotiators, said he thought "an agreement will be reached."

"I don't like to think in terms of a strike deadline," he said. "Our talks were friendly."

When the U.S. Steel talks opened one of the bargainers said he hoped "the spirit of Christmas" would prevail at the bargaining table.

But the spirit of good will which marked the end of the separate talks contrasted with an air of frigidity earlier in the day. Both sides struck verbal blows only a few hours before the contract talks opened.

Industry led off when R. Conrad Cooper, chief bargainer for the "Big 11," issued an industry position statement asking the union to pare its demands. Industry accused the union of seeking an "unfair share" of industry profits and argued that steel has declined in the last decade.

USW president David J. McDonald said the industry was guilty of bad arithmetic.

$541 Million Trade Surplus Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has ended the first nine months of the year with a world-wide trade surplus of $541,000,000, the bureau of statistics says.

The surplus after the first nine months of 1963 was $236,900,000.

While the deficit with the United States climbed during the nine months to $578,300,000 Canada showed a surplus of $1,215,200,000 in its dealings with all other countries.

The bureau said the value of all commodity imports shot up 13.7 per cent during September to $616,900,000 and increased 15.9 per cent to $5,522,700,000 during the nine-month period.

Total exports were earlier estimated at $743,800,000 for September and at $6,159,600,000 for the January-September period.

When adjusted for balance of payments purposes, the nine-month surplus of $636,900,000 was reduced to $541,000,000.

PEACE RIVER TIMBER LICENCES

Extension Draws Blast

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Contractor Ben Ginter Tuesday bitterly protested a one-month extension granted by the government to a rival timber firm's bid for a pulp harvesting licence in the Peace River flood basin.

Deputy Forests Minister R. G. McKee said Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan, acting lands and forests minister in the absence of Ray Williston, had granted Cattermole Timber Company an extra month to match Ginter's bid for timber licences needed to support a proposed pulp mill in the Peace River area.

Mr. McKee said Cattermole asked for the extension in view of the "tremendous investments involved."

The provincial government "has absolutely no justification for delaying the announcement" of who received the 12-year harvesting licence, Mr. Ginter said.

"Cattermole appears to need additional time to find financial backers or convince his partner of the merits of the project—if he has a partner," Mr. Ginter said.

GETS NO INTEREST

Mr. Ginter complained that the $340,000 cash payment which accompanied his bid seven weeks ago is sitting in a government fund without accruing interest.

"I didn't bid on a pulp mill just to have that money tied up for almost two months," he said.

"I feel I should have the right now to withdraw my bid if I choose. No politics should be played with anyone else's money."

Mr. Ginter said he considered bidding on timber in the Squamish area when it was uncertain that he would get timber in the Prince George area.

"But it is difficult to justify money on studies and preparation of a case if my deposit money (on the Prince George area timber) is still tied up in Victoria because of the 30-day extension."

In Victoria, Acting Lands and Forests Minister Kiernan said Mr. Ginter seemed to have made the points that the 30-day extension might block him out of the Squamish-Cariboo hearings, which are to be held in Victoria Jan. 4-5.

"I am sure the cabinet had no intention to block him out of both or either.

"The situation will have to be considered."

Another Fight Looms At Jan. 15 Hearings

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two companies who propose pulp mills in eastern B.C. will clash at public hearings at Cranbrook Jan. 15 over pulpwood harvesting rights in two crown forests, both seek as part of their mill supply.

This became apparent Tuesday with a proposal by Kicking Horse Forest Products Ltd., to build a 600-ton-a-day pulp mill at an undisclosed site north of Golden. It is believed the project would be in the $60,000,000 category.

In opposition on crown forests of Canoe, Kinbasket and Windermere will be Canal Development Ltd., a subsidiary of Crestbrook Timber Ltd., of Cranbrook. It is proposing a $35,000,000, 350-ton-a-day mill at Canal Flat, 60 miles from Cranbrook. Canal Development will also seek rights in the crown forests of Cranbrook, Creston, Fernie and Upper Kootenay.

The Cranbrook hearings before Lands and Forests Minister Williston will be the third he will hold at the first of next year. Others are scheduled for Jan. 4-5 at Victoria to adjudicate on timber in the Squamish-Cariboo area and Jan. 8 at Prince George to consider a bid by International Pulp Company for timber rights north of Prince George.

Kicking Horse Forest Products is the wholly-owned subsidiary of Cyprus Mines Corporation of Los Angeles, a large company with diversified interests in mining, lumber, building and shipping.

Iron Industry Near Princeton Company's Plan

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Plans to establish a basic iron industry near Princeton, B.C., have been announced by Neil H. McDiarmid, president of Imperial Metals and Power Ltd.

Tests show the company's iron ore deposit is concentratable by magnetic separation to provide a magnetic concentrate containing 66.4 per cent iron. The deposit contains enough iron to sustain an annual program of 1,000,000 tons of sponge iron production for a period of 30 years or more, and lends itself to cost-saving open-pit mining methods the company said.

Nearby exists a major source of low-cost energy and carbon in the form of millions of tons of bituminous "C" steam coal.

A readily accessible deposit of crystalline limestone is also available in the same area analyzing 95 per cent calcium carbonate suitable for use in conjunction with iron ore and coal for sponge iron production, the company added.

Midwestern Wants More Canadian Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Midwestern Gas Transmission Company, Houston, Tex., has asked the Federal Power Commission for authority to increase its natural gas imports from Canada.

J. S. Brogdon, Midwestern sales manager, under questioning by L. R. Pankonien, counsel for the firm, outlined a need for more gas at a hearing before examiner William C. Levy.

Midwestern now is authorized to import up to 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily from Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., Calgary. Midwestern seeks authority to import peak-day volumes up to 222,360,000 cubic feet by Nov. 1, 1967.

Christmas Sales Volume Promises All-Time High

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quality and quantity tell the story of Canada's Christmas shopping habits in 1964.

"Christmas sales this year will outdistance anything we've known in the past," says David A. Gilbert, national general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.

"No weak spots are evident this year. Shoppers are showing discrimination as they look for quality and luxury items."

Sales volume should set a record at most points in the country, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed.

The advertising manager for a company which operates 14 department stores in British Columbia says it appears to be "the biggest Christmas season ever" in that province.

One Vancouver department store offers "breakfast with Santa." Each morning for 35 cents youngsters are given breakfast in the store while a clown band plays and balloons and novelty hats are handed out. Then Santa Claus appears from a chimney set up on a stage and talks with the children.

A spokesman for an Edmonton department store says "buyer resistance isn't very heavy this year." Luxury items are going well, including furs for women. Another department store spokesman says pool tables are selling well.

BETTER THAN YEAR AGO

Calgary store spokesmen note a general increase in sales this year over 1963 and attribute the situation to "a general buoyancy in the Alberta economic picture."

Retailers in Regina report Christmas sales up over last year, which set a record. "It's in the process of being the best Christmas we've ever had," one department store spokesman says.

By early December Christmas shopping was 10 per cent ahead of sales at the same time in 1963, says M. M. Wocks, secretary-manager of the Manitoba branch of the Retail Merchants Association. Quality rather than quantity was the big factor in the increase.

"They're even buying more expensive toys—big trucks, big tractors, lots of trains. They're spending up to $15 each on toys."

Winnipeg downtown stores are experimenting with a park-and-shop program under which shoppers will receive stamps good for 30 minutes' parking with each $3 purchase. Shoppers riding by bus will receive free transit trips with $3 purchases.

A Toronto department store spokesman describes sales as strong and buoyant.

RUN ON POOL TABLES

Ottawa reports strong demand for home furnishings especially stereo and hi-fi record players, clothing of all kinds and toys. In addition there's an unprecedented demand for pool and billiard tables selling for more than $200. "We just can't keep them in stock," one store representative said.

Spokesmen for two Montreal department stores predict a record year. A spokesman for a third store says it expects a better season than last year, although not a record.

One Montreal department store started a nursery this year so mothers can get their Christmas shopping done without interruption.

A department store in Saint John, N.B., describes November as "a marvellous month" and says if sales keep up the pace, volume for the last two months of the year will be almost 10 per cent ahead of 1963. Luxury items such as stereo equipment and recordings are in demand.

Charlottetown retail stores say Christmas shopping is slightly heavier than last year.

In Halifax store spokesmen report business good generally but are hesitant to predict last year's figures will be topped. Items such as stereo equipment are selling well.

Despite the longshoremen's strike, St. John's, Nfld., reports stores well stocked and buying brisk with sales higher than a year ago and more expensive gifts in demand.

Britain's Trade Gap Takes Jump

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's trade gap—excess of imports over exports — rose last month to £103,000,000 ($309,000,000), it was announced today. This was £11,000,000 more than in October.

Imports last month totalled £474,000,000, exports £357,000,000 and re-exports £14,000,000, according to provisional figures issued by the board of trade.

Imports showed a £19,000,000 increase over the October figure. Exports were up by £6,000,000 and re-exports by £2,000,000.

November was the first full month in which Britain's new 15-per-cent industrial imports surcharge was in effect.

STUBBORN CONSERVATISM GIVES WAY TO CRITICAL REAPPRAISAL

'It Is Not Easy to Be a Young French Canadian in 1964'

This is a substantial excerpt from an article written by Gerard Pelletier, editor of the influential French-language newspaper La Presse in Montreal, for the magazine Atlantic Monthly, and reprinted with permission of the author and the publication.

Mr. Pelletier's article was entitled "The Trouble With Quebec" and was one of several in the magazine reflecting various sides of Canada's problems and its aims.

By GERARD PELLETIER

Officially, Canada is a bilingual and bicultural country. In practice, however, no one can deny that the central authorities, ever since Confederation came into being, have behaved like the national and even nationalist government of a British nation. Lip service was paid to "the presence in our midst of a different culture which adds greatly to the intellectual riches of Canada." But precious little was done to give it meaning.

The English-speaking majority has been running the country ever since it was created. The presence of a French-speaking minority was always considered a nuisance, and the hope was never abandoned that it would eventually be assimilated.

Waiting for that happy moment English Canada managed to get governments elected with the participation of Quebec by yielding on details. For example, bilingual stamps and money won an election in Quebec for the Liberals in the thirties, after years of campaigning; and last year for the first time, menus were printed in both languages in the Ottawa Parliament's restaurant. But Canada's central government remained an English government, with fewer bilingual civil servants in its External Affairs Department than in the United Kingdom's Foreign Office. And as a rule, a French Canadian who works for the federal government works in English.

Rights Ignored

The grievance against the provincial governments of English Canada is of a different nature. It centres upon the treatment the provinces have given their French-Canadian minorities. It is hard to imagine what more they could have done to thwart these minorities and erase all trace of French culture from their territories. Wherever there existed recognized rights for these minorities (Manitoba, Alberta), such rights were ignored and trampled upon.

Where no written law existed, the growth of the French population did not incite the English-speaking majority to make room for cultural development. A good example of that can be seen in New Brunswick, where nearly 40 per cent of the population is French; despite this fact, the government could never be convinced that a French Teachers' College was needed, whereas in Quebec, the English-speaking minority, with less than 20 per cent of the population, has three universities and a complete educational system, all subsidized with public funds.

13% Conquered

It is no wonder that the theory of colonialism is gaining ground in Quebec. And what is the answer to colonialism? Independence, of course, according to the post-war pattern developed all over the world. Hence the emergence of the separatist movement, which in three years, according to a carefully conducted opinion survey, has conquered 13 per cent of the electorate and made spectacular headway in Quebec's public opinion.

Why, then, is there resistance to the idea of independence among the French-Canadians themselves? Why is the movement for independence restricted to the middle and lower-middle class? Why are the industrial masses still untouched and the older intellectuals, most of them at least, dead set against separatism? Why this cleavage?

Kept Ignorant

For the separatists, the explanation is simple. In all colonial countries, they say, in every situation where one people dominates another, the grande bourgeoisie and the intellectuals for the most part associate themselves with the colonial power to exploit the masses. And the masses themselves are kept ignorant enough and so politically confused that they remain submissive.

Such a theory could be accepted if it were not for the major differences between the situation in Quebec and that in most colonial countries. Federalism exists in Canada. No matter how much Confederation has been "rigged against the French," as the separatists contend, or exploited in favor of assimilation into the majority's melting pot, Quebec still enjoys more freedom and a greater measure of political independence, or self-determination, than any other colonial country one can think of. That is why there is in Quebec, besides a majority of bystanders who for the time being cling to the existing order, a group of French-Canadian federalists whose analysis of the facts is quite different from the separatists' colonial theory.

Generally speaking, the federalists are no more satisfied with the present situation than the nationalists. They recognize the evidence that Confederation has failed to make Canada a bicultural country. But they do not assign the same causes to the failure, nor do they envisage the remedies in the same perspective.

They claim that French Canadians are but a very small cultural minority in North America, and they insist that no matter what their political status may be, the situation of their group will remain a risky and dangerous one. In their opinion, the heart of the matter lies in the rapport between five million French-speaking people and close to two hundred million English-speaking people. For that reason, they believe that the emphasis must first be placed on the human values of the minority group itself.

Modern Techniques

To develop its culture in that kind of environment, a minority's basic need is for better education, better training, greater creativity, a beter sense of reality, and the sharpest of political views. The group must be alive, articulate, vigilant, and equipped with modern techniques in every field.

French Quebec has been awakening to this necessity over the last 25 years. It has emerged from the bucolic dreams of a peasant people, insolated in its past, who resented all change and whose hope was to "survive" by fighting off all the influences from the outside world.

Changed Mood

The social upheaval brought the shock of Second World War has changed the mood of French Canada. Our tradition of stubborn conservatism has given way to a critical reappraisal of our own values, of our collective ideology. We are now less preoccupied with the necessity of defending our way of life than with the need of modernizing it. French Canada has only recently entered into the 20th century. But we are catching up as rapidly as we can. Already, a new vitality in the Quebec government, the presence of more competent civil servants and governmental experts among the French Canadians, and a better knowledge of public-administration techniques have given substance to provincial projects and complaints which 20 years ago would have been mere dreams or short-lived fits of our collective temper.

Must Get Priority

This process of revitalization, reason the federalists, must be given priority over the dubious project of an independent Quebec. We still have a long way to go before the revamping of our society is completed. And the present constitution of Canada supplies us with enough power to go on with our house-cleaning job without interference. As we go along, we might feel the need for constitutional readjustments and proceed to achieve the necessary changes, but it would be a mistake to divert our energies toward a nationalist revolution which would do very little for the social and economic advancement of our people and would in no way modify the "rapport de forces" in North America.

Different Background

As for Confederation, the federalists share the view that we should try to play the game, now that we know it better, and see what comes out of it. We might, they argue, be surprised with the results.

This, I realize, is an oversimplification of both attitudes, but it roughly identifies the two main trends of thought. Basically, each one springs from a different ideological background. The separatists believe that French Canada must go through the nation-state stage as a priority if it is to achieve any measure of maturity as a cultural group. They consider this process an essential prerequisite to any form of real, coherent progress in the economic, social, or cultural fields.

On the contrary, the federalists adhere to Lord Acton's views that "the combination of different nations in one State is as necessary a condition of civilized life as the combination of men in society" and that "nationality does not aim either at liberty or prosperity, both of which it sacrifices to the imperative necessity of making the nation the mould and measure of the State".

Good Question

But how can one account for the action of young extremists who throw bombs and who land in prison? If the problem were that simple, if it were merely a choice between two lines of reasoning, would one have to cope with violence and terrorism?

That is a good question. Even after pointing out that terrorist activities in Quebec are restricted to a limited group of very young men, one must recognize that they do point to a deeper, more tragic disturbance. If youngsters are moved to imperil their own lives and those of their fellow citizens for political purposes, even though they enjoy total freedom of expression and action in the political field, there must be deep emotion factors at work.

It Isn't Easy

First of all, let me state that it is not easy to be a young French Canadian in 1964. Older men were brought up within the authoritarian atmosphere of a closed society dominated by the French-Canadian dream of survival through immobility. They were conditioned to believe that in spite of shortcomings French Canada's culture and way of life were better than English Canada's. But the younger generations were brought up during the reappraisal I mentioned earlier; they fed on self-criticism; they are acutely conscious of the deficiencies of their culture and extremely critical of the society they live in. And underneath their violence lies a revolt, not only against the political framework of Canada but against the fact that French culture in North America is immersed in an overwhelming majority of English-speaking people. There is an element of despair at the basis of their action.

What's to Happen?

What will eventually come out of the present turmoil?

At this point, I should like to be a learned political scientist, capable of weighing all the factors and of predicting the outcome with accuracy. But I must be content with mentioning two more elements and leaving the reader to his own conclusions.

On the one hand, it is obvious that the central power in Canada is undergoing a major crisis, and not because of Quebec alone. English Canada, by giving its votes to minority parties, maintains the plague of minority governments in Ottawa, which causes increasing paralysis at the federal level.

All Are Caught

On the other hand, all political parties in Quebec, at the provincial level, are caught in the nationalist blaze. For the first time since Confederation, they all agree on one point: the necessity for constitutional reform, with a particular emphasis on obtaining a special status for Quebec within Confederation. The provincial government, with the whole-hearted support of the opposition, has set up a committee to survey the advantages and inconveniences of complete independence. More and more, prominent politicians are advocating the status of "associate state" for our province, a solution which would leave the English-speaking provinces to their own decisions on how they would unite between themselves.

Is there a nationalist revolution going on in Quebec? The answer is not a clear no but not a definite yes, either. Contemporary Quebec is by no means in the classical condition for a nationalist revolution, and if there is a nationalist revolution going on in Quebec, it is not developing in the kind of conditions usually associated with such movements.

Impala Sport Coupe

Boldest change!
Best value!

The simple fact of the matter is: Chevrolet is the newest of the new for 1965. It's new coming at you, new passing you (how about that new Sweep-line roof?), and beats all the rest for newness going away. Even Chevrolet's famous Jet-smooth ride has been improved, with new Full Coil front and rear suspensions, a new Wide-Stance tread, more extra-thick body mounts and vibration-squelching insulation at more than 700 points. We put new curved glass in the side windows, and—get this—a new tempered glass rear window in the convertibles. Thirteen out of the fifteen Magic-Mirror colors are new. There's a new rear-mounted linkage in Chevrolet's Ball-Race steering for smoother, more positive handling and control. And if the way Chevrolet looks, and the way Chevrolet rides, and the way it goes is all new, what hasn't changed? Just this: Chevrolet value! For sheer elegance and luxury at a down-to-earth price, no other car can hold a candle to Chevrolet. And the '65 model does more than just maintain that reputation — it builds it! See how '65 Chevrolet does it at your Chevrolet dealer's.

The same firm reported many cases of oil congealing in furnace fuel lines and houses left without heat.

Warn Against Flame For Thaw

Plumbers advise—wrap the lines where they are exposed and use hot water to thaw them—don't use a flame. Also, where water lines are close to the weather, leave taps running tonight.

Outside work became dangerous and uncomfortable. Victoria's three major shipyards sent their outside workers home this morning.

But for garage workers, there was no relief. They couldn't get all the cars into their garages. Drivers found they had too little anti-freeze. In one case a man who had a gallon in his car's system, found it had congealed.

Batteries gave up trying to crank cold motors. Service calls kept most service stations hopping.

Saanich road crews spread 80 yards of sand mixed with salt on district streets, working five trucks and 18 men until midnight. Victoria spread salt until 10 p.m. and then the crews were out again this morning.

Both departments were in control of the ice and snow this morning—but looking dolefully toward the promised snow.

B.C. Hydro crews worked most of the night when trees fell across wires in Central Saanich, cutting power for 1½ hours, and in Mill Bay areas, where the longest dark period lasted four hours. Hydro buses were busier than they've been this winter.

Taxis experienced a heavy demand all night and early today they were asking customers to settle for a two-hour wait. B.C. Automobile Association was also two hours behind in service calls.

Fuel dealers said their phones were ringing constantly. Most were promising delivery Thursday or Friday.

One oil company reported many of the calls were complaints that customers were not getting enough heat, although they had fuel. Concensus was that Victoria homes just aren't built to withstand low temperatures.

Radio station CJVI suffered a power break when high winds disrupted facilities at Strongtide Island. The break occurred at 8:30 p.m. The station was silent about 12 hours.

No Small Boats Cross Strait

Repairs were delayed because no small boat could get across the strait to the island. Finally, this morning, a helicopter from Vancouver carried station engineer Mike Doyle across and service was resumed at 9:20 a.m.

All Greater Victoria school boards reported heating systems working adequately and all schools open.

In Saanich District 63 one school bus was inoperative and student passengers were expected to find other transportation or stay home.

All Air Canada flights were reported on schedule.

The Department of Highways reported all Island highways passable, with chains required on the Alberni-Tofino Road. Sanding and salting was still in progress at noon.

RCMP joined with city police in warning of possible snow.

"Keep your foot off the brakes, use your gears to slow down. Avoid hills. Allow 12 times as much space as normal for stopping. Drive slowly."

Duncan reported a low of 7 degrees Tuesday night, the coldest ever recorded there. There was less than an inch of snow.

Hydro area manager Al Van Sacker reported power failures, mostly in the Gulf Islands. Salt Spring, Saturna, Galiano and Mayne, some of which lasted several hours.

. . . BRIBE

Social Credit and Creditistes—could question witnesses.

Mr. Lamontagne noted that he made no specific statement the opening day about rejecting the bribe offer.

He said he wants it clearly understood that he rejected it and that he then asked why Mr. Denis was getting himself into a business like that.

He hadn't gone to the police until about Aug. 11 mostly out of friendship for Denis, whom he called his "close friend" in earlier testimony. Political aspects of the matter were only minor.

Mr. Lamontagne testified Tuesday that Mr. Denis told him Rivard was a good Liberal and might be needed since an election might soon be called.

Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government, opened up the question of Mr. Nielsen's sources of information. He asked whether Mr. Lamontagne discussed the offer with the Progressive Conservative MP.

Mr. Lamontagne acknowledged Mr. Nielsen came to see him, without indicating a date. At this point, protests were voiced by Ross Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party, and Richard A. Bell, former Conservative immigration minister and counsel for Mr. Nielsen.

Mr. Bell charged the question of the source of Mr. Nielsen's information was only a red herring across the real line of inquiry—whether bribery and coercion allegations were true—and would only lead to a witch hunt.

Mr. Deschenes argued that the inquiry had to go into how RCMP reports of their investigations of the bribe allegations were handled. It was important to determine whether a public servant had committed a violation.

Chief Justice Dorion, in ruling that the point shouldn't be pursued, said that he did not see how this line of questioning would help determine whether or not the allegations were true.

Later, Mr. Lamontagne volunteered the statement that Mr. Nielsen had apparently come to see him as a courtesy because, he said, the MP already had the information on which he based his Commons charges.

Mr. Lamontagne said he gave Mr. Nielsen no information in the case.

Chief Justice Dorion rejected the request of Francois Chapados, counsel for a witness named Guy Masson, that lawyers for the political parties in Parliament be barred from cross-questioning witnesses.

He said it was logical to invite representatives of all parties to help bring to light all the facts.

PENGUINS COLD TOO

VANCOUVER (CP) — Temperatures tumbled throughout British Columbia during the night as icy winds from the north, up to 70 miles an hour, whipped across the province.

In Vancouver the overnight low of two degrees was a record for December, and too cold even for Stanley Park's penguins.

Zoo officials reported the Antarctic creatures were kept inside because they have become climatized to the usually balmy west coast.

The all-time record low for Vancouver was zero, set in January of 1950.

Victoria Buzzes and Booms

By PETE LOUDON

Watching Victoria grow is like watching a beehive.

Everybody is buzzing around, but you have to look deep inside to see what they're doing.

There are 5,000 new people a year in the capital region. What are they all doing for a living? Well, so far nobody's looked into it. But there are indications many of us now are catering to the needs of people who come here to retire or get an education.

Capital Region planner Tony Roberts and Saanich planner Tom Loney both threw up their hands at the question.

They agreed that our shipbuilding and forest industries are booming and that we have the benefit of being a garrison community, the seat of provincial government, and we have a healthy tourist industry.

But these industries have been stable for years. Something new is stirring our economy. And there are strong indications that the industry of catering to people who come here to retire or stay here to get a university education is the industry of the future.

"No study has yet been made of this," said Mr. Roberts. "If we knew the answer, it might indicate that we should be wise to launch a campaign to bring more people here to retire."

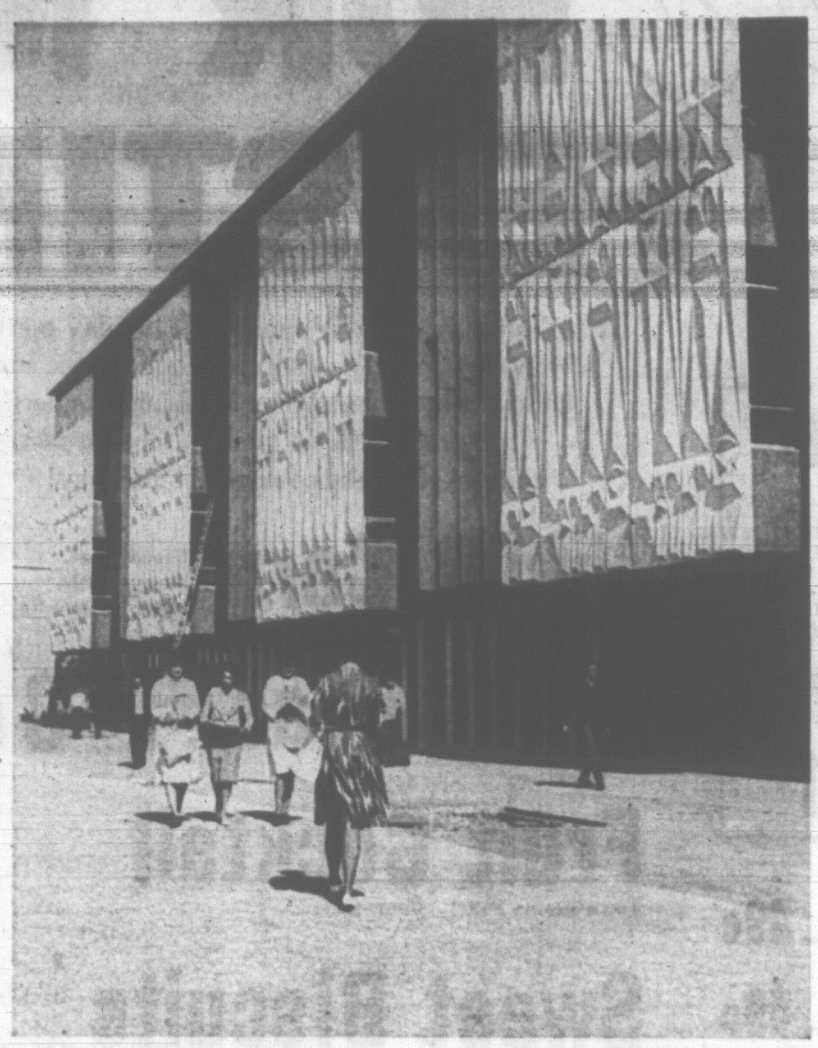

In Canada generally, only 7 per cent of the population is aged over 65. But in this region the total is far greater—about 16 per cent and as high as 21 per cent in some sections, such as Oak Bay.

Steady Income

There are unofficial estimates voiced that 500 couples a year come here to retire on assured incomes.

Almost any day downtown you can see something of the purchasing power they represent. Shopping seems to be a major occupation for many of our retired population. As Mr. Roberts says, we should measure this activity.

In 1960 the total value of retail sales in B.C. was $1.66 billion. Last year this had climbed to $1.87 billion. It was established that 15 per cent of the total sales were made by department stores. No figures were available for Victoria, but the creation of two new department stores in this area recently, speaks for itself.

MODERN STYLING of the new University of Victoria is symbolic of district progress. But more than that, the university plant is a new stable industry for the capital region, one which contributes $10 million a year to the local economy. Its expansion is assured.

The new university plant with its 2,500 students is an easier source of revenue to measure.

University president Dr. Malcolm Taylor told Rotarians here last month that the university had operational costs of $4 million—which were returned to the district in purchase of homes, clothing, groceries and the payment of taxes.

Capital expenditures of $1.5 million in the same period benefitted builders, suppliers and workmen. He estimated the students spend $600 each for books, clothes, meals and recreation annually.

And parents who no longer have to send their sons and daughters to other centres for schooling, save an average of $1,500 per year per student, which they would have paid for room, board and travel.

The grand total for the one year amounts to something close to $10 million in new or conserved money in Greater Victoria.

As the university expands, this could well become a solid mainstay of the community economy.

REPORT DUE IN FEBRUARY

Study of Aged Completed

OTTAWA (CP) — A special committee of the Senate has completed an exhaustive study of the problems faced by Canada's growing numbers of aged citizens.

The committee began its study Oct. 17, 1963. It held 31 meetings and heard submissions from 47 organizations representing a cross-section of Canadian life.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), committee chairman, said today the study showed the most serious problems facing the aged are lack of adequate incomes, housing, health services and recreation.

However, he said the study also has shown that many aged Canadians are not aware of services provided by all levels of government and by welfare and service organizations.

Senator Croll said committee staff now is co-ordinating views expressed in the 2,000 pages of evidence taken during the hearings.

He expects the committee will be in a position by mid-February to make recommendations to the Senate.

The committee heard oral representations from six provincial governments and received briefs from three others. The only province which did not present its views was Ontario.

New Driveways Out for Route

The full length of the Trans-Canada Highway — from the Victoria city limits to Nanaimo—was declared a controlled access highway Tuesday by the provincial cabinet.

The order in council invokes regulations prohibiting new driveways leading onto the highway without departmental approval. A similar order already covers the Patricia Bay Highway.

ISRAEL SEEKS CHIEF AS PREMIER RESIGNS

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Israel's ruling Mapai Party meets today and Thursday to discuss candidates as possible successors to Premier Levi Eshkol. He resigned Monday in dispute with former premier David Ben-Gurion.

Most observers expected Eshkol will be named to succeed himself by President Zolman S. Shazar.

Under Israeli law, the president calls the heads of the major parties to listen to their proposals for a new government.

The Mapai Party is the leading party in the government coalition.

Ben-Gurion, 78 has demanded that a full judicial inquiry be held in the 10-year-old Lavon affair, a 1954 "security mishap" believed to involve an abortive espionage mission.

Eshkol objected to the inquiry, saying it would cause more harm than good, and that there was no basis for it according to evidence on hand.

. . . LEAF FLAG

flag and replace it with a design incorporating "appropriate symbols of the founding peoples of this nation."

The motion might reach a vote today.

The motion recalled the argument advanced repeatedly by Conservatives in the Commons debate that a Canadian flag ought to include both the Union Jack and the Fleur-de-Lis.

Senator O'Leary stressed that he was not arguing for retention of the Canadian Red Ensign or for a national flag plebiscite, favorite topics of conservative MPs.

But a flag without the symbols of the past was no flag at all and "I for one refuse to believe that the majority of the people of Quebec want to tear the last vestige of the Union Jack symbol from the Canadian flag."

TORIES ABOUND

Although Conservative senators have insisted they do not intend to filibuster the flag resolution, observers noted that 31 of the 33 Conservative members of the upper chamber were present for Tuesday's opening of the Senate flag debate. Most of the Liberals also were in attendance.

While the Senate was enjoying one of its rare moments in the spotlight, the Commons launched its new flag argument with another verbal sparring match Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

It came after Hugh John Flemming (PC — Victoria, Carleton) moved an amendment to the committee report to provide that the Red Ensign, not the Union Jack, be the

Mr. Pearson said the idea is to have a symbol associated with the Queen as head of the Commonwealth.

'AN AUTHORITY'

"Therefore, what could be more appropriate for this purpose than the royal unit flag, (Union Jack) which is the Queen's flag?"

"Completely specious," Mr. Diefenbaker interjected.

"My honorable friend is an authority on specious arguments," Mr. Pearson shot back.

Referring to the Red Ensign amendment, Mr. Pearson asked:

"How can we have a Canadian national flag, and a former Canadian national flag as the one emblematic of our association with the commonwealth?"

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister had made "a series of statements that are historically unsound."

Mr. Pearson said that if Mr. Diefenbaker "will just contain himself for about two minutes he will be able to get up on his feet and give me a lecture in history."

Both men then got into a hassle over questions of privilege, their anger mounting.

Later, H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said he would back the Red Ensign amendment, along with some of his colleagues.

Bribe Probe Gets Tale Of Blackmail, Slander

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified Tuesday he was subjected last summer to Liberal politcal pressure, bribery attempts, blackmail and slanderous rumors by persons seeking the release of a narcotics suspect linked to the dreaded Mafia.

Appearing at the opening session of the Dorion judicial inquiry, he said he was pestered for two months to drop his opposition to legal moves aimed at freeing Lucien Rivard on bail from Bordeaux jail in Montreal.

Mr. Lamontagne, 29, of Montreal has been acting for the United States government for six months, trying to obtain Rivard's extradition so that he can be tried in Laredo, Texas, on charges of smuggling heroin for a Mafia-ruled dope ring.

Allegations

In 2½ hours of testimony in French before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court, Mr. Lamontage made the following allegations:

1. That Raymond Denis, 31-year-old Montreal lawyer, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay and an "excellent friend" of his, offered him a $20,000 bribe July 14 if he would stop fighting Rivard's application for release on bail.

2. That Mr. Denis described Rivard, 48-year-old owner of a Montreal summer resort, as a "good friend of the Liberal party" who had contributed campaign funds in the past and would be needed in the next federal election.

3. That Guy Rouleau, 41-year-old chairman of the Liberal caucus and former parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, telephoned him Aug. 11 and 12 asking him to help obtain Rivard's release as a favor.

4. That Mr. Rouleau said the Liberal party had treated Mr. Lamontagne well and was displeased with his continued opposition to the Rivard bail application; that the MP and his brother Raymond were ready to guarantee that Rivard would not skip bail.

5. That telephone callers identifying themselves as Guy Lord and Andre Letendre, respectively former and present executive assistants to Justice Minister Favreau, told him Aug. 4 and 11 that the minister was unhappy with his opposition to bail and implied they would cut off further government work for him.

(Mr. Lamontagne said he didn't know Mr. Lord nor Mr. Letendre and that the calls could have been placed by impostors. He had learned later that Mr. Favreau knew nothing about the two calls at the time.)

6. That Raymond Daoust, a prominent Montreal criminal lawyer who was representing Rivard, called him July 21 at his parents' cottage near Chicoutimi and said he understood bail for his client had been "fixed;" that he seemed to know about Mr. Denis' bribe offer.

7. That a man identifying himself as Bob Gingras called him twice the same night to ask why he still refused to "co-operate" when bail for Rivard had been "fixed;" that this man said he knew something about a trip Mr. Lamontage had made that he wouldn't want his wife to know.

8. That false rumors swept Montreal legal circles in August that he had accepted a $10,000 bribe in return for helping Rivard go free.

Looking haggard and speaking softly, Mr. Lamontagne said he was increasingly worried that Rivard would disappear if he were granted bail and gave the RCMP a written statement Aug. 14 about all the pressures he had been subject to.

(Mr. Favreau told the Commons last month he ordered an investigation into the matter and decided Sept. 18 that the RCMP had not turned up enough evidence to warrant prosecutions. The opposition accused him of making a serious error of judgment and the government set up the judicial inquiry.

Still In Jail

(Rivard still is in Bordeaux jail awaiting a hearing set for Friday into his writ of habeas corpus. He was arrested June 19 and ordered extradited to the U.S. Sept. 15 at the request of the American government.)

Mr. Lamontagne said he was retained by the U.S. justice department June 16. An American official had instructed him to oppose bail.

Mr. Daoust opposed extradition and the hearing was adjourned several times. On July 14, Mr. Lamontagne received a call from Mr. Denis who wished to see him immediately in Ottawa to discuss confidential matters.

The lawyer met Mr. Denis in the Commons office of the immigration minister, who left shortly afterward.

Mr. Denis said he had been asked by four persons to tell Mr. Lamontagne that if he agreed to Rivard's application for bail he would receive $10,000 the next day at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, plus another $10,000 after Rivard's release.

Mr. Lamontagne asked who the four persons were. Mr. Denis mentioned a certain Gelinas and declined to name the three others.

Not Reported

He did not report the bribe attempt to the authorities immediately because it had come in a confidential conversation, he did not want to cause trouble for Denis and, since he had not accepted the bribe, the extradition hearings would proceed as before.

After two threatening calls July 21 from a man calling himself Bob Gingras, Mr. Lamontagne called Mr. Denis in Ottawa and told him: "Tell your boys to leave me alone or I will go to the RCMP."

On Aug. 4 Mr. Lamontagne received in the mail a copy of a formal bail application for Rivard over the names of Mr. Daoust and Joseph Cohen, another lawyer representing Rivard.

Also on Aug. 4 the man calling himself Guy Lord called and asked why Mr. Lamontagne was ignoring his instructions from Ottawa and blocking Rivard's bail. Mr. Lamontagne replied that he took his instructions in the case from the U.S. government, not Ottawa.

On Aug. 11 Mr. Lamontagne had a long conversation with an Inspector Carriere of the RCMP. Later that day a man calling himself Andre Letendre called and said Mr. Favreau was dissatisfied with his handling of the Rivard case.

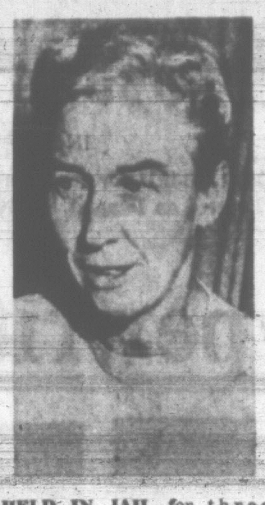

Statement

On Aug. 14 Mr. Lamontagne gave the RCMP a detailed written statement about his allegations.

Mr. Lamontagne said that on Aug. 20, with the RCMP listening in to the conversation by his and their arrangement, he telephoned Denis in Ottawa.

He had pleaded with Denis to co-operate with the RCMP and identify to the police the person or persons who had approached him concerning a bribe offer.

He quoted Denis as saying the name of the person wouldn't be given to the RCMP but only to Mr. Favreau.

Three-Token Rule Poses Box Problem

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's transit division said Tuesday the recent ruling by the Public Utilities Commission granting fare increases has posed a serious problem to transit facilities.

The commission ordered metal tokens accepted for three fares — adults, students and children.

But the expensive electronic counting machines and bus fare boxes used in Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria are designed to handle only two types of tokens, although they can handle all coin denominations.

"We are going to have to go back to the PUC for direction," the spokesman said. "We can't scrap the machines. Possibly a token and a coin could be used for one class of fare."

The only tokens used by the company now are students' tokens, slightly larger than a 10-cent piece.

Over 250 Killed In Sudan Riots

KHARTOUM (UPI)—Between 250 and 500 persons were killed, some by beheading, during two days of Sudanese riots, reliable sources reported today.

The government had said only 40 persons died.

The rioting occurred Dec. 6 and 7.

IN U.K. PRESS

Sour Comments Greet Flag Vote

LONDON (UPI) — There were sour comments in the British press today on the vote in the House of Commons in Ottawa for the new Canadian flag.

The Daily Telegraph, in a leading editorial, said: "One of the advantages that distinguish a constitutional monarchy from other systems of loyalty are focused on a symbol which is not an abstraction but a living person who can typify the human values that lie within and beyond the mechanism of politics.

"In Canada, as was shown on the Queen's recent visit, this system of symbolism is in danger of breaking down. As Queen of Canada she embodies its national unity; and therefore separatist Quebec, though without malice towards her person, gave her an icy reception.

"As head of the Commonwealth, she stands for the unity of that larger brotherhood, which from the days of Mackenzie King has been somewhat distrusted as containing a threat to Canada's untrammelled independence.

"So Mackenzie King's disciple, the present prime minister, Mr. Lester Pearson, setting out to flaunt Canada's nationhood before the Commonwealth and the world, chose to proclaim it not through the crown but through the adoption of a new flag. The result has been 32 days of bitter debate . . ."

The Edinburgh Scotsman commented: "On the thirty-third day of debate and after more than 250 speeches, Mr. Lester Pearson's new Canadian flag has at last reached half-mast.

"Summing up in this contentious debate, Mr. Pearson hoped that 'Canada can go forward as a strong and united country with this flag as its emblem.' Perhaps; but the flag will not do as much uniting as he hoped when he first suggested the change earlier this year . . .

"The French-speaking people of Quebec may originally have been impressed, a bit, by Mr. Pearson's gesture; but the prolonged and somewhat hysterical protest from certain English-speaking groups, taken up by Mr. Diefenbaker, has had a divisive effect."

Jamaica Possible B.C. Market

Jamaicans may not know precisely where British Columbia is but they would love to trade with us, a Victoria MLA learned last month.

Waldo Skillings described his recent visit to the island as a Canadian delegate to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting in an address to the Victoria Social Credit Constituency Association this week.

Mr. Skillings suggested at the CPA session that Jamaica and B.C. might exchange trade missions to see if mutually profitable business was possible.

"The idea that B.C. would even consider this was taken very favorably," he said in an interview.

3,000 MILES AWAY

"They already have a considerable trade with Nova Scotia but it's surprising how few of them realize that B.C. is 3,000 miles beyond Nova Scotia."

However, Mr. Skillings said he felt his suggestion planted a seed "that only time will tell if it will take root."

Mr. Skillings said 180 persons from all parts of the Commonwealth attended the meetings "and we had a really wonderful time, touring the islands and discussing items of interest to citizens of the Commonwealth."

He said one of the points of interest to him was a visit to the Alcan properties in Jamaica where 60 per cent of the raw product for Kitimat's refineries originates.

He added that the CPA will hold its 1967 session in Canada and the group likely will tour numerous Canadian cities.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1964—PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

Once in New York's Central Park zoo, I watched a gorilla take a large, succulent head of lettuce and deal with it after the dainty fashion of his tribe.

It was plain immediately that his black-aised majesty from the rain forests of Africa had no use for the scuffed and wilted outer leaves.

These he peeled off delicately with one hand or paw, clutching the lettuce head in a hind hand or paw, until he had prepared for himself a crisp, slug-free and unflawed tidbit.

The gorilla mashed this into a salad, which he devoured delicately but with obvious relish.

His repast concluded, the noble beast got up and scratched, trampling the while on the discarded lettuce leaves.

And, this, bus-users all, seems to me remarkably like what's happening to the power complex we once knew as the B.C. Electric, of which the urban transit system is a scuffed and wilted, but integral part.

★ ★ ★

Studying those atrocious fare raises handed down by B.C. Public Utilities Commission, I think we can assume that the initial phase in the jettisoning by the provincial government of its unprofitable city bus services is almost complete.

For the sake of parents of bus-dependent school children and our pensioners, we can only hope the pill is to be eased in a sugar coating of reduced fares for the young and the old.

It will surprise me not at all if some such concession isn't offered before the PUC ruling becomes effective.

("There, you see? That didn't taste so bad after all!")

★ ★ ★

In any case, we may as well accept the fact that another hole will soon be added to the pockets Social Credit purports to keep stuffing for us with goodies.

But we don't have to like this latest government ploy, which smacks to me of a cynicism we have grown rather too familiar with in these years of the five per cent sales tax and blacktop where it shows.

In fairness to our present government, not all that it acquired when it undertook to provincialize the B.C. Electric was buckshee. Public transit had for long been a recognized loss leader.

The cynicism lies in government's refusal to continue transit honestly at a loss. These fare raises serve no truly useful purpose.

They will not boost the transit operation out of the red. Here in Victoria, I see it as unlikely that they will improve maintenance or tighten schedules which keep patrons on at least one suburban line waiting an hour between buses.

What those long-fanged fares just might do, however, is provide an inducement which would make public transport, the discarded leaves of the hydro lettuce, more palatable to the municipalities that must eventually take it over.

★ ★ ★

Social Credit, we are assured by its supporters, is to be with us for a sum of years measured only by each speaker's optimism.

For myself, I believe Mr. Bennett will retain the premier's chair at least until our provincial Liberals have healed the wounds of wartime coalition.

But in the end (and for our children's sake, may it not be too long coming!) I think this cynical giving with one hand, and snatching from us with the other a sum larger than the "gift," will lay its practitioners low.

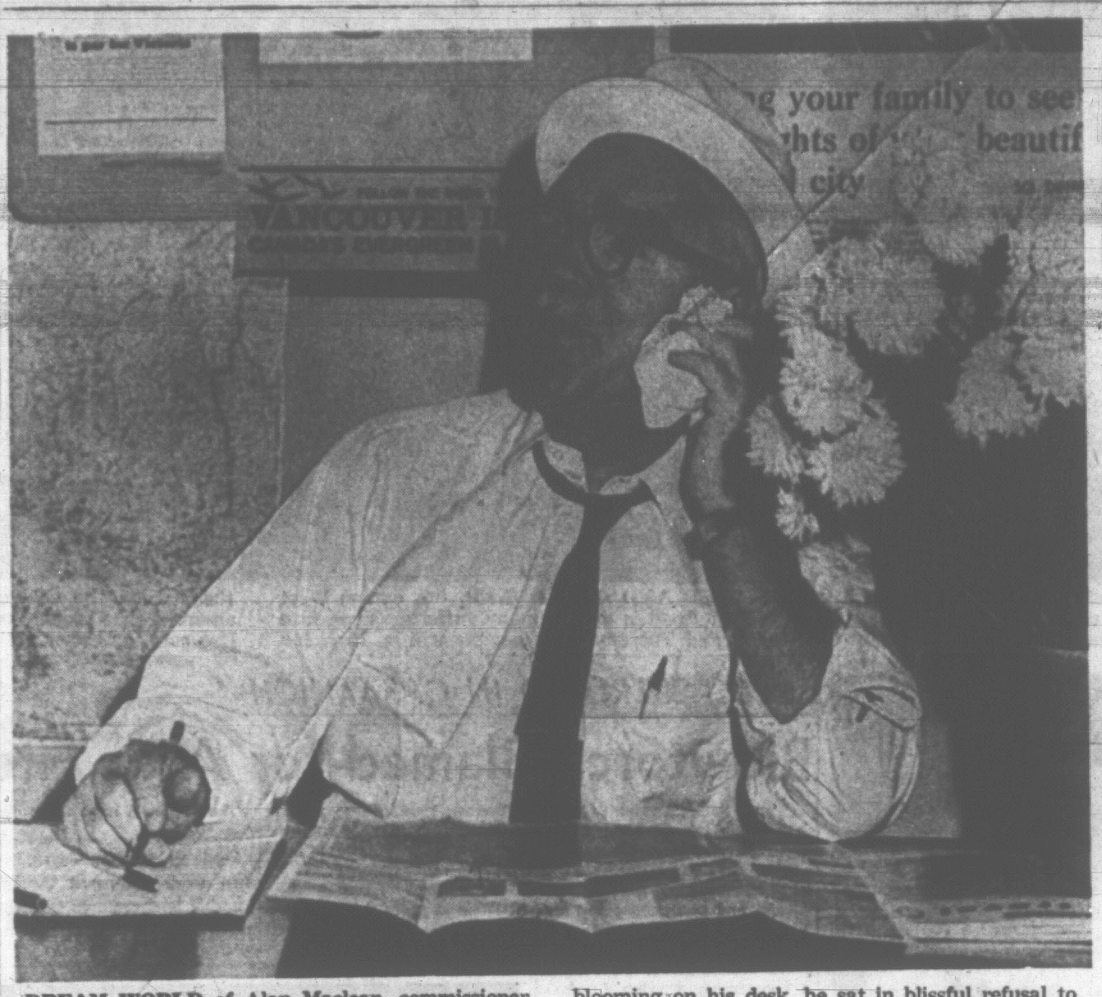

Meanwhile, in this remarkable government's attempt to out-socialize the Socialists, whose lettuce will the paw next reach for?

Mail Delivery Takes Holiday

DREAM WORLD of Alan Maclean, commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, was undisturbed today by wind, snow and low temperature. In straw hat and shirt sleeves, with a bouquet blooming on his desk, he sat in blissful refusal to accept weather reports, writing to tourists and coaxing them to come here for the "mild season". It takes a dedicated man . . . (Robin Clarke photo.)

(COLD) MOMENTS TO REMEMBER

Mackie Victim of Own Prediction

Weatherman Bill Mackie was late for work today.

His car was a victim of the weather.

Friends said it was poetic justice.

Mr. Mackie said, "It was supposed to be a new battery, but . . ."

Most important part of Centennial Square carpark construction job was shut down by icy weather today.

Machinery of Sedco Drilling Company was frozen, idling a two-month job of drilling 74 feet to bedrock that will support reinforced concrete caissons for the structure on Fisgard Street.

There was also a certain satisfaction for passersby who noticed a car abandoned in Saanich when it ran into cold weather problems.

Not only was it abandoned, but some later car lurched into it.

Normally, we'd feel sorrier, but this car was wearing Manitoba plates. And today we are up to our ears in knowing Prairie drivers who tell us how we should drive, how to keep our houses warm, how to thaw our pipes.

Then they say, "Cold, this isn't cold. Why I can remember, back in Saskabush, etc., etc., etc.

Residents of various waterfront areas phoned in to say the sea was steaming this morning. And it was. For once the air was colder than the water, and even in summer, that's cold.

B.C. Ferries all were operating today but there was some seasick passengers reported Tuesday night.

Tuesday, winds gusting up to 70 miles an hour disrupted some schedules. The Crofton-Vesuvius ferry couldn't make her morning trip.

The Queen of The Islands was forced to bring Gulf Islands traffic here for transshipment to the mainland on the larger Queen vessels. Two windows were broken aboard.

Freezing weather forced one soft drink bottling company to suspend deliveries today.

"It's just impossible," said a spokesman. "In half an hour our loads are frozen and the bottles breaking."

Another distributor managed to maintain deliveries but trucks had to be covered with tarpaulins.

"It's getting a little tough," he said.

Prairie dwellers visiting here are chortling over Victoria's much-advertised "mild season."

"Brrrrr it's colder than when we left Regina," said Victor Stanshell, one of some 20 Prairie guests at Hotel Douglas. "I suppose you'll say we brought it with us."

"It's not what we expected but we feel right at home," chuckled William Crawford, also from Regina.

Ken King, manager of the hotel, says 15 more Prairie visitors are expected this week.

"I've heard no complaints about the weather," he said. "They just joke about it."

Victoria lawyer Ray T. Bryant has been appointed new returning officer for the Victoria federal riding.

Appointment was announced Tuesday by the federal cabinet.

He succeeds Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre who recently resigned.

At 27, he is the youngest federal returning officer ever appointed in Victoria and probably the youngest in Canada.

He was called to the bar in May, 1963, and is currently practising law with T. P. O'Grady.

BONNER ON HIGHWAY POLICE

Patrols Costly, Confusing

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a provincial highway patrol to replace present RCMP traffic squads would cost more, be less efficient and confuse the public.

The suggestion of a provincial patrol was raised by Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday. He has raised it before and Mr. Bonner has shot it down before.

Taking time for a comprehensive reply to the suggestion, Mr. Bonner emphasized he was not aware of any discussions going on that might lead to a provincial highway patrol.

Although it is true that some states in the U.S. maintain highway patrols, he said it has never been considered suitable for B.C.—apart from a "courtesy patrol to assist traffic on certain bridges" that was operated by the defunct toll authority.

Mr. Bonner said the arrangement with the RCMP for patrolling B.C. highways "is both efficient and economical to this province.

"First, it is more efficient because these patrols not only look after traffic but also are available to the detachments for general police duties.

"Second, it is more economic from the province's point of view because the cost is shared with the federal government on a 60-40 basis which is a financial arrangement that can't be matched by a B.C. highway patrol.

"From the standpoint of the public too, it would be better to avoid the confusion that would arise from having two police forces in operation in the province.

Freeze Destroys Late Farm Crops

Farmers Battle Wind To Salvage Plants

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The late vegetable crop in Saanich was practically wiped out overnight by freezing temperatures and penetrating winds.

Some damage was also caused to ornamental greenhouse plants and rooted vegetables kept in storage for sale during the late winter months.

William Mattick, Cordova Bay grower, said freezing temperatures ruined between 40 and 50 tons of turnips in the ground.

Cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and cabbages were also hard hit by the frost, he said.

"It was the wind which caused the real damage," he said. "It enabled the cold to penetrate deep into the ground."

The growing season for late winter crops, he said, generally ends around Jan. 7.

Geoff Vantreight, Gordon Head grower, reported losing several acres of cabbages and cauliflower.

"Luckily most of the crop was out of the ground," he said.

He was able to keep temperatures up in his extensive greenhouse operations and save his ornamental flowers from frost damage.

'TOUCH AND GO'

"But it was touch and go," he said. "We were just able to maintain sufficient heat. I understand some operators were unable to do so."

Leslie Smith, Patricia Bay highway greenhouse nurseryman, reported slight damage to his poinsettas grown for the Christmas trade. But other nurserymen in North Saanich with less extensive heating systems are believed to have suffered considerable losses.

Most of the nurserymen and farmers with crops in storage were up all night "keeping the fires burning" in their greenhouses or storage sheds.

Tom Michell, Island View Road farmer, said he had to keep vigil in his storage shed where tons of potatoes are in storage.

"I'm afraid farmers who didn't have adequate heating systems in their storage sheds are out," he said. "It was a battle to keep the temperature up."

FEAR TONIGHT

But what most farmers and nurserymen are more concerned today about is the possibility of lower temperatures tonight.

"If the temperature drops a few more degrees tonight I don't know how we will be able to maintain adequate heat in our greenhouses, especially if there is wind," said one grower.

Farmers also report extensive damage to water pipe lines.

Council Asked To 'Ground' High-Rise

The proposed 12-storey apartment block south of the White House on Beach Drive may never get off the ground.

Oak Bay zoning and planning committee Tuesday night recommended against the by-law permitting relaxation of setback allowances.

It also recommended the building be restricted to a maximum of 60 feet, and the setback allowances in front should be 18 inches for each foot in height, one foot for each foot in height at the sides, and a minimum of 125 feet at the rear.

Owner of the property, Gordon Lovitt, said such restrictions were ridiculous, and he referred to the recommendations as a "discriminating by-law pertaining to Lovitt."

The proposed building would have produced $24,000 a year in revenue for the municipality. Now, Mr. Lovitt said he is doubtful if the land is even saleable with such restrictions.

"They must want me to donate it to them," said the builder.

With such restrictions they might as well pass a bylaw saying no more apartments in Oak Bay, said Mr. Lovitt.

Deputy Checks Dismissal Of Jail Guard

Allegation that a guard at the Wilkinson Road Provincial Jail was fired for suggesting improvements will be checked by deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy.

He said he would ask provincial director of corrections, Rocksborough Smith, for a report of his investigation into the claim made by R. E. Douglass, 2633 Cadboro Bay Road.

Mr. Douglass claimed he was fired Friday, one hour after submitting a report passing on 10 improvements suggested by prisoners. He was hired as a temporary guard six weeks earlier.

Mr. Smith said he would look into the matter although hiring and firing of temporary officers did not normally come before him.

'BALDERDASH'

"Nobody would be released from service for giving good advice—that's just balderdash," he said.

"... of our officers—whether temporary or permanent—who come forward with good suggestions are not going to be let out."

"These are the kind of people we want."

Mr. Douglass, who is 40 and father of four children, said his recommendations included:

A plea for more work or activities to reduce prisoners' idle time; more sports, concerts, movies and television time; a reading room for correspondence students; permission for prisoners to engage in hobbies or have musical instruments; an inmates' committee to provide liaison with prison officials; and a Roman Catholic padre as well as an Anglican one for Sunday services.

"The idea of the whole thing is supposed to be rehabilitation," he said.

"There are some there who keep going back but there are also a lot of 17 and 18-year-olds who I think can be helped to become useful citizens if they are put on the right track."

Eclipse On View Friday

A total eclipse of the moon should be visible throughout B.C. Friday night.

Such an eclipse occurs about once a year on the average, said a spokesman at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

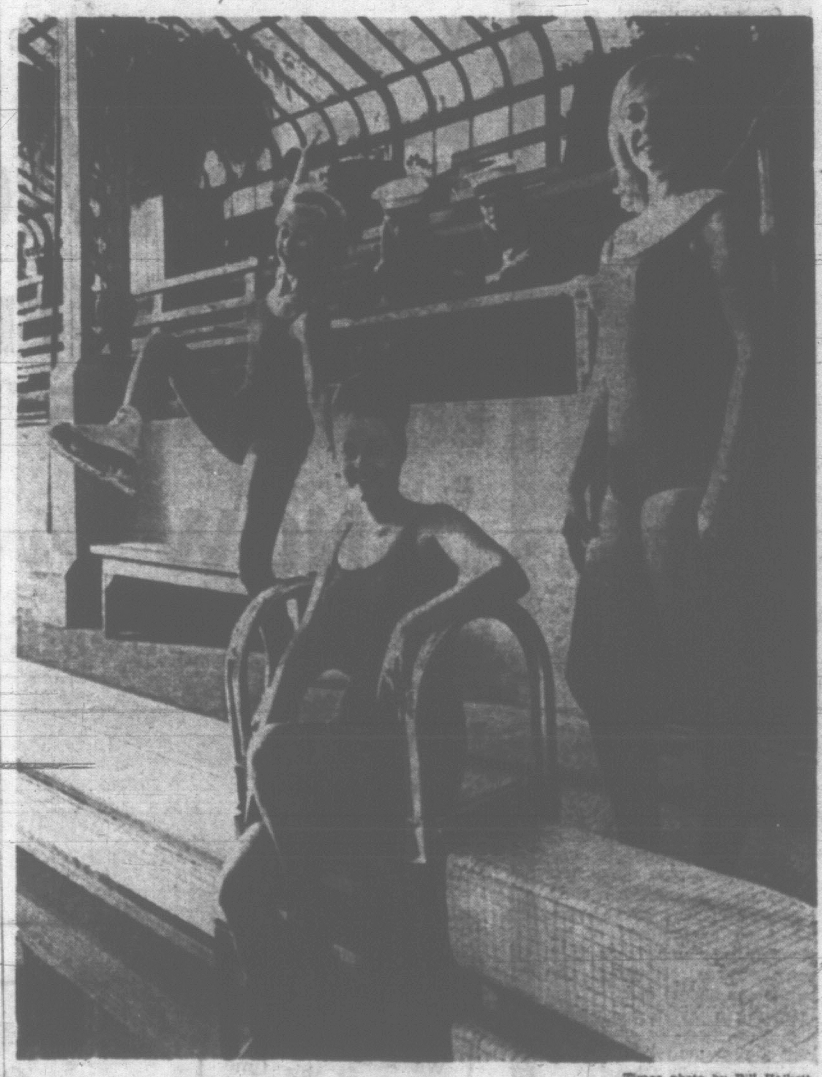

The total eclipse will be between 6:08 p.m. and 7:08 p.m. but the eclipse will begin about 5 p.m.

The eclipse is caused by the moon entering the shadow cast by the sun shining on the earth.

What the moon will look like during the eclipse will depend on atmospheric conditions.

Sometimes the moon turns to a copper-red color but if the sky is clear, the moon will be quite bright.

No special attention is being paid by the observatory because the eclipse is fairly common and not in its line of special interest, the spokesman said.

Pension Launch Likely To Bring Price Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian prices and labor costs could be expected to rise by about one per cent with the launching of the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, says a government economic report.

The report, last major piece of documentation on the proposal, was outlined to the parliamentary pensions committee Tuesday by R. B. Bryce, deputy finance minister. It goes much deeper than the government white paper published last summer.

These are the major conclusions of the study:

Overall economic effects of the pension plan on the relationships between the business, consumer and government sectors of the economy "are on a scale which is modest."

COST ESTIMATE

"The beginning of the pension system probably would give rise to modest price increases, "perhaps of the order of one per cent," but it "should not distort significantly the structure of costs or prices or seriously impair the capability of businesses to generate new funds for replacement or expansion."

Employers, required to contribute to the plan, would see their labor costs go up by "something in the order of one per cent" but "this should not seriously impair the ability of Canadian business to compete with producers outside of Canada."

Mr. Bryce said that in order to avoid minimizing the economic effects, the study was based on the actuary's "high cost" estimates, which are based on assumptions of low immigration and low birth rates. These estimates also assume an annual four per cent increase in average earnings and price increases of 1½ per cent a year until 1975 and two per cent annually thereafter.

SHED DESTROYED IN C. SAANICH

Blowtorch Blamed for Attic Fire

Central Saanich volunteer firemen fought two fires this morning—one right after the other.

The first fire destroyed a large shed which served as a garage and pumphouse for Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Pidgeon, 8098 East Saanich Road.

The second gutted the attic of a two-storey wooden frame house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred McLeod, 1159 Clark Road.

Cause of the shed blaze is unkown but faulty wiring is suspected.

Loss was estimated by Mrs. Pidgeon at "between $1,500 and $2,000."

"We lost everything that was in there—our fuel supply, tools and fishing equipment," she said.

Because the pump was destroyed, the Pidgeons and their next door tenants are also without water.

The house fire was blamed on Mr. McLeod's attempts to thaw frozen pipes in his attic with a blow torch.

Firemen managed to contain the fire to the attic although the rest of the house suffered considerable water damage.

No damage estimate was available at press time but firemen said the house can be lived in.

The McLeods have three children.

While fighting the blazes, firemen were hampered by subfreezing temperatures which almost caused their water pump to freeze up.

Racquet Club Plans $370,000 Complex

Plans to build a new club at a cost of approximately $370,000 were outlined at the annual meeting of Victoria Racquet Club by president Andy Pitkethley.

Pitkethley also disclosed that Canada Safeway Ltd. had made an offer of $280,000 for the present club premises at Fort and Foul Bay Road, conditional on rezoning of the land for commercial use and occupancy by the spring of 1966.

Proposed site of the new club is at Hillside and Shelbourne and the cost included land, building, furnishings and equipment. Difference between the price received and for the old premises and cost of acquiring the new would be about $110,000 after paying off some $20,000 owed by the club.

The new plant would contain nine grass courts and six hard courts for tennis, five badminton courts, two squash courts, swimming pool and complete club house facilities. The estimated cost of $370,000 had been submitted by Dominion Construction Company, Pitkethley said, but no commitment has been made by the club either on new premises or sale of the old. Any decision would be up to the membership and would be voted on at an extraordinary general meeting.

Pitkethley was re-elected president for his fourth term of office at the directors' meeting following the general meeting. Elected to the board of directors were George Evans, Jim Wells, Doug Willis, Herbert Matthews and Pitkethley.

SOVIET SECOND STRING TOPPLES TOLEDO TEAM

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A second-string Russian hockey team scored three goals in the third period to defeat Toledo Blades of the International Hockey League 5-3 Tuesday night.

Valeri Nikitin tied the score 3-3, then Alex Inov and Yasile Adrchev clinched the victory.

Russia's Eugen Mishakov scored in the first period and Yuray Galov in the second.

Don Westbrook counted once for the Blades and Greg Jablonski twice.

This Russian team—the first string aggregation is playing exhibitions in Canada—plays at Muskegon, Mich., tonight.

Lakehead All-Stars Hold Russia to Tie

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The superiority of Russia's national hockey team evident in the first two games of their current exhibition tour of Canada faltered Tuesday night as they were held to a 3-3 tie by the Lakehead Senior All-Stars.

The All-Stars, made up of players from the Thunder Bay Senior League, were augmented by four players from the Thunder Bay Junior League and held only one practice before the game. The juniors were obtained Monday night and had not played with their teammates before going on the ice.

Two of the juniors, Bob Munro and Murray Smith of Fort William Canadiens, were instrumental in the tie—scoring during the final two minutes of play as the All-Stars trailed 3-1.

Appeared Erratic

In the first period the Russians appeared erratic and placed noticeable emphasis on 1-0 lead on a goal by Roger Sawicki at the 17-second mark. It was the first shot of the game. Outshooting the All-Stars 7-3 in the second period, the Russians managed only one goal.

Alexander Alatov, Veniamin Alexandrov and Konstatin Loktev scored for Russia.

In the third period with the score tied 1-1 the Russians mounted a fierce attack but poor shooting and the outstanding goaltending of Joey Bamford held them to two goals. Bamford made 13 stops in the final frame while his Russian counterpart, Victor Kornavalenko, allowed two goals and blocked only one shot.

Throughout the game, played before 4,500 fans, the Russians held a territorial edge on the Lakehead team.

Anatoli Tarasov, the usually-outspoken coach of the Russians, disappeared immediately the game ended. He spent most of the game behind his players bench with a notebook in his hand.

Coach Disappointed

Chief coach Arkadi Chernichev, through an interpreter, said the Russian team played vastly superior hockey in the first two games of the tour and he was "most disappointed with the way we played." The Russians defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens 3 - 2 Friday and drubbed Canada's national team 4-0 Sunday at Toronto.

Barton Bradley, 36-year-old coach of the All-Stars, credited his team's showing to the way they followed his instructions.

"I told the boys to play position and they did," he said.

The Russian team moves to Winnipeg today where they are scheduled to meet Canada's national team Thursday for the second time. Both national teams will meet again in Winnipeg Dec. 20 after the Russians meet Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior League Friday at Saskatoon.

NATIONAL COACH SAYS:

Staff Stirring 'Bad Publicity'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Stafford Smythe must be kidding with his suggestion to pit the National Hockey League old-timers against Czechoslovakia, coach Gordon Simpson of Canada's national hockey team said today.

"The NHL old-timers would get a shock from the Czechs," Simpson said.

Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, said he would ask the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to allow the old-timers instead of the national team to meet Czechoslovakia at the Gardens Jan. 10.

If the CAHA refuses the switch, Smythe said he would have to consider calling off the Canada-Czechoslovakia game and refunding ticket money. He criticized the quality of the Canadian team, which lost 4-0 to Russia in Toronto Sunday.

STAFFORD SMYTHE

'BEST OLD MEN'

"If the CAHA are going to send old men into these games then let them send the best old men—and that's the NHL old-timers," Smythe said.

Simpson said Smythe is stirring up a lot of bad publicity. If he does not appreciate good hockey the game can be played in Winnipeg.

"It would cost us less," he said.

Simpson said he did not hear an explanation from Smythe when his club, the Maple Leafs, were beaten 11-0 by Boston last year.

"I think he allowed the Leafs to use the building after that," Simpson said.

He said the NHL old-timers were good in their day but they would be unable to stay with Czechoslovakia or Russia for 60 minutes.

Coaching Aces Owe Debt To Paul Brown

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

BUFFALO, N.Y.—Every morning in La Jolla, Calif, when the sun shines, and it invariably does in that balmy haven by the sea, a thin-lipped man, bald on top, stands on the first tee and methodically sights down the fairway.

PAUL BROWN

He plays a neat, compact game of golf, because that's the kind of man Paul Brown is.

But his mind is on football, because this is the time of year when Paul Brown used to think about preparing his team for a championship game.

It has been only two seasons since Paul was officially divorced from running the Cleveland Browns—a time tinged with bitterness because it became popular to depict him as a fusty despot who had gotten behind the times. Poet laureate of the iconclasts is his former fullback, Jimmy Brown, who got all his gripes Off His Chest in the book of the same name.

Now P. B.—as aides like Dick Gallagher used to call him—opens the paper when he comes in from a day on the links and what does he see?

Don Shula, who got his start in pro ball as a player under Brown, has coached Baltimore to a Western Division title in the National Football League.

Blanton Collier, whom he plucked off a fence at Great Lakes during the Second World War, has Cleveland winning the east.

Lou Saban, who was Brown's first team captain in pro ball, has Buffalo out front with an 11-2 record in the Eastern Division of the American Football League.

'None of Those Guys Knew Football'

Sid Gillman who was very close to Brown during his college coaching days at Cincinnati and copied his practice procedures, has the west title at San Diego. Chuck Noll, one of P.B.'s brightest students at Cleveland, is Gillman's assistant coach.

And finally, Ara Parseghian, who admits he learned from Brown as a player, wove his magic to bring Notre Dame to within 95 seconds of a national championship.

"None of those guys can say they knew football before they were exposed to P.B.," says Gallagher, who has made good himself as the general manager of the successful Bills. "He was the best organizer that has ever coached football. He made it the highly organized game you see today, with coaching staffs that work the year 'round and detailed practices timed to the split second.

"When I first left him to coach at Santa Clara, I copied everything he did, from routine warmups to his practice drill breakdowns."

Changed the Game From Hit-Or-Miss

This emulation of Brown now shows up in the four outstanding teams in professional football and the tops in the college ranks. Another Brown disciple, Weeb Ewbank, is in the midst of a fine reclamation job with the New York Jets.

"He changed pro football from hit-or-miss," says Weeb, "to what you see today."

And as for the critics?

"Players are like children," says Weeb. "You can never satisfy them, and they don't start appreciating you until they get older."

"Jimmy Brown," snaps Gallagher, "is the only guy who played for Paul Brown who did not co-operate with him in practice sessions during the 10 years I was with him. And I signed Jim Brown for Cleveland.

At 56, Paul is not quite in the retirement groove. He has indulged in such fancies as a trip to the Olympic Games in Tokyo. He also collects a salary from the Browns and exercises stock options which can run his ownership up to 8 per cent by the time his contract runs out. In today's market, that might be worth a cool million.

All ex-coaches should have it so good.

ALL-STAR SQUAD

Winners meet in the tourney final at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 30 following the consolation game between first night losers at 7.

Chinooks next regular league game is against Alberni here on Jan. 2.

Three Chinooks were named to the Junior League all-star team.

GREGORY SELECTED

Centre Ken Gregory polled 85 out of a possible 105 points to win a first-team berth. Forward John Lauvaas and guard Ken Jackson won second team berths.

Only unanimous all-star choice was YMCA forward Ken Yourston. Other first team choices are Roger Kettlewell, CYO and guards Vic Rahn, UBC, and Mel Hoff, Kerrisdale.

Named to the second team with Lauvaas and Jackson were Marv Johnson and John Drew of Alberni and Neil Murray of CYO.

The All-Stars have a busy holiday season program.

They meet a West Side High School all-star team Friday in Vancouver, play the Senior League CYO Gaels Sunday afternoon at North Vancouver. Then it's the Bob Whyte tourney here at month's end.

Five of the Junior League's eight teams play in a one-day knockout tourney with Vancouver College and the West Side All-Stars Saturday at Vancouver.

Brown to Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnie Brown, a rookie defenceman who suffered a rib fracture in a National Hockey League game Nov. 17, will return to action tonight against Detroit Red Wings, New York Rangers said Tuesday.

TIME OUT By JEFF KEATE

"Once and for all, dear, I'll consider retirement only when it stops being fun!"

Production Line Must Hum for Leafs Tonight

Victoria Maple Leafs swing back into action tonight at San Francisco hoping their "production line" will again start producing goals at a normal clip.

Leafs, bidding to climb out of the Western Hockey League cellar, tangle with the Seals at the Cow Palace in the first of four California games in five days.

They play the Blades Friday at Los Angeles, hop back to 'Frisco Saturday and jump south again to wind up their southern safari Sunday at Los Angeles.

The Seals and Blades are the two clubs the Victorians must catch and pass to nail down a scoring berth and a poor record in the next four games would leave the Leafs in a precarious position.

GAMES IN HAND

Three victories would lift them into a good spot, since they have two games in hand over the Seals, four over the Blades.

Currently the Victoria club trails San Francisco by four points, Los Angeles by nine.

Hopes of coach Rudy Pilous rest greatly on return to form of his "big" forward line of Lou Jankowski, John Sleaver and Gordie Redahl, which has accounted for only two goals in the last four games.

Jankowski, four times the league's top goal-scorer, has been held pointless in three games since firing his 14th goal on Dec. 5. Redahl broke a three-game pointless skein with Victoria's only goal in Sunday's 3-1 loss at Seattle. Sleaver has managed two assists in the four games.

MARCETTA TAKES OVER

While that trio has been having trouble, fleet Milan Marcetta has taken over as Victoria's leading point-producer.

Marcetta, who picked up his 14th goal and three assists at home last Saturday, now has 30 points and is the only Maple Leaf remaining in the top 10 on the WHL scoring list.

Jankowski and Sleaver each have 27 points and Redahl has 25.

Norm Johnson of Los Angeles blazed into first place in the league point derby last week by earning three goals and four assists.

Almost keeping pace with Johnson was Vancouver's Billy McNeill, whose six points boosted him into second place as Guyle Fielder of Seattle slipped to third.

Johnson now has 44 points, McNeill 41 and Fielder 40.

Here are the scoring leaders:

ACE MAY BE DRAFTED

Max Is Feeling Pinch Of Billy's Point Pace

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Max McNab of Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks is finding he can't afford the scoring pace set by his forward Bill McNeill.

McNab is afraid McNeill is playing himself out of the WHL and back into the National Hockey League.

The chunky forward has 45 points in 28 games this season to which McNab comments:

"The way Billy is going, we have to be concerned about the draft."

The coach explained that the Canucks gave up two players to Detroit Red Wings to get McNeill and now own him but at the end of this season an NHL club could draft him away for $20,000.

The money would be of little solace to the Canucks because McNab estimates McNeill could not be replaced for less than $50,000.

He played 15 games for Detroit last year, 20 in Pittsburgh and 24 in Vancouver. In previous years he played six seasons with the Red Wings and eight with Edmonton, formerly of the WHL.

Rocky Doesn't Expect Long Rule for Cassius

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Rocky Marciano says he doesn't expect Cassius Clay to hold on long to the world's heavyweight boxing crown which he lifted from Sonny Liston.

The former champion predicted that Liston will regain the title "if he doesn't get too old before they meet."

The return match, postponed because of Clay's hernia operation, is set tentatively for April. Marciano doubts that it will come off that early. He thinks it will be put off for one reason or another to June or July, maybe later.

The delay, he said in an interview, may hurt Liston because the challenger was all primed and keyed up at the time of the postponement and may suffer from the let-down.

Marciano, who retired in 1955 after 49 straight triumphs and no defeats, now is a businessman with varied interests.

Tough Thornton Stops Eddie Cotton in Nine

SEATTLE (AP) — Tough Wayne Thornton of Fresno, Calif., mauled his way to a technical knockout Tuesday night over Eddie Cotton of Seattle.

The fight was stopped after nine rounds with Cotton bleeding heavily from a cut over the left eye.

Thornton weighed 174, Cotton 173, for the scheduled 12-rounder, billed as an elimination bout leading to a title fight with Willie Pastrano.

The 25-year-old Thornton, who took a split decision victory from Cotton in July, kept atop the 38-year-old Seattle veteran all the way. He held and hit, spun Cotton off balance and poured short, chopping blows to the face.

The cut in Cotton's eyelid was opened in the second round and the blood seeping into the eye bothered him throughout what remained the fight.

Swift Collects British Crown

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Wally Swift, 28-year-old former British welterweight boxing champion, used a smart left to dethrone Mick Leahy, 29, Monday night as the British middleweight champion.

The fight ended without a knockdown and the points margin in favor of Swift was narrow.

'Endangering' Charge Laid Against Man

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP)—A charge of attempting to endanger the life of another was laid Monday against James Guiltner, 34, of Dawson Creek, B.C., after an incident at a hockey league meeting in November.

Guiltner was originally charged with attempted arson but this charge was dropped and he was remanded to Jan. 5 on the new count. No plea was entered.

The charge arose from a meeting of the South Peace Hockey League when a man burst into the meeting carrying a crude gasoline bomb.

Specifically, the charge cites Guiltner for "endangering the life of an individual, Barry Phillips, by attempting to ignite a container of gasoline."

Magistrate R. E. Baynes continued Guiltner's bail of $500 and told both the Crown and defence to be prepared to proceed with the trial Jan. 5.

Timely Knight, who earned $45,526 in 16 races this year, collected 26 of 26 first-place votes.

CALLS ON WORLD . . . . . . TO FOLLOW SUIT

France Hits Athlete-Doping

PARIS (UPI)—The French government today called on sporting leaders throughout the world to follow its example and outlaw the use of dope by athletes.

Calling the use of dope "a social evil" which often led to tragedy, Minister for Youth and Sports Maurice Herzog said France "must take the first initiative for an anti-doping law."

The French national assembly passed an anti-doping bill Tuesday which lays down stiff fines and suspensions for athletes found using drugs, for persons aiding them in doping and for sportsmen who refuse to take medical tests when ordered to by the police.

The drugs, besides temporarily boosting performances, also can endanger the user's health. The measure calls for fines of $100 to $1,000 and a possible suspension of three months to five years from competition.

The bill must be returned to the Senate since the Lower House had made some changes on the first version passed on Nov. 3.

Great Racing Year

Wagering Up For 15th Time

By Canadian Press

Losers may find it difficult to believe, but 1964 was a great year at Canada's racetracks. Betting on the thoroughbreds soared to $161,515,313 and set a national record for the 15th season in a row.

It was a healthy jump from the $153,506,144 that bettors shoved through the pari-mutuel windows in 1963.

Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia reported provincial betting records. Manitoba, the only other province with thoroughbred racing, missed a record in a photo finish.

The four Atlantic provinces have only harness racing which is not covered in the thoroughbred figures but is compiled later.

ONLY TWO DOWN

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed 18 tracks were in action a total of 497 racing days, compared with 18 and 493 days last year.

All but two of the tracks reported 1964 betting at an all-time high. The exceptions were Winnipeg's Assiniboia Downs, only thoroughbred track in Manitoba, where the handle of $8,328,965 was just $21,000 off the 1962 record, and Toronto Woodbine.

Lucky horse - players took home about $134,000,000 of the total amount wagered. The tracks kept $15,500,000 for purses and profit, provincial governments took a tax bite of $11,200,000 and the federal government collected about $800,000 as a fee for supervisory services. They include film patrol, saliva tests and RCMP surveillance.

ONTARIO TOPS

As usual, Ontario's three big tracks accounted for about 60 per cent of the national betting total. Fans at Fort Erie, Toronto Woodbine and Toronto Greenwood backed their choices with $99,464,915 in cold cash, compared with $96,483,152 last year.

The Ontario racing season was unchanged at 196 days. Attendance was down slightly at 1,677,080, blamed chiefly on some conflict with harness racing dates, but per-capita betting rose to $59.31 from $56.71.

Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway, only track in Quebec, took in $15,562,205 for an increase of nearly 14 per cent over the 1963 betting total. Attendance on the 42 race days, same number as last year, rose five per cent to 391,462.

TRACK EXPANDS

A $5,000,000 expansion and renovation program is under way at Blue Bonnets this winter and track officials predict a big gain in every department for 1965. Weather was a problem this season, crippling attendance on 10 days.

Although it missed the record, the take at Assiniboia Downs was three per cent above 1963 on an identical 42-day season and the final day saw the one - race betting mark broken twice.

Saskatchewan's three tracks reflected the general rise in Prairie prosperity resulting from the massive wheat crop of 1963 and the subsequent export sales.

Lou Davies of Edmonton, general manager of the Western Canada Racing Association, also credited the dazzling performance of Northern Dancer, Canadian horse that won the 1964 Kentucky Derby, with stirring new racing interest in the West.

PRAIRIE OVALS HUMMED

Whatever the reason, Saskatchewan folk flocked to the tracks and put down $2,188,729, compared with $2,025,083 the year before.

It was much the same story in Alberta where six tracks took in $16,744,394 for a gain of $1,423,730.

The 18-day season was unchanged in Saskatchewan but Alberta tracks had 88, one day more than in 1963.

British Columbia added three days to its 108-day race program of 1963 and wagered 226,105 roll in from... This was up from... last year.

Mrs. Cooper qualified for the Bowler-of-the-Year roll-off last season by topping distaff tenpinners with 574 series in fifth week of 28-week contest. This time she made it in 11th week as she earned the weekly award on a 206-178-187—571 three-game count in Friday Nighters League at Mayfair Lanes. Marg finished third in Pacific All-Coast tournament last April.

NEW NATIONAL BODY

United Voice For Racing . . .

EDMONTON (CP) — A National Association of Canadian Race Tracks, debated for at least three years, became reality Tuesday.

The association was formed by representatives of 25 harness racing track and 12 thoroughbred racing tracks on the final day of the third annual national racing association conference.

Elected president of the bilateral organization was John J. Mooney of Toronto, general manager of the Jockey Club Limited.

Lou Davies of Edmonton, general manager of Western Canada Racing Association, became first vice-president and William Randall of Vancouver Racing Association, second vice-president of the thoroughbred association.

Bill Connolly of Edmonton, president of the Western Harness Raceways, was appointed second vice-president of the standard bred division. A first vice - president to represent standardbred interests was to be named Jan. 7 in Montreal at a meeting of harness racing officials.

Secretary-treasurer is Frank Gorman of Hull, Que., general manager of Connaught Park, a harness operation.

Mr. Mooney said the NACRT encompasses 100 per cent of Canadian tracks, apart from some Quebec tracks which were not represented.

Major objective of the new organization is to provide a united voice for racing in representing issues to the department of agriculture in Ottawa, which controls all Canadian racing operations.

Delegates agreed to study implementation of a national system of breeders' premiums to raise the level of thoroughbred and standardbred animals in the country.

It was suggested that part of the provincial governments' share of mutuel play be handed over to the federal government to pay administrative costs.

It was originally proposed that a quarter of one per cent be withdrawn from mutuel play and added to the current federal levy of one half of one per cent to pay for the program. The federal levy pays all costs of race track and betting security.

RESEARCH COMMITTEE

Delegates agreed in principle with introduction of a Canadian racing research committee to direct and authorize research products but agreed to await nomination of such a committee before introducing recommendations.

The association also agreed unanimously to oppose proposed introduction of a twin-double feature.

Most Canadian circuits currently stage daily double, exacta and quinella wagering.

It was suggested introduction of a twin double—a method of coupling two daily-doubles in each program—might result in the withdrawal of two other betting features.

Fracona's Move Ends Inter-League Trading

By The Associated Press

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals have turned Tito Francona into a last-minute cinderella, acquiring the veteran outfielder from Cleveland Indians just before the clock struck midnight Tuesday and ended major league baseball's interleague trading period.

The Francona transaction, in which the Indians will get a player to be named later in addition to an unannounced amount of cash, was the 13th made during the month-long period in which National and American League clubs can trade with each other.

Including the player to be delivered by the Cardinals, 31 players will have changed uniforms. In addition, eight more players have been shuffled in four other trades since the 1964 baseball season ended.

The Cardinals grabbed Francona to beef up their bench strength after a couple of trades in the past week depleted their supply of outfielders.

Charley James was traded to Cincinnati Reds along with pitcher Roger Craig for Reds' pitcher Bob Purkey. Outfielder Johnny Lewis and pitcher Gordon Richardson were sent to New York Mets for pitcher Tracy Stallard.

BUSY CLUBS

Philadelphia Phillies and Washington Senators were the two busiest clubs, each completing three trades.

The Senators pulled off the biggest deal in numbers, concluding a seven-player swap with Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Senators acquired outfielder Frank Howard, pitchers Pete Richert and Phil Ortega and infielders Ken McMullen and Dick Nen in exchange for pitcher Claude Osteen, third baseman John Kennedy and $100,000.

In a separate transaction, the Senators bought catcher Doug Camilli from the Dodgers and traded outfielder Chuck Hinton to Cleveland for first baseman Bob Chance and infielder-outfielder Woody Held.

Other transactions:

San Francisco Giants traded outfielder Jose Cardenal to Los Angeles Angels for catcher Jack Hiatt.

Chicago White Sox sold pitcher Fritz Ackley to St. Louis.

STUART GOES

Boston Red Sox traded first baseman Dick Stuart to Philadelphia for pitcher Dennis Bennett.

The Angels sold pitcher Dan Osinski to Milwaukee Braves.

The Angels bought first baseman Vic Power from Philadelphia.

Philadelphia traded outfielder Danny Cater and shortstop Lee Elia to the White Sox for pitcher Ray Herbert and outfielder-first baseman Joeff Long.

The Angels traded pitcher Bo Belinsky to Philadelphia for first baseman Coston Shockley and pitcher Rudy May.

The White Sox traded pitcher Frank Baumann to Chicago Cubs for catcher Jim Schaffer.

Minnesota Twins traded pitcher Gerry Arrigo to Cincinnati Reds for infielder Cesar Tovar.

NEW YORK—Carmelo Hernandez, 149, Puerto Rico, stopped Tommy Saint Brown, 149, Paterson, N.J., 2.

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. National Football League championship game Dec. 27 between Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns will match two of the highest scoring teams in the 45-year history of the league.

Official statistics released by the NFL Wednesday showed the Colts with 428 points to 415 for the Browns.

Only two teams—the 1950 Los Angeles Rams with 466 and the 1963 New York Giants with 448—have scored more points than Baltimore. Cleveland wound up in a tie for fourth place on the all-time list with the 1962 Green Bay Packers.

In addition, the Colts led the league in total offence with 4,779 yards gained, 2,007 rushing and 2,772 passing. The Browns were third with 4,486, a step behind St. Louis Cardinals at 4,517.

Browns had the best average yards per rush at 5.0, the best punt return average at 15.2, the fewest fumbles with 15 and the most touchdowns passing with 28. The Colts had the most touchdowns, 54, and the most rushing, 32. Baltimore also allowed the fewest points, 225, and the fewest touchdowns, 28.

Finishing first in passing were Chicago Bears, who gained 2,841 yards in the air. Green Bay was No. 1 in rushing with 2,276 yards.

The Packers dominated the defensive statistics, leading in total defence with only 3,179 yards allowed and passing defence with 1,647. Los Angeles Rams led in defence against rushing with a low of 1,501 yards.

HAYNES, BOSTON COACH EARN AWARDS IN AFL

NEW YORK (AP)—Abner Haynes, the American Football League's first big name, Wednesday was named winner of the AFL comeback-of-the-year award by an Associated Press panel.

Haynes, 26, started the season as a split end with Kansas City Chiefs, filling in for the injured Chris Burford. Abner moved into the backfield as soon as Burford was healthy and showed much of his old dash and drive while gaining 652 yards on 134 carries in the first 13 games.

Mike Holovak, whose Boston Patriots play Buffalo Bills Sunday for the Eastern Division title, has been named the AFL's coach-of-the-year. The 44-year-old former star fullback and later head coach of Boston College was named the winner over Lou Saban of Buffalo.

TV PAYS $12.2 MILLION

Majors Share A Juicy Plum

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball has stuck its finger in the lucrative television pie for the first time on a multi-club basis, pulling out a $12,200,000 plum but leaving one juicy question still unresolved: What about the New York Yankees and CBS?

The speculation arose Tuesday following baseball's announcement that it had sold its first regular season package, giving the American Broadcasting Company the right to telecast nationally 25 Saturday and two holiday games in both the 1965 and 1966 seasons.

The money from the new undertaking will be divided equally among the teams, bringing the 18 clubs participating in the venture about $300,000 a year in addition to revenue from local telecasts.

Two clubs with previous commitments — Philadelphia Phillies and the CBS-owned Yankees —are not participants.

The Phillies are expected to join before the start of the season and it is hoped the Yankees will join for the 1966 season.

PAYMENTS SPLIT

Under the terms of the contract for the new Saturday spectacular, the clubs will get $5,700,000 the first year and $6,500,000 the second.

The new package deal also means that television viewers no longer will see major league baseball on an NBC outlet. The only games to be televisied nationally are the Saturday spectacular on ABC and the Yankees home games on Saturdays and Sundays.

Under the terms for the Saturday spectacular, two games will be televised—one in the eastern part of the country and one in the West. There will be a third game, held as a standby, in the event of a postponement.

Tom Moore, ABC president, said the schedule will be arranged before the start of the season but will be flexible so emphasis can be placed on the pennant races.

Quebec Breaks Rochester's Run

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces rallied in the third period Tuesday night to end Rochester Americans' seven-game winning streak with a 3-1 victory in a battle between the American Hockey League's two division leaders.

The Aces trailed 1-0 after Dick Gamble's first-period tally but halted the streaking Americans on goals by Red Berenson, Guy Rousseau and Ed Hoekstra in the final frame.

Kangaroos Take Tag-Team Tussle

Roy Heffernan and Al Costello, professional wrestling's "Kangaroos," won the featured match at Memorial Arena Tuesday night. They defeated Roy McClarty and Karl Gotch in a tag-team bout.

In other tussles, burly Klondike Bill was disqualified in his match with Don Leo Jonathan, Stan Stasiuk defeated Eric Froelich and Juan Sebastion grappled to a draw with Igor Kalmikoff.

BUT JOEY WANTS SUGAR RAY

Tiger May Get Another Crack

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A return title fight between middleweight champion Joey Giardello and Dick Tiger of Nigeria looms as a strong possibility.

Giardello, fresh from a close win over Rubin Carter Monday night, seemed headed in the direction Thursday although he also talked about a defence against 44-year-old Sugar Ray Robinson or maybe with the winner of a Tiger-Joey Archer fight.

"We got an offer of $75,000 for a title fight with Robinson in January for the Dapper Dan club in Pittsburgh," said Arnold Giovanetti, Giardello's adviser. "But we told promoter Don Elbaum that's too soon and April or May would be better."

GETS NERVOUS

"That would be all right," said Giardello. "I don't want to fight in June or July. My wife is expecting our fourth child then and I don't want to fight then. I get more nervous than she does."

Giardello said he'd be glad to meet the winner of a fight between Archer, the No. 1 contender, and Tiger, the man he dethroned a year ago and who now is rated third. Carter is ranked second.

LIKE LOSER

Giardello looked more like a loser than a winner. The 34-year-old champion had a thick welt under his left eye and a red scar over the eye and reddish bruises under the right eye. Carter came out of the 15-rounder unmarked.

"Looks don't mean a thing," said Giardello. "He fought my fight and I don't think he won three rounds."

Giovanetti figured Giardello made about $58,000 over-all. Carter's share was $10,000.

It Just Wasn't His Day

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Hunter Ed Gilroy killed a deer and returned to his car for a rope.

The car had been broken into, and a two-way radio, car jack, lunch box, vacuum jug, blankets and camera were missing.

Gilroy left his rifle in the car and went after the deer.

It was gone.

He returned to his automobile. His rifle was gone, too.

Universities To Sponsor Bowl Game

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union approved in principle Tuesday a proposal to support a charity-sponsored national football bowl game on the pattern of annual invitation bowls in the United States.

A charitable organization, which wanted its identity kept private until the project is confirmed, proposed a Canadian bowl at a meeting of the union's board of governors and administrative committee.

Tentative plans call for an invitational game between two top university teams in Toronto or Montreal in 1965 or 1966.

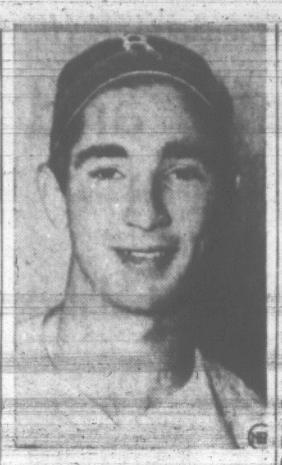

The governors also approved a proposal for an intercollegiate centennial winter games festival in 1967.

Washington Ace To Join Stamps

CALGARY (CP) — Gerry Shaw, a Calgary footballer who spent last season as a defensive halfback with Washington State University, has signed a contract with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference for 1965.

Shaw was a key player with Calgary Junior Cougars before moving to Washington in 1962. He played end for Washington State for two seasons, before switching to the defensive halfback post this year.

SANDY KOUFAX
. . . tops again

Koufax Posts Best Average Since Hubbell

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers posted the lowest average in 31 years in winning the National League's earned-run championship for the third consecutive season in 1964.

Koufax compiled a 1.74 mark, the official NL pitching records disclosed today. He yielded only 43 earned runs in 223 innings. Koufax also pitched the most shutouts, seven, and had the highest winning percentage, .792 on a record of 19 victories and only five defeats.

SORE ARM

He was sidelined for the final six weeks of the campaign with a sore arm.

The 28-year-old star captured the ERA crown in 1962 with 2.54 and in 1963 with 1.88. The lowest previous average before 1964 was 1.66 by Carl Hubbell of the old New York Giants in 1933.

Don Drysdale, the Dodgers' ace righthander, was the ERA runner-up with a 2.19 average. He also topped the league in game started, 40; innings pitched with 321 and total batters faced, 1,264.

Earned run averages are computed by multiplying the number of earned runs by nine and dividing the total by the innings pitched.

Southpaw Bob Veale of Pittsburgh Pirates was the strikeout king with 250. He also issued the most bases on balls, 124.

TONY NOSE HOW IT IS

MANILA (AP)—Tony Villanueva, winner of the silver medal in the Olympic featherweight division, was informed he must never box again.

He suffered a broken nose in the Tokyo games and recently underwent surgery. Doctors said the remodelled nose never would be strong enough to stand heavy blows.

Villanueva is an actor and has finished a movie since the games in October.

Aging Maestro Ready To Return to Soccer?

STOCKPORT (Reuters)—Stanley Matthews, former England rightwinger who will be 50 in February, played in a charity game here Tuesday night to test whether he is in shape for a return to league soccer.

Matthews got the tying goal two minutes from the end for the combined Sheffield United-Stoke City team in a 3-3 deadlock with a combined Stockport County-Doncaster Rovers side.

The Stoke maestro would not say whether he is ready for a quick return to league football, in which he last played nine months ago. A sprained back has kept him out of action all this season.

If he does return with Stoke City he will become the oldest player ever to have turned out for an English League club.

RECORD HOLDER

The record is held by Billy Meredith, the legendary "Welsh wizard" who was 49 years and eight months old when he played his last match for Manchester City years ago.

Meanwhile, Denis Law has just started a 28-day suspension and the big question in English League soccer is whether his absence will wreck Manchester United's chances of winning the league championship. United and Chelsea are running neck and neck for the title.

Allan Gilzean, Scottish International forward, still has not made up his mind whether to join Sunderland or Tottenham Hotspur.

Boxing Promoter Eddie Quinn Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal boxing and wrestling promoter Eddie Quinn died Monday at the nursing home he owned in Northampton, N.H.

Quinn, in his late 50s, came to Montreal more than 29 years ago from his native Waltham, Mass., and put this city on the world boxing map, promoting title fights involving such champions as Archie Moore, Sugar Ray Robinson, Jimmy Carter and Laurent Dauthuille.

He promoted wrestling until 1963, when he retired to run the Dobbs Nursing Home in Northampton.

CITY BANTAMS SKIN NANAIMO IN FINALE

NANAIMO—Ken Skinner romped for 75 yards and then 78 to score two touchdowns and spark Victoria Trojans' 25-14 victory over Nanaimo in the Vancouver Island Bantam football championship finale.

It was Trojans' third straight title triumph.

Mike Gibson and Curt Clarke scored Victoria's other majors.

The playoff was marred by a shoving-and-pushing melee in the last minute of play. It was quickly broken up by team officials.

JACK WILSON . . . "a rough life"

JACK WILSON'S 48-YEAR LOVE AFFAIR WITH HIS FAITHFUL TROLLER

'If, If, If', They Said, and the Name Stuck

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

A 78-year-old Victoria fisherman and his doughty troller have shared nearly a half century of thrills and chills along Canada's west coast.

For 48 years a 30-foot troller the "IF II" has been home to Jack Wilson.

For two years before that he lived on an even smaller boat.

The first "IF" was no more than "a rowboat with a 1½-horse 2-cycle engine".

The "IF II" has an eight-foot beam. Its deck houses all the necessary equipment for modern-day trolling: gurdies, winches, poles and other gear.

The cabin is only 5 feet by 10 feet.

Fifteen square feet contain the bunk, the lockers (to sit on) and an old rusty wood and coal stove now converted to oil.

How did he name his boat?

"I knew little if anything about fishing or handling a boat. Everybody was volunteering advice, telling me 'If you only had a big engine, if you had a heavier boat, if you . . ., if . . .' so I decided to call my boat the 'IF'."

Since it was built Jack has never lived ashore.

The IF II has been his home, his livelihood, his companion and his friend.

He talks about it as if it were part of him.

"We get up at 3 a.m., have coffee, then get ready for the day's fishing. At 5 p.m. every day of the season we quit. We are off to sleep by 7 p.m."

Neither Jack nor the IF seem to have suffered from this schedule.

ROUGH TIMES

"We've had some rough moments though," remembers the skipper.

He particularly remembers 1924.

"We were off Nootka when this terrible storm fell on us. One of the roughest I ever witnessed. She blew so hard we lost the mast.

"The hatches were ripped off the deck. The wheelhouse was shattered by waves.

"Loose ropes whipped about and wound themselves on the propeller killing the engine and snapping the rudder off. For two hours we battled the ocean.

"I really thought we'd had it. There wasn't much left of us when we finally got a tow."

But the IF was refitted and went back to the sea.

Last year while in harbor there were two explosions aboard. Jack went to hospital with first degree burns and the IF went to the bottom.

Once again she was refitted.

"It's been a hard life," says Jack. "What with wrecking your nerves listening for the fog horns, not eating properly, always alone. . ."

The social life doesn't interest him.

NEVER WENT BACK

He went to a movie in Vancouver 20 years ago.

"A fellow in the back of me coughed all during the show," he remembers. "I caught a cold I'd never have caught in a 50-mile gale. I've never gone back to another show."

He thinks he's the oldest active fisherman on the coast. "I'm going to keep on going."

"I couldn't live on shore, not for any length of time. I'd be lost without the IF. I don't have anybody else."

Jack is not too optimistic about the future of commercial fishing.

HASN'T A CHANCE

"What with the pollution of the water, spraying the timbers building those dams, and worse of all with the mass of so-called sport-fishermen, the fish hasn't got a chance.

"Something could be done. Prohibiting traps helped. So does the two-month closing of commercial fishing.

"But the fishing should be closed to everybody, not only to the commercial hook."

He says sport fishing is bigger business today than commercial fishing.

"If something is not done soon to help him, the fish will lose the battle and we will lose the fish."

GO FOR BIG BOAT

Advice to a young man?

"Sign on a big boat and see if he likes it. Then if he does, buy a boat for himself.

"You can still catch a pretty good living from the sea," he says. "The sea has been good to me. It's not been easy, but I'd do it all over again.

"I'm going out again in the spring. If I get a catch it's fine. If I don't, that's all right too.

"I need little to live today anyway. As long as I have the IF that's all I need. That's all I've ever had."

Hawaii Still The Tops For Victorians

Hawaiian sunshine is proving to be an attraction again this Christmas for holidaying Victorians.

One travel agency reported today Christmas bookings are "quite good and busy."

As in past years, Hawaii was tops among those going outside Canada. Other popular places are Mexico, the West Indies and California.

Another travel agency, also reporting Hawaii tops among foreign travel, said cruises in the Mediterranean and Caribbean are proving more popular than before.

Both agencies said about the same number of people are going to Hawaii as last Christmas.

EXTRA SECTIONS

At home, Air Canada reported it is "very busy" with extra sections planned for scheduled flights.

Flights to Vancouver and Seattle are booked, as are many overseas flights.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines is getting many inquiries. Schedules are unchanged for Christmas but extra buses will be provided if necessary.

No extra runs are planned by Washington State Ferries but B.C. Ferries will double sailings in some cases.

There will be an hourly service Dec. 22 to 24 and Dec. 26 to 28. The winter schedule will be in operation Christmas Day on the Vancouver-Victoria and Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay runs.

Insp. Brooke Douglass, at present in traffic, will take Insp. Webb's job in administration.

Detective James Baxter has been transferred to the patrol division as a sergeant and Sergeant E. P. Hardy will be transferred into the detective division.

Sgt. Don Buie will move from traffic division to patrol division and Sgt. Ron Bentley will transfer from patrol into traffic.

Chief Gregory said the changes are designed to give his men experience in all phases of departmental work.

CAMPBELL SOFTENS GOVERNMENT RESTRICTIONS

New Grants System Set for Winter Works

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Tuesday announced a program softening the government's refusal to pay winter works grants except for men who have been on relief at least three months.

He revealed his plans to the executive of the Union of B.C. Municipalities when it met with the provincial cabinet to present its annual brief summarizing resolutions at last September's convention.

One of the chief points in the brief was the UBCM's strong criticism of the provincial switch on winter works from its more liberal policy of previous years.

Mr. Campbell said the new government policy was based on a "philosophy of opportunity."

Under the new program, there will be a progressive grant for winter works starting with persons on welfare at least three months and moving down to those simply on the National Employment Service's unemployed register who have exhausted benefits.

The three-step grants plan will go into effect Jan. 1 and will be co-ordinated with a fully interlocked program of all provincial departments concerned "and I hope the full co-operation of all levels of government and the private sector" in an attack on the hard-core unemployment problem, Mr. Campbell said.

Under the first step, the province will pay 50 per cent of the payroll for persons employed on approved civic winter works projects who have been on social welfare for three months or more.

DECLARATION

Once all these cases have been taken care of, a municipal council can make a declaration that there are no more such persons available and it will qualify for the second step: a provincial grant for 25 per cent of the payroll costs for persons with less than three months on welfare rolls.

Once all these cases have been taken care of, the municipal council can make a further declaration and qualify for the third step: a provincial grant for 25 per cent of payroll costs for persons registered at the NES office who have run out of benefits.

The provincial grants would come on top of federal grants of 50 per cent of payroll costs for all unemployed persons hired for winter works projects whether on relief or not.

Mr. Campbell said a questionnaire sent to all B.C. municipalities is due back Jan. 15 and will reveal the full dimensions of the hard-core unemployment problem.

He said this would help in formulating specific policies and the questionnaire would be kept on a continuing basis so "that we can make adjustments to our policies as the need arises from time to time."

Mr. Campbell said the three-step grants system—which virtually returns to the status quo but with a different emphasis on the hard core unemployment problem — was endorsed by UBCM officials he met Tuesday morning.

He said it would be basis "of the first plan anywhere in Canada that will take a really positive step towards eliminating this problem.

"We reject the idea of work for welfare and uphold instead a philosophy of opportunity for the unemployed and untrained."

He said the provincial departments of municipal affairs, labor, trade and industry and education would be meshed together to bring the full weight of provincial resources onto the problem.

The federal government, civic governments and private enterprise also will "have to be interlocked with this program to make it fully effective," he said.

FIELD WORK

"We're just starting out on arranging for this interlocking and much of it will have to be done in the field," he said when asked for specific details.

However, he pointed out that training of the unskilled unemployed could be one of the main improvements with an interlocked program.

It could work this way:

An unemployed person applying for a job on a civic winter works program might be found to lack the skill needed for the work.

"He could then be referred by the civic authorities to the department of municipal affairs which would contact the education department to see if it could arrange training for him in a particular skill or at least provide some pre-employment training," said Mr. Campbell.

MARRIAGE SCHOOL AT YWCA

A "School for Marriage" will open at the YMCA Jan. 18.

The eight-week course will present a practical study of the family in society.

Lecture topics will include moral and spiritual preparation for marriage; physiological, sexual and emotional factors in the union, and legal and economic aspects with emphasis on budgets, mortgages and home management.

Chairman of the organizing committee is Rev. G. H. Turpin.

Members include Msgr. M. T. O'Connell, Rev. Barnard Hanley, Canon Hillary Butler, Gordon Wright, Family and Children's service director, Lawyer W. E. Whitley and Miss Lorna Cammaert, adult education director for the YWCA.

FREE PARKING PLAN DROPPED BY COMMITTEE

The idea of free pre-Christmas parking downtown was abandoned in city traffic committee meeting Tuesday.

The committee got negative replies from several businessmen groups which were asked to comment on a proposal by Ald. Robert Baird that free meter parking be given motorists to stimulate downtown activity a day or two before Christmas.

"This proves the downtown merchants approve of meters and that we are short of downtown parking facilities and should get cracking with building more," Ald. M. H. Mooney said.

BLIZZARD BIG FACTOR IN SASK. VOTE TEST

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan's new Liberal government faces its first test at the polls today in the Hanley constituency where voters will brave blizzard conditions to cast their ballots.

About 14,000 persons are eligible to vote for Industry Minister Herb Pinder, a major force in the Liberal party that ended 20 years of CCF rule in the April general election; Robert Walker, former CCF attorney-general; or Hugh Arscott, an insurance man carrying the Progressive Conservative banner.

Weather officials say a high of 25 below was expected today. Strong north winds would bring near-blizzard conditions.

S. VIET NAM

Casualty Lists Grow in Battle

SAIGON (CP) — South Vietnamese government troops last week suffered their highest casualties in eight months in the war against the Communist Viet Congo, a U.S. spokesman said today.

But government forces killed 550 Communist guerrillas, compared with 260 of their own dead.

A total of 985 government troops were killed or wounded, the spokesman said. The figures did not include the battle in An Lao valley, where casualties were reported heavy.

Thirteen Americans were killed in action last week.

The U.S. Army also increased its casualty total in the Viet Cong bombing of a U.S. barracks Monday in Thu Dau Mot. First reports said four Americans wounded; the army today said there were 13. Most of them incurred only minor wounds, the spokesman said.

Two other U.S. advisers were reported wounded today in actions against the Viet Cong.

South Viet Nam's government showed signs of cracking as 500 Buddhist monks and nuns began a 24-hour hunger strike.

Reliable sources reported that Phan Tan Chuc, education and cultural affairs minister, resigned this morning. He was in disfavor with the Buddhists.

Unconfirmed reports said some other ministers may resign.

The Buddhist hunger strike and one last weekend were aimed at toppling Premier Tran Van Huong's regime.

The Buddhist leadership is trying to re-establish the powerful political position it held for a time after its major part in the overthrow of President Diem, but Huong so far has refused to give in to the monks.

Informed military sources said government forces suffered more than 150 killed or wounded and 400 more missing in a major battle last week with Viet Cong guerrillas in Binh Dinh Province some 305 miles northwest of Saigon.

The U.S. advisers and South Vietnamese investigators were sent to the scene to check the claim of a clandestine Viet Cong radio that 420 government troops defected with their weapons.

Sources said Viet Cong casualties in the battle were believed to include more than 300 dead.

Another major battle last week, 110 miles southwest of Saigon, also was reported to have involved large numbers of government missing. Reports reaching Saigon indicated one government battalion virtually disappeared and more than 200 men remained unaccounted for.

SUNSHINE BAGS of fruit, candies and biscuits will be delivered this weekend to 1,500 shut-ins in 33 institutions. Among the 25 members of the Salvation Army who helped to pack the bags were, left to right, Mrs. Grace Reynolds, Mrs. Brigadier Ronald Frewing and Mrs. William Jackson.

Duke Has "Blister" Removed

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor underwent abdominal surgery at 7:35 a.m. today.

The operation was for the removal of an aneurysm, or blister, on the aorta. It had ballooned to the size of an orange since it was discovered more than four years ago.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, a cardiovascular surgeon, and his team of physicians had the 60- to 90-minute task of replacing the weakened section of the aorta, a principal blood vessel, with a tube made of adcron.

The aneurysm, which the duke says has caused him no distress, is just below the kidney arteries.

Surgery was scheduled after Dr. DeBakey's team of experts reviewed tests performed on the 70-year-old duke at Methodist Hospital.

The duke and his duchess arrived by train Monday from New York City.

HOUSTON SPECIALIST

Doctor Follows 20-Hr. Work Day

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Dr. Michael Ellis DeBakey, the cardiovascular surgeon whose newest patient is the Duke of Windsor, once said "everyone could do 20 per cent more than he is doing."

"Dr. DeBakey apparently is trying to make up this loss all by himself," says a colleague.

DeBakey, 56, professor of surgery at Baylor University's College of Medicine, works 20 hours a day and sleeps four.

"When you first meet him, you get this feeling of urgency," an associate said in describing DeBakey, who resembles comedian Groucho Marx without the moustache.

"He is a man in a hurry. If he sits down it is for a specific purpose, not to rest."

DEBAKEY

HAS HEAVY SCHEDULE

Aides say it is not unusual for DeBakey to perform six to eight major operations a day.

He reports to Methodist Hospital at 7 a.m. daily, but he is out of bed long before that, working on scientific papers and business correspondence.

The 70-year-old duke was reported to be suffering from an abdominal aneurysm — a ballooning of an artery in the abdomen. DeBakey introduced the use of synthetic tubes to replace vessels injured by aneurysms.

An aide to the duke said DeBakey was selected for the operation because he "is the No. 1 man in the field and he wants to operate in his own hospital with his own team."

The team, which also helped develop a heart-lung machine which permits open heart surgery, includes Dr. Denton Cooley, an originator of open heart surgery; Dr. George C. Morris Jr., whose specialty is surgery on the vessels in the abdomen, and Dr. Arthur Beall, Baylor's director of experimental surgery.

In the last six years the team has performed 6,500 major cardiovascular procedures. It has a 95-per-cent recovery record.

DeBakey, a slightly built man who eats lightly and does not smoke, has developed more than 70 surgical instruments.

Early this year, Princess Lilliane of Belgium, who calls DeBakey "the best heart surgeon in the world," visited Houston to witness heart surgery on two of her countrymen. The princess heads the Lilliane Cardiological Foundation at the University of Brussels.

Dr. DeBakey is a native of Lake Charles, La., and took his medical training at Tulane University. After he received his degree in 1932, he worked in the New Orleans Charity Hospital. He also studied at Strasbourg, Austria, under Dr. Rene Leriche, a French pioneer in vascular surgery.

DeBakey is chairman of President Johnson's committee on heart disease, cancer and strokes.

Inspector Compromise Expected

VANCOUVER (CP) — New talks aimed at averting a strike by 270 grading inspectors which could tie up the province's multi-million dollar lumber industry, were due to begin today.

Sources close to the industry said there is a good chance a compromise will be worked out between representatives of the inspector's local of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) and the lumber companies.

The inspectors, employed by the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau, have already voted to strike. The main issue is a system whereby lumber companies could obtain the PLIB stamped under licence and do their own grading.

The inspectors claim this could lead to a downgrading of the high quality standards maintained for lumber from this province.

A strike could tie up the whole industry, affecting about 30,000 lumber yard workers and thousands more in the pulp industry.

Mail Stack Grows After Doctor Discovers Cure for Bald Head

By LEE LINDER

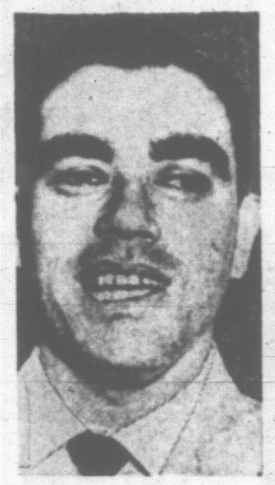

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What happens to a doctor who may have discovered a way to grow hair on bald heads?

He's pestered for samples of the alleged magic cream. He's besieged with requests to act as "guinea pigs." His telephone rings and rings, even past midnight. His mail reaches movie - star proportions.

Dr. Christopher Papa, a 32-year-old resident in dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, is in that predicament — and doesn't like it. He prefers the congenial anonymity of his tiny, slide-cluttered laboratory.

"It's getting so I can't get any real work done," he said in an interview, admittedly anxious to resume his current primary interest, the study of the causes and effects of aging skin and how to restore its youth.

"Growing hair on a bald head happened accidentally," Papa said.

DR. PAPA
. . . accident

"It was a by-product of other research. We didn't set out to grow hair. But we found that we were doing it as we rubbed the hormone drug testosterone on the skin under the armpits. So we tried it on the head—and hair grew. It took many months, but it grew. In one case it was a year before anything started to show.

"Sure, I'm happy to have been able to take this giant step forward in hair-growing research because up to now baldness was considered hopeless.

"Now, I'm sure it isn't. Man can grow hair, which makes the process of losing hair reversible."

But Papa, with a head of thick black hair himself, insisted his apparently fortuitous discovery is still experimental.

"Much, much more study must be made," he said. "It may take years."

Free Port Privilege Assists Spain Trade

ASUNCION, Paraguay (Reuters) — Since 1959, Spain has possessed what almost amounts to an enclave in this South American country.

In that year, a treaty provided Spain with a free port at the town of Villeta, about 43 miles south of Asuncion. The port is for the exclusive use of "mother country" Spain and Paraguay.

It still is the only European free port in Latin America.

Spanish goods will be stored in four big depots under construction and will not be taxed until they leave the depots.

Paraguayan exports will also be stored there for later shipments to Spain.

The Paraguayan delegation of Spain's foreign bank provided the funds for the erection of Villeta's depots, worth some 32,000,000 guaranies ($2,560,000). Once the facilities are finished, an 11,000,000 guaranies ($880,000) concrete port project, now only in the planning stage, will be started.

This project, too, will be financed by Spain's foreign bank.

Once a prosperous and proud city, Villeta declined with the deterioration of Paraguay's orange export trade. Its new status as a free port brings hope of a better economic future for

Congo Action 'Dangerous, Honorable'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Britain's Lord Caradon said Tuesday the mission to rescue foreign hostages held by rebels in The Congo was a dangerous operation but an honorable one.

Caradon, former Sir Hugh Foot, told the United Nations Security Council the mission was designed only to save lives. African countries have charged that it was an aggression designed to topple the rebel regime at Stanleyville.

Caradon said the British decision to provide a base for the Nov. 24 Belgian-American air mission was a difficult and dangerous one.

But to have refused, he said, "would have been an act . . . not of caution but of cowardice, an act of callous inhumanity; indeed it would have been a shameful act."

'BETTER FUTURE'

Caradon urged the council to seek a better future for The Congo rather than to "pile on the agony of the past."

In London, George Thomson, minister of state, told the House of Commons Monday that Congolese rebels have killed 20,000 persons, most of them Congolese. He said 5,000 persons were killed in Stanleyville alone.

Thomson said that 15 British subjects were rescued by the Belgian-American rescue mission, and three British subjects have been killed by the rebels. Twenty-seven British subjects, two Australians and one New Zealander are among whites still in rebel-held territory. To opposition demands that something be done to rescue them, he said he knew nothing the British government could do.

The rescue mission was carried out by Belgian paratroopers flown in American planes from a staging area in the British Ascension Island. African and Communist speakers have condemned it as a cynical and wanton aggression designed to oust the rebels from Stanleyville.

Congo Raid Talks Splits Africa Bloc

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— A split in the African bloc developed during the UN Security Council debate on The Congo Tuesday as Nigeria endorsed the Belgian-American paratroop rescue of hostages held by Congolese rebels.

Foreign Minister Jaja Wachuku made a blistering attack on some other African states for aiding Congo rebels and said their charges of Belgian-American aggression were "of no consequence whatsoever."

The Congo government had every right to call for such help and the western countries had every right to supply it, he said, particularly since other African countries had turned their back on Congo requests for aid in stabilizing the country.

Wachuku surprised the council with his direct assault on sister African states.

His voice was the first from Africa to be raised in the council in defence of the mission. Since last Wednesday a succession of African foreign ministers have condemned it in language that some western diplomats describe as the harshest they have ever used against the west.

The chorus of invective condemning the mission was expected to continue today in the debate despite the Nigerian's attempt to quiet it.

ANOTHER ATTACK?

Burundi, accused by the United States of aiding the Congolese rebels, was to be the day's first state heard from as the council rounded out its first week of stormy discussion.

Wachuku told the council Tuesday African nations which have refused to send aid to Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe are to blame for the predicament Tshombe faces.

"If a government is prevented from discharging its duties by those who are regarded as brotherly states, surely the next best thing to do is to turn to those who are regarded as friends," Wachuku said. "That is exactly what happened in The Congo."

Wachuku's words contrasted sharply with those of foreign ministers Joseph Murumbi of Kenya and Antoine Guimali of the Central African Republic, who preceded him. Both accused the western powers of trickery and hypocrisy in the rescue operation.

Britain and France also took the floor Tuesday to support the United States and Belgium.

Lord Caradon, British minister of state, blamed The Congo troubles on nations he accused of trying to turn the country into "a cockpit of the cold war."

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux reminded African critics that the rescue mission was carried out with the approval of Tshombe's government.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1964—PAGE 25

Nine-month-old Leslie Ann, seen here with her parents, Myra and Richard Garrett, and the family pet, Sam, is probably the most travelled young lady in her age group. Already, she's taken a circular route around Canada and the United States. She took her first peek at Hawaii at the "ripe old age" of two months.

Glittering Ice Capades Show Doesn't Lack for Family Life

By PAT DUFOUR

When the curtain rings up on the 1965 Ice Capades in the Memorial Arena this evening, Victorians will be treated to a surfeit of gorgeous costumes, intricate routines and vivacious skaters.

What they don't know, is that a veritable retinue of assorted babies and animals accompany the cast of the company. In actual fact, this year's list includes several married couples, seven babies and a similar number of dogs, ranging from a dachshund and Yorkshire terriers to perky French poodles.

Youngest baby in the Ice Capades "family" is nine-month-old Leslie Ann, daughter of Myra and Richard Garrett. The other member of the Garrett family is a bright-eyed French poodie that answers to the name of "Sam."

And, says the Garretts, life on the road with a baby and dog really poses no insurmountable problems, even though both parents are in the show.

SHARE CHORES

Says Richard, "It just means that the husband has to share more of the housekeeping chores than he would under normal conditions."

These include helping with the laundry, changing diapers and giving Sam his regular clipping.

Richard is one of the Canadians in the show. His home town is Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Myra hails from Chicago.

They met six years ago. Richard recalls, "Myra joined the show two weeks before I did. We were in Kansas City and, being rookies together, it seemed natural that we should team up."

One of the highlights of their six-year stay with the company was the time the show visited Moscow in 1961.

'PECULIAR AUDIENCES'

Myra describes the Russian audiences as "peculiar." She elaborates, "They seem almost afraid to laugh. They wait for one person to start, as if waiting for a cue, then they'll follow suit. If they really like something, though, they'll clap loudly in unison. This makes you feel wonderful."

In an indirect way, it was the company's trip to Russia that provided Richard with the chance to become a principal skater.

"I had been understudy for one of the principals. He came down with hepatitis in Moscow. He had a recurrence when we hit Dallas, became too sick to go on and I took his place. I've been a principal ever since."

Richard does a solo, "In a Spanish Mood" during the first half of the show and another number during the second part of the program.

Myra is "a member of the line" and happy to stay that way. "I guess I have no ambition!" she laughingly explains, "I'd much rather concentrate on our daughter."

WASTED NO TIME

She skated until four months before Leslie Ann was born, went home to Chicago for the birth and rejoined the show when their brown-eyed daughter was five weeks old.

"By the time she was two months old I was back in the old routine, my weight was normal again and I felt fine."

What happens to Leslie Ann when her parents are performing. "We get a baby sitter, although there was one time when we had to take her to the show because our sitter let us down. Fortunately, we had some friends in the audience and they helped us out."

CHRISTMAS IN SPOKANE

The Garretts are looking forward to Christmas, which the company always spends at the Ridpath Hotel in Spokane, Wash.

"It's always like going home when we enter the hotel. They store all our presents for us and get in a huge number of trees, one for each room."

The show is usually on the road for 10½ months and Richard estimates that it covers "between 25,000 to 30,000 miles."

Myra, as a member of the chorus line, is on the ice most of the time and reports that when they start rehearsing for the new show, this is upped by an additional four hours of rehearsals each day.

"We hit Kitchener and Halifax around the beginning of February and this is when we start working on the new program, doing the old show at night and working out the new routines during the day."

Naturally, when this happens, Richard expects to take on an even greater share of the family chores.

But neither of them really mind. They both reiterate, "We wouldn't have it any other way—we love it!"

And, Sam and Leslie Ann seem to enjoy their nomad way of life every bit as much as the senior members of the family.

Buckingham Palace Scene of Party

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II danced Tuesday evening with members of the royal household staff at the annual pre-Christmas dance in the white and gold state ballroom at Buckingham Palace.

There were 600 guests on the dance floor when the Queen entered with Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

Soon the Queen and the other members of the royal party also were dancing.

The Queen's first partner was Cecil Taylor, honorary treasurer of the royal household social club.

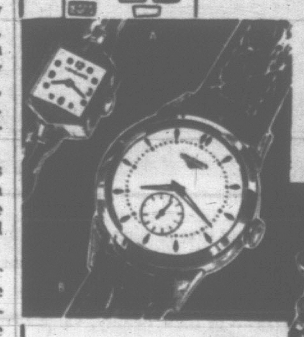

There was a buffet in the ball supper room for the guests, which included the royal household staff, members of their families and their friends.

Wed in San Francisco

A wedding of interest to Victorians took place recently in the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin in San Francisco, Calif., when Miss Reta Florence Hehn became the bride of Mr. Thomas Jerold Anderson. Parents of the principals are Mrs. Frances Hehn, 3444 Whittier Street, Victoria, and the late Mr. Hehn, and Mr. and Mrs. Obert J. Anderson of Minneapolis, Minn. Rev. Keppel Hill officiated. The bride was attended by Mrs. Robert Spain, nee Holly Francis, formerly of Victoria, and the best man was Mr. Norman Anderson. A reception followed in the Alta Mira Hotel at Sausalito, Calif. The couple is now making their home at 84 Mars Street, San Francisco.

A life-sized figure of a nurse standing beside a huge Christmas tree highlighted the Crystal Gardens for the Student Nurses' Association of British Columbia dance on Friday evening. The combined student nurses' associations of Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital arranged the affair and Miss Pamela Heycock, Royal Jubilee student nurse, was convener. The Continentals played for dancing.

Robins and Mrs. Robins, followed by a reception for family and friends. The couple also has a son, John, formerly of Victoria and now living in Winnipeg. There are two grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were married on Dec. 12, 1914, in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Honored

Miss Marilyn McKay, whose marriage takes place this Saturday evening, was honored by the employees of the Langley social welfare department at a recent dinner party and shower in the Langley home of Miss Janet McDonald.

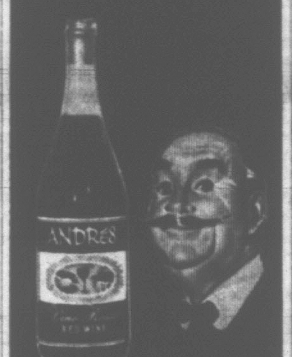

The bride-elect has also been feted at another shower given by Mrs. E. F. Martin and Mrs. Clifford E. Lee and held in the Turgoose Point home of the latter.

Dinner Party

There were 20 members and their husbands present on Sunday evening when the South Saanich Women's Institute held its annual Christmas party in the institute hall on East Saanich Road. A hot turkey dinner was served. The affair was also in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryce, who have recently returned from their honeymoon. Mrs. Bryce is the president of the group. Smokers Have 'Sub-Standard' Babies

BERLIN (Reuters) — The more a mother smokes, the smaller her baby will be.

This is the conclusion reached in the report of a survey just published here by the West German federal health office. The survey was part of a series of investigations into the effects of cigarette smoking, based on studies and tests undertaken in the United States, Britain and Scandinavian countries.

The report states bluntly that the degree of development of babies at birth is in inverse proportion to the number of cigarettes smoked by their mothers before birth.

If the father is also a heavy smoker, the babies are, in medical terms, even more "sub-standard," the report declared.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Don't Let Santa Miss Dad at Christmas

By Penny Saver

The saying, "Don't put off 'til tomorrow what you can do today," usually works in reverse for me. Only I always put it off for a couple of weeks if I can possibly manage it! One thing it's almost impossible to put off is last-minute Christmas shopping, and this seems to be the last minute! To tie up those loose ends on her list, Penny went shopping for some stocking stuffers for Dad.

One thing which is useful and very welcome for the man of the family is a boot-buffer. The ones Penny discovered are of washable orlon pile and feature leather handles for easy gripping. A wonderful item for the toe of a sock, they cost $1.95.

Another handy sock solution is one that the whole family can use—Mom included! To carry shaving gear, Dad will be delighted with a wet-pack carrying case, made of black or tan leather, containing a water-proof plastic inner liner. It's collapsible and can't fall open. Apply a little pressure when you want it open and it's a snap—folds back to reveal all the contents at one glance. Price is $6.95.

Cuff-links are always necessary to the well-dressed man's wardrobe. Any woman who wants her man to be a Beau Brummel will find the links I discovered a perfect stocking gift. These are a fine quality alligator leather, trimmed with stamped gold. They have an attractive chamois carrying case and sell for $4.

Having problems finding gifts for men's stockings? Call Penny at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"...And instead of taking me to Niagara Falls, he turned on the bathroom shower and sang me all the hit tunes of 1939."

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stothers, 5182 Santa Clara Avenue, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Bonnie Ann, to Mr. Kenneth Harland Rogers, youngest son of Mrs. Herbert C. Rogers, 853 Burdett Avenue, and the late Mr. Rogers. The wedding will take place on Monday, December 21, at 8 p.m., in St. Michael and All Angels' Church. Canon J. R. Rogers will officiate. WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Middle Age Is Time When Couples Should Enjoy Life

The years from middle age on should be some of the very best! Men and women are in the prime of life and the heavy responsibilities of rearing children are over or lessened. The early conflicts of marriage should have been smoothed out with understanding and adjustments. Financial pressure should be less and the woman in the home has more leisure to explore new interests and activities.

Lowman

Yet what happens? Too often this is a time of depression, frustration and bewilderment. Many factors create this unhappy state. At this age people usually stop to take a backward glance. If they have not lived fully in the past they will look back with regret rather than forward with anticipation.

This is a time when past neglect of health may begin to take its toll in less energy and stiff joints if nothing more serious. This is the time of menopause which may add some temporary strain to the picture. However, I think that one of the reasons for the middle-age blues is the fact that so many couples live vicariously through their children to such an extent that they lose sight of their marriage.

We should realize that our children are only leased to us for a while and that there will be many years later on when husband and wife will again be alone. It is easy to lose sight of this. The man is busy getting a foothold on the ladder of success. The woman is enthralled with her new and fascinating role of motherhood.

Many marriages break up when the children leave home. The husband and wife may suddenly find out that the children were about the only bond they had. I think this comes as a shock to many couples who have allowed their companionship to deteriorate and their marriage to lose the glow of romance.

Couples should not always put the children first but sometimes they should consider themselves, as a couple, first.

It is especially important for a woman to keep herself in focus as an individual, to develop interests outside her home as her children grow up. Otherwise she will encounter a shattering experience when the last chick leaves the nest. Suddenly, almost overnight it seems, the pressure is removed, the demanding and loved responsibilities are no more.

At this time a woman may feel bewildered. She may not know what to do with her new leisure and may feel that she is no longer needed. A husband and wife should prepare for the time when their children leave home.

DEAR ABBY...

More Bad Luck!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have had very bad luck with husbands. One died, and I divorced two, and now I am alone again. My thoughts keep going back to a very fine man I used to know between my second and third husbands. About a year ago I heard that his wife had cancer and it was just a matter of time. I would like to find out if she is dead yet. I have lost all contact with my friends in that town but I do have this man's business address. How can I let him know that I would enjoy seeing him again without having it look like I am chasing him? Also, how can I find out for sure if his wife is dead yet?

MILWAUKEE.

DEAR MILWAUKEE: Information of this kind should be sought through a mutual friend. And there is no way a woman can let a man know that she would "enjoy seeing him again" without appearing aggressive—especially when she would enjoy it so much that she can hardly wait to bury his wife.

DEAR ABBY: It seems that the saying, "Girls fall for men who are heels" is true, yet no one has been able to tell me why. I know it is true in my case because every man I have ever fallen for has been a heel. They have all been rough, abusive, lying, cheating and strictly no good. But even knowing this, I can't stop loving them. Can you tell me why a woman goes right on loving a man like that?

MAD ABOUT JOE.

DEAR MAD: There are many women who "go right on loving a heel" because they feel a deep sense of unworthiness, a need for punishment and, deep down, they feel that they don't deserve anything better. It is a "sick" love that thrives on punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem with a neighbor who has recently moved into my neighborhood. I knew her casually years ago, and I suppose that's the reason she has latched on to me. While she is a good-hearted soul, and I enjoy her company in small doses, I don't have enough in common with her to become the bosom buddy she is trying to make of me. I work and she doesn't, and the minute she sees my car in my driveway she runs over to visit. She also feels free to intrude when I have other guests. The situation is becoming very trying. I would tell her off once and for all, but I don't like to hurt people's feelings. I'd like to remain friendly with her without giving her the freedom of my house. Can this be done?

WORKING WOMAN.

DEAR WORKING: That depends: If you have the courage to tell your neighbor that you have only a limited amount of time for "visitors" and please to wait until you call her, you can retain your privacy, and perhaps her friendship in "small doses." On the other hand, if her feelings mean more to you than your privacy, prepare to surrender your privacy and don't complain.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONNIE'S SISTER, KATHY": Please send me your address. It is very important that I get in touch with you.

TODAY'S RECIPE

OMELET WITH ALMOND-CHEESE SAUCE

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 2½ tablespoons flour, 1½ cups milk, ½ cup grated American cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, few drops Worcestershire, dash cayenne, black pepper to taste, 6 eggs, ¼ cup roasted diced almonds.

Melt two tablespoons butter in saucepan; blend in flour. Stir in 1½ cups milk; cook, stirring, until mixture comes to boil and is thickened. Blend in cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, Worcestershire, cayenne and black pepper; cook, stirring, over low heat until cheese is melted. Keep hot over very low heat. Beat eggs lightly; blend in remaining milk and salt and pepper to taste. Melt remaining butter in skillet; pour in egg mixture and cook over low heat. As mixture cooks, lift edges with spatula to let uncooked portion run underneath. When omelet is set, spoon part of cheese sauce over one half; fold over. Transfer to hot serving plate. Stir almonds into remaining sauce. Serve with omelet.

Makes four servings.

There's Nothing as Personal as a Desk

By KATHERINE WHITEHORN

LONDON—Few bits of furniture are as personal as a desk. Even the least promiscuous of us often sit in other people's chairs, and although it might seem that a bed was an even more intimate object, there are many more people sleeping in the wrong beds than working at the wrong desks.

This is partly, of course, because what with hotels, cast-offs, in-laws, furnished rooms, spare bedrooms and the two-penny lean-to, people often sleep in beds not of their own choosing: but also because, even when you do choose your bed, it is apt to be a once-for-all purchase too expensive to change.

The perfect desk—as custom-tailored and indispensable as a pair of false teeth—takes years to evolve.

Through all the changing scenes of life, in sorrow and in joy, my father's pipecleaners have always been in the third drawer down on the left.

My husband is planning a desk which as far as I can make out is going to be exactly like the control tower of an airfield, with a few minor improvements, such as hot and cold running whisky.

It is impossible to imagine either of them working at each other's desks; for the right desk grows as lovingly round one's mental curves as a shell round a crustacean.

People's attempts to stamp their personalities on their office desks often succeed in a way they hardly intend. Typists record that they are jumped at most frequently by those with desk photographs of the wife and kiddies. I count it no coincidence that the desk across which I have most unpleasantly been refused work was not only vast but curved; the toughest female executives are most likely to go in for fragile figurines.

POWER SYMBOL

A new desk is a symbol of power. "If you don't get the desk and the carpet the first day," Anne Scott-James always says, "You don't get them at all." The new editress of Vogue is said to have started work on Monday and, calculating she need hardly start serious work until Tuesday, spent the day making everyone change their desks around—as pretty an assertion of authority as ever I heard.

But I am wandering. A desk, the actual physical object, is of immense importance—I would say to those who write at home, except that everyone writes something at home, if only checks to the gas company and suicide notes.

Some want a really vast working surface, with everything clearly visible and settled under geological paper-weights—the only drawback being that if your desk is as big as that people come and arrange flowers on it, and leave parcels on it and run trains on it, just as if it was the kitchen table.

For this reason those who start with a slab often move on to those Victorian desks that face you with a sort of cliff face of pigeon-holes — the kind the headmaster swings around from to ask you what you were doing on the night of the twenty-fourth, as if he didn't know.

Some on the other hand react into an even more raw simplicity. I know one man who got rid of his desk in a fury because it always seemed so full of gollywogs and nail varnish, and set up an austere trestle table: His only trouble was that it bounced up and down like a suspension when he typed.

Women tend to do badly on desks: Half the trouble is that it seems quite logical to them to have playing cards and tablecloths in the drawers, but the other half is the illusion that just a little one will do.

Buyers Sing the Blues and Shop In the Pre-Christmas Season

NEW YORK (UPI)—Unhappiness at Christmas shopping time is:

—You and your bundles not fitting into a phone booth.

—Dropping your bundles as you try to wedge them on to that little shelf space by your teeny-tiny place at a lunch counter.

—Being the first customer after they've sold the last of the imported cat scratching posts you wanted to put in your puss's boot by the fireplace.

—Being at the back of a crowded elevator and the only one wanting out at the second floor.

—Finding you've left the address list for those out-of-town relatives at home — after the saleslady writes up the sale.

—Losing your charge plate in that duffle bag you call a purse.

—Breaking a heel on an escalator when you have just two more gifts to go and the store has just 15 minutes to go 'til closing time.

—Trying to hail a cab with face and head motions when hands and arms are loaded with packages.

—Running into your husband's very dignified boss in the lingerie department.

—Not having a dime when you get to the rest room.

—Having the bottom of your shopping bag break open.

—Dropping your shopping bag when the handles rip off.

—Getting confused at the tie counter when you learn they've run out of gift boxes for ties.

—Listening to strains of "O, Come All Ye Faithful" blaring over the store's loudspeaker while you try to keep from getting toppled by the pushing, shoving crowds.

—Finding they've run out of your kind of Christmas card when you need just three more.

—Screaming when someone steps on your corn.

—Being told you'll have to take that toy wagon with you because they can't promise delivery in time for Christmas.

—Finding they won't have time to monogram your husband's gift handkerchiefs until after the first of the year.

—Remembering you've forgotten your father-in-law's glove size.

—Watching them put up the "closed" sign in the store's tea room just when you need a coffee break.

—Your shoes start to pinch.

—You can't keep within the limits of your Christmas budget because everything costs just a little bit more than you figured.

—At spree's end, having the bus driver close the door in your face and pull away just as it starts to rain.

The children of Penticton Rotarians have once again given up their annual Christmas party to aid hungry counterparts overseas. The "friendship dollars" saved by the club have been forwarded to USC headquarters, 63 Sparks Street, Ottawa 4.

FOR SWIMMERS ONLY—The rubber, inflatable tube built into this bathing suit can save lives. Two Montreal inventors created the "spare tire" without sacrificing swimming style. Joe Palmorini, one of the inventors, claims the tube, which looks something like a small hoola hoop, is hardly noticeable when not in use. "The swimmer is wearing protection at all times but doesn't have to use the tube unless he gets tired or into trouble." (CP Photo.)

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

HANDY YARDSTICK AND TOOL KIT

You'll need about four yards of three and one-half inch upholsterer's chair webbing, a yardstick, a small screwdriver, hammer, pliers, some colored felt scraps and a tassel.

1. Webbing is all folded and used in one piece. Begin by leaving one yard straight for the back, then fold webbing from the bottom up and loop down and up again for the lower pocket, continue the same until you have three pockets in the front, each adjusted in depth to fit the tool it is to hold.

2. Tie the wool fringe tassel at the end of the yardstick. Paste colored felt designs, such as fruit, between or on front of each of the pockets. Turn the top edges of webbing back to form a triangle and add a brass circle for hanging.

3—Machine stitch the edges of webbing to form the pockets.

If you want a file of 35 clever gift ideas like these, which have been suggested by readers, send 25 cents and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for my "Christmas Quickies" booklet. Send your order for it to Eunice Farmer, in care of this newspaper.

A large birthday cake, denoting the 60th anniversary of the auxiliary, centred the refreshment table at the luncheon which followed.

Russian Schoolgirls to the Fore

MOSCOW (CP) — "Our neighbor Darya Ivaniva had a hard life. So now she tries to give an easy life to her daughter."

Thus began a letter to the newspaper Vecherniya Moskva —Evening Moscow— on the universally controversial subject of schoolgirl fashions and modes.

It was one of a series run by the newspaper in response to a broadside from one highly critical reader who demanded to know why school administrations permit girls to organize themselves the way they do.

"Manicures and unthinkable hair styles" were two things complained about.

"They compete in dresses — who will have the better ones," wrote the irate reader, A. Makarova. "Some mothers help them. I know a student who has smart dresses which even the teachers never wear . . ."

She endorsed the action of Young Communist League members at one school who, after finding that some girls never attended evening parties because they hadn't nice dresses, decreed that henceforth uniforms should be worn instead.

The correspondent who told of the woman who tried to make life easy for her daughter thought this a short-sighted attitude. "Recently the mother became sick," related the correspondent, V. Lebedeva. "Her daughter Olya had to do everything at home but not being used to home work was angry and irritated all the time . . ."

"I agree with Makarova that the school should pay more attention to girls' appearance," she added.

Others emphatically supported smart schoolgirl fashions.

"We think dresses are of aesthetic value," wrote painter V. Vasiliev. "They should beautify, bring happiness."

Vasiliev said girls should be trained in the use of design and color, and taught to sew according to designs, in publicly supported instruction centres.

A woman typist took issue with the idea of uniforms for evening parties. "My daughter is in Grade 10 and I know girls like to wear a smart dress to a party," wrote the typist, A. Karpova.

"It is a small holiday for us when we prepare for her party. . . . My daughter sews the dress herself. Other girls also go in self-made dresses. And it looks like a good competition.

"There are days when girls want to look unusual."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bill Turner, age 8, of Houston, Tex., for his question:

Who Invented the First Timepiece?

Our early ancestors could not read or write. But they had brains with which to think and figure out their problems. Many thousands of years ago they began to notice the passing of time. In the spring, they planted their crops and in the fall they prepared for the winter ahead. One of the very first timepieces told our ancestors of the passing seasons. When the leaves changed color and flocks of birds flew southward they knew that the winter season would soon follow. When the green burst forth they knew that another summer season was ahead.

This early timepiece was provided by the world of nature. Our early ancestors also used one of nature's timepieces to clock the passing day and another to clock the passing month. They knew that the day began when the sun rose in the east. At noon or midday it reached its highest point in the sky, and at day's end it set in the west. They noticed that the golden moon took about 27 days to pass through its different phases.

Many groups of early men, widely scattered around the world, learned to read nature's timepieces. This was thousands of years ago before mankind learned to read or write. There was no one to write down who first discovered how to use nature's timepieces. Our clocks and watches are wonderful machines—but all of them are set to tell time by the path of the sun. We still use the clockwork in the sky used by our early ancestors.

Timepiece Based on Path of Sun

We do not know when man made the first timepiece for himself. But it was based on the path of the sun, the clock in the sky. He noticed that the shadows cast by the sun changed throughout the day. He used a post set in the ground to show the long shadows of morning and evening and the short shadow of noon. This shadow stick was the first man-made timepiece—but no one knows its inventor. Later it was improved and became a sundial.

In early history several different timepieces were made by unknown inventors. The first clockwork timepiece was invented less than 1,000 years ago. So far as we know, the inventor was Pope Sylvester II and the year was 996 AD.

The ancient sundial was useless on cloudy days when the sun cast no shadow. About 3,000 years ago the clever Chinese used a water clock to tell time without the help of the sun. It was based on water flowing at a fixed rate from one flask to another. Various types of water clocks were used in ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome. Another early clock marked the passing hours on a slowly burning candle. Another was an hourglass, very much like our sand-filled egg timers.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BROADWAY GRAPEVINE—One of the best actresses in films is about to have her heart broken in real life, as it has been so often on the screen. The darling she adores is secretly dating a curvaceous blonde . . . Louis Armstrong and his wife, Lucille, are likely to make headlines with their tax problem. The Feds with the adding machines have gone over some old returns and decided Satchmo owes Uncle Sam a staggering sum . . . Merriman Smith, dean of the White House correspondents, is seriously ill . . . Two of Wall Street's most famous banking institutions must be in an uproar. A page one figure is "singing" to the SEC . . . The LBJ set assumes that Stanley Marcus of the Dallas department store tribe can have an ambassadorship in the new regime if he wants the honor.

Odd that the drama desks didn't mention that talented Lamont Washington went on for Sammy Davis Jr. in "Golden Boy" the other matinee, doing all the dance numbers and the big fight scene because Sammy had injured his leg. Sammy took care of the singing and acting, but Lamont essayed the elaborate choreography, and the audience didn't seem to know when they were watching the star and when they were watching his understudy. Quite a feat . . . Christine Keeler is back swinging in London, and a zillion U.S. teen-agers would envy her if they knew whose birthday party she attended recently. The police tried to crash it, but didn't succeed—or there would have been headlines all over what we like to call the civilized world.

Steve Lawrence gets a two-week vacation from "What Makes Sammy Run?" starting Dec. 14, and it's a toss-up as to where you'll find him during the lull—at the United Nations, doing something cerebral, or at the Concord in the Catskills, relaxing . . . One of the nation's favorite starts has every reason for being miserable. Her husband is cheating on her—with his former wife . . .

★ ★ ★

20th Century-Fox, which did such a dazzling job with "The Longest Day," expects an even bigger box office return from "Dateline Paris, August 1944." It's the story of the liberation of Paris in the Second World War with a fantastic—but true-to-life—plot filled with cloak-and-dagger characters. French authorities will co-operate to make the details authentic. Filming starts next August, and don't bet that there won't be a junket to Europe to launch the epic in style.

★ ★ ★

Brigitte Bardot, who for many years has been waging a one-woman campaign against the unnecessary slaughter of animals, just scored a decisive victory for her four-legged friends in the French forests. After reading a report that nearly 1,500 deer had been killed in France since the hunting season opened a month ago, BB raised such a rumpus that the public started yowling with her—and Minister of Agriculture Edgar Pisani, who rules over the animal kingdom there, ordered the hunting season closed weeks ahead of time . . . Singer Nancy Wilson and her former personal manager, John Levy, came to an out-of-court settlement which gives him $25,000 in cash pronto and $75,000 over a period of two years. He has a "hold" on Nancy's Capitol recording contract and her royalties to guarantee payment . . . If and when the Senate rules committee decides to quiz Walter Jenkins, the former White House aide probably will be heard in closed session. Important government officials have concluded that Mr. Jenkins has suffered enough from the revelation of his morals arrests . . . Cary Grant doesn't need much in the way of a wardrobe to thrill the public and guarantee lines at the movie house wickets. All he wears in "Father Goose" is denim trousers, a faded shirt, and sneakers. Total cost to the studio: $37.

LOT IN MANHATTAN IS JUST A LITTLE

NEW YORK (AP)—An elderly gentleman bought a mid-town Manhattan lot at public auction Tuesday for $25.

The lot is 150 feet long but only six inches wide.

The purchaser, Edward Horowitz, 81, explained:

"I just took a chance. It's on a corner. Maybe I can sell it to a neighbor and maybe I can put a sign on it."

PRICE DROP REPORTED

B.C. Keeps Pace in Drug Costs

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. is keeping pace with the rest of North America, which has recorded lower-priced prescription drugs and drugs used by hospitals, D. A. Denholm, registrar of the Provincial Pharmaceutical Association said Tuesday.

He said in an interview there has been a drop in the average price of pharmaceutical drugs in this area over the last two years.

"While the average decrease has been a few cents, it is significant that in the previous 10 years there were increases five to 10 cents every year," he said.

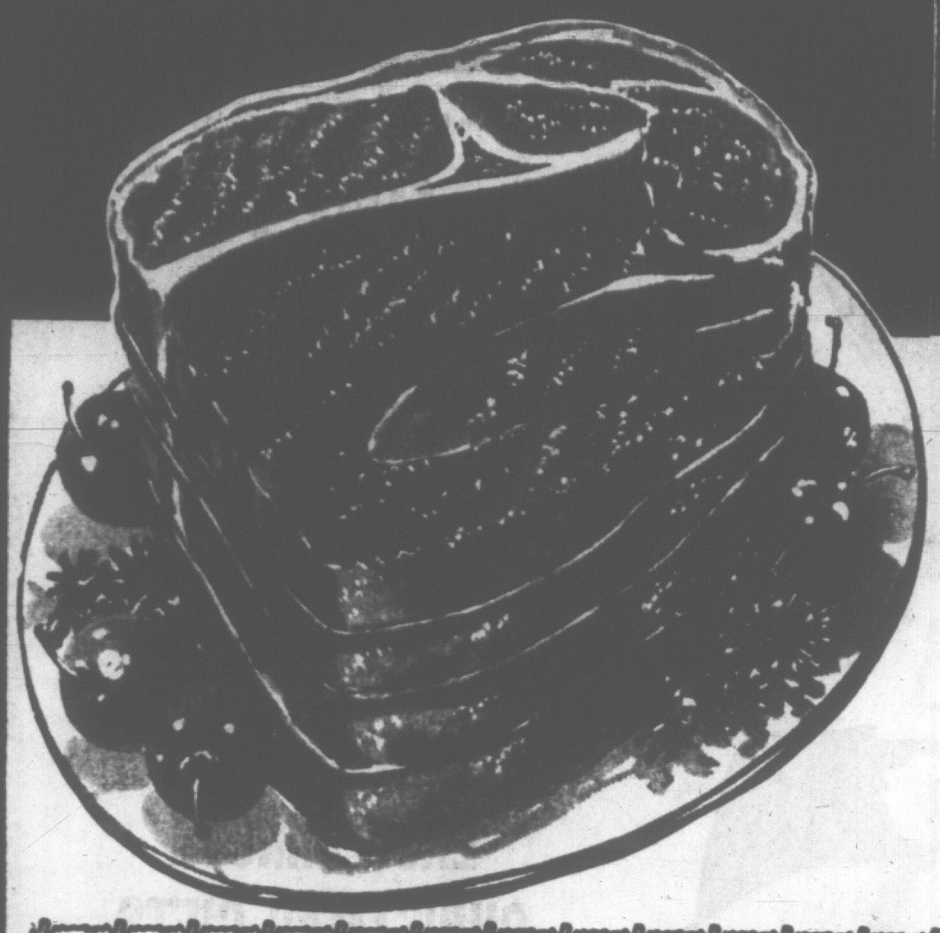

Denholm was commenting on a report from Saskatchewan that hospitals there are cutting costs by pooling drug purchases, and that drug prices there generally are down.

"Hospitals here have been pooling their purchasing power for some time," he said. "Saskatchewan is merely catching up to the trend," he said.

He said an increased demand for drugs on the North American continent has been so great that savings through mass-production have resulted.

GOLDEN TUB CLEANS HOTEL OF $361,111

TOKYO (AP)—Tokyo's weights and measures bureau was surprised Tuesday at a big golden bathtub shaped like a bird that its makers brought in to have weighed before shipping it to a hot springs hotel in Izu, Japan. The tub is made of 22-karat gold, weighs 300 pounds and reportedly cost $361,111.

Mail 'Shot Across a City'

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuters) — Hamburg citizens soon will have a shorter wait for their mail—it will be literally shot across the city as a bullet by a rifle.

In a few weeks Hamburg will have an underground postal tube, the post-office's solution to the city's traffic jams.

About 500,000 letters a day will be packed into capsules and catapulted by air pressure through a narrow tube several miles across the city from the main post office to the sorting office.

The 18-inch cement tube, which winds its way among the city's sewers, drains, gas pipes and underground railway lines, is only the first leg of a 65-mile network which one day will connect all the main post offices to the head office and the head office to the airport.

The Hamburg post office venture, which is already being admiringly studied by postal officials from many other countries, will ensure that the time saved by air postal transport and night postal flights is not wasted as post office trucks inch their way at snails' pace through traffic-clogged streets.

COURSE 'A WASTE'

NEW YORK (AP) — William Black, board chairman of a restaurant chain, explained in a letter Sunday why he once gave $5,000,000 to build a medical research building at Columbia University but refused to donate $20 to the school of business alumni fund: "I am of the opinion that, unlike engineering or medicine, the subject of business is not scientific enough to be taught . . . that I wasted my time at the Columbia School of Business."

MSA Studies Curbs for Misuse

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Medical Services Association is considering restricted coverage for persons who misuse the medical insurance plan.

It has been announced that recommendation for this was established to study utilization and servicing.

F. A. Fisher, MSA president, said at a press conference before the annual MSA convention that it is known that some persons are going to doctors unnecessarily.

"Where there is obvious abuse by a member or by his dependent there will be interviews with the committee and some action will be taken," he said. "They will not be taken off MSA."

The annual report presented at the convention said the committee established a principle that the B.C. Medical Association would take "any necessary corrective action against any offending member of the medical profession and the board of directors of MSA would apply restricted coverage, if necessary, in dealing with any MSA member or dependent."

COLORFUL HISTORY OF FIRST GRAVING DOCK

Sleek Greyhounds of Sea Serviced

On June 20, 1887, Her Majesty's steam frigate HMS Cormorant, under the command of Commander J. E. T. Nichols, RN, entered the newly completed drydock at Esquimalt, B.C.

The exact reason for her entry is not known. It may simply have been to declare the drydock completed and open for use. On the other hand, Cormorant's entry might have been for a more technical reason, such as having the barnacles scraped from her bottom. If such was the case, the needs of ships haven't changed much in 77 years, for the sea is eternal and man for all his ingenuity hasn't defeated the effect that salt water can have on the submerged portion of a ship's hull.

As this story is written, a sleek, steam-turbine-powered destroyer of the Royal Canadian Navy, Her Majesty's Canadian Ship Mackenzie, sits in the drydock for similar treatment to her plates, scraped clean of marine growth, followed by the application of fresh coats of preservative paint. This is a necessity, for a build-up of such growth can slow a ship a knot or so, and speed is of the essence.

FAR CRY

While it is a far cry from today's sleek greyhounds of the sea to those of yesteryear, the naval drydock itself hasn't really changed much in all those years. True, 1887's dockmaster, John Devereaux, might marvel at the modern pumps, the electric capstans, cranes and all the other steam, compressed air, and electrical equipment of today, but he'd still recognize the drydock he knew so well those many years ago.

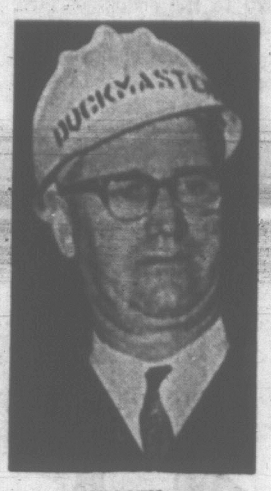

Construction work on the drydock began in September of 1876 with the driving of the first piles, but due to various delays, it was not until October 1879 that the cofferdam was completed. A Montreal firm was awarded a contract for construction of the dock, but work by that firm stopped in 1882. Construction was continued for a time by the B.C. Government, who turned the job over to the Dominion Government under the Settlemen. Act in 1884.

COST $1.1 MILLION

The graving dock was finally completed in June, 1887, at a total cost of $1,171,664.

The drydock was used continually until 1925, when Esquimalt Graving Dock across the harbor was completed. The naval dock was then left idle and used for the berthing of ships. It was put back into operation as a drydock during the Second World War, and has been used for its original purpose ever since. It is now known as the first graving dock.

During the years of disuse, however, much of the dock's original equipment was scrapped, including the steam pumps and boilers, and the caisson, or gate. The dock itself and the pumping tunnels had remained in good shape. New electric pumps with a capacity of 18,000 gallons per minute, a smaller auxiliary pump, and a new steel caisson were installed. The dock floor was levelled with concrete to provide a better and larger working area for the workmen, and modern, mobile equipment to make the steam-cleaning and painting of ship's bottom's easier and more efficient.

BOOTH
. . . dockmaster

The latest piece of equipment, a 15-ton level luffing jib crane, capable of moving the full length of the drydock, is within days of completion. This new crane, capable of lifting a 15-ton weight 75 feet high, will cost $415,000, including tracks and concrete foundations. In 1876, when plans for construction of the dock were first drawn up, a total expenditure of only half a million dollars was anticipated.

The drydock is actually owned by the Federal Department of Public Works, but the Department of National Defence is responsible for its operation and maintenance through commodore, superintendent Pacific, Cmdre. H. A. Winnett, RCN.

The dock comes under the domain of the manager, ship repair, who at present is Captain R. M. Battles, RCN.

The dockmaster is Mr. Victor N. Booth, who supervises a staff of eight civilian work men. It is interesting to note that, in 1887, the dock's staff was seven men.

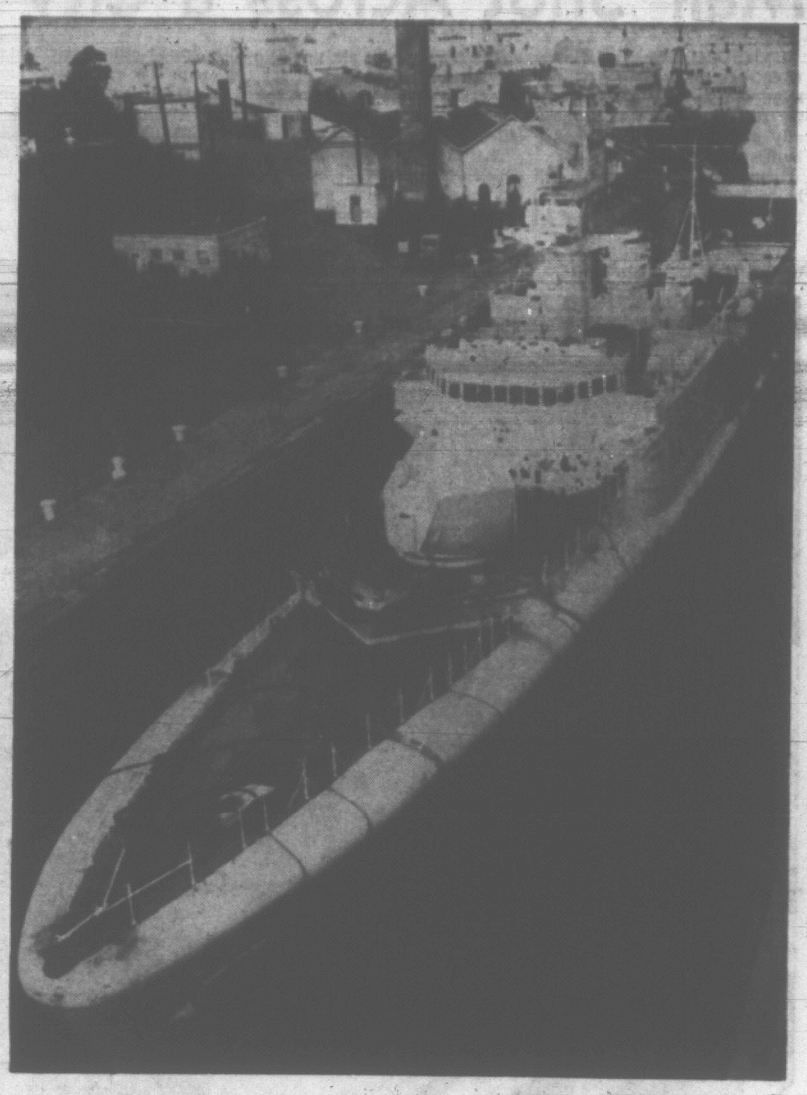

IMPORTANT PHASE

The docking of ships in the first graving dock is an important phase of the varied activities at HMC Dockyard. Canada's modern warships are vital to the defence of our coasts and to our continued use of the seas. The graving dock and the men who work in it, play a necessary part in keeping the ships in good repair and in all respects ready for sea.

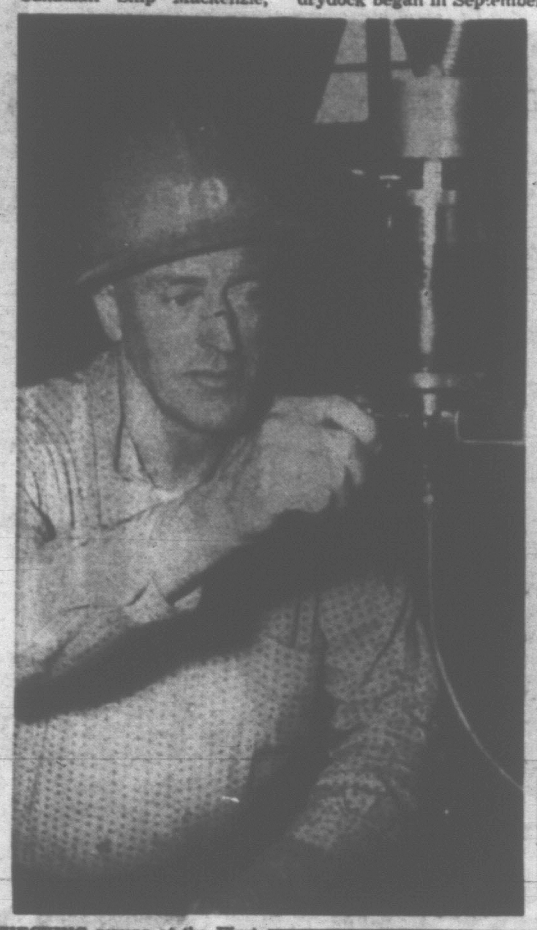

This work can best be summed up by the following words, an excerpt from Ronald A. Hopwood's Laws of the Navy. ". . . when the ship that is tired returneth, with the signs of the sea showing plain, Men place her in dock for a season, and her speed she reneweth again . . ."

This has been first graving dock's purpose in life for most of its 77 years, and today, it is serving the 1,349th vessel to call on the dock's facilities.

Ex-Steeple Jack Found Guilty In Bridge Climb

VANCOUVER (CP)—Girt Larsen, an ex-steeplejack from Denmark who stopped traffic when he climbed 200 feet up a bridge here last October, Tuesday was found guilty by assize court jury of public mischief.

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes remanded him to Dec. 21 for sentence. He could be sentenced to as much as five years.

Court was told that the northbound traffic lane was cut off to traffic for more than two hours at the height of the morning rush hour as a result of Larsen's ascension of the superstructure of the Lions Gate Bridge across the entrance to Vancouver's harbour.

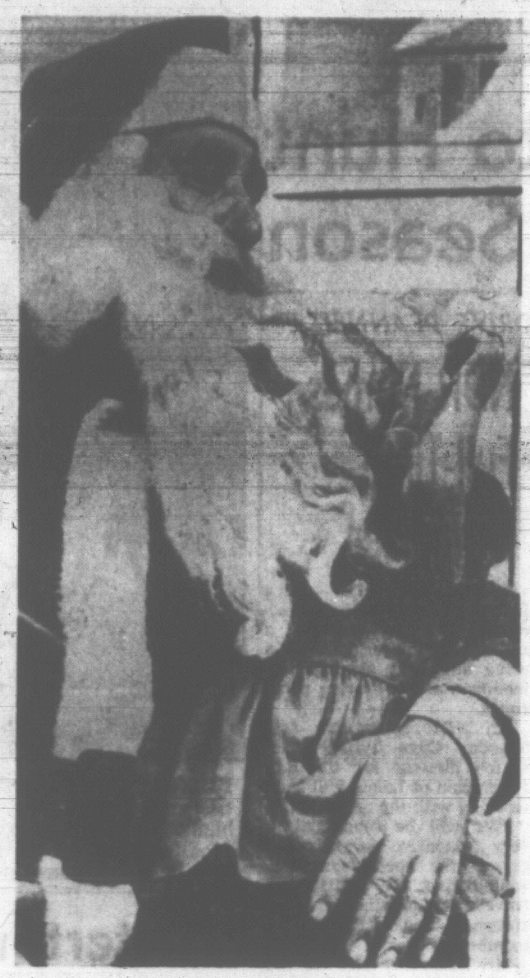

He had come down voluntary when given assurance that Attorney-General Bonner would study a complaint Larsen has against the provincial Workmen's Compensation Board. He claims the board has refused him payment for back injuries he suffered in an industrial accident.

Larsen told the court through his defence council he did not intend to disrupt bridge traffic. He said he had often climbed lofty smokestacks in Denmark and claimed that at no time was he in danger on his lofty perch 200 feet up the superstructure above the bridge's traffic deck.

He said he had no plan to jump once he got up there.

HOME GARDEN

A Piece of Board Helps

By HILDA BEASTALL

The birds have had ample food supplies in nature's larder this winter, but as we go into colder weather our little friends have difficulty in obtaining their needs.

Hilda

A feeding station for them can be as simple as you please, a flat piece of wood nailed to a fence post will suffice.

Preferably however, it should be in a spot surrounded by trees or shrubs, or any type of obstruction to prevent the seagulls from swooping in to the feast.

This may sound inconsistent, to keep gulls from food put out to attract birds, but I feel that the gulls are a strong enough race to survive on pickings from the shores and beaches and need not be encouraged to feed inland at the expense of land birds. The small ones are, understandably, afraid of the big fellows.

During the past week we have seen purple finches, Oregon towees, various wrens and an assortment of sparrow types (which so far we are not smart enough to identify), all feeding and drinking at a simple board.

A large piece of suet is nailed to the board, and over and around it we scatter rolled oats, a few bread crumbs and fine sand for grit.

A two-inch deep grey enamel dish on the board is kept filled with water. When nights threaten to be freezing, the water dish is taken into the greenhouse after the last feeding at dusk, so that it may be put out again for the early morning feeding time. Frozen water in a dish is no more use to the birds for drinking than is frozen water on the ground.

There is of course something quite selfish in this winter feeding of wild birds.

We love to see them enjoying our bounty, and we like also to think of them co-operating in our efforts to hold the insect population in balance.

The training period for a line skater is usually six weeks.

Applicants who do not pass the initial audition may try again after following prescribed skating recommendations.

FIGURE SKATES

Applicants must bring their own figure skates and costumes.

Skaters will be judged by Ballet Mistress Dolly Pierce and Performance Director Bobby Specht.

Prospective male skaters must be 18 to 22 years of age, and measure between 5.8 and 6.2 in height.

Girls must be between the ages of 17 and 21 years, and between 5 feet and 5.6 in height.

$2,800 TO SCARE A DOG

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Robert Hall was on a stepladder painting his kitchen when a shaggy dog wandered in through a door left open for ventilation.

"Scram," said Hall.

The dog wagged his tail.

"Get outta here," Hall commanded.

The dog stepped toward the ladder.

Hall waved a bucket of paint thinner at the dog.

There was an explosion.

The dog scrammed. The service porch caught fire. The kitchen caught fire. Hall scrambled down the ladder and called the fire department. They put out the fire.

The water heater pilot had ignited the paint thinner, said firemen, who reported the incident Monday.

Hall said the damage will cost him $2,800.

ITU Promised Strike Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Tremblay told a group of striking Toronto newspaper printers Tuesday that he intends to make a special investigation into the allaged import of United States strikebreakers in Canadian labor disputes.

He made the promise after the group of union leaders from the Toronto local of the International Typographical Union (CLC) complained that eight professional strikebreakers from the U.S. now are working for The Star, Telegram and Globe and Mail in Toronto.

Red Ensign Red Put In New Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's proposed new maple leaf flag retains one characteristic of the Red Ensign — the red of the ground or field of the Ensign.

Herman Batten, chairman of the Commons flag committee which recommended the flag design, said today the committee agreed that the red in the new flag should be the red of the Red Ensign.

He said this will be the shade of red for the flag's single maple leaf on a white ground, with the red panels at either side of the flag being the same shade of red.

Application For Writ Turned Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice George Gregory of the B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday refused an application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Eleftherios Varmakiotis, a 22-year-old Greek seaman who jumped ship here in August, 1962.

Varmakiotis' counsel, John Drysdale, was given leave to appeal the decision.

Varmakiotis was arrested by immigration officials in Vancouver Nov. 4 and ordered deported on the grounds he had entered Canada illegally.

An appeal against the deportation order is scheduled to be heard in Ottawa Jan. 5.

A-G's OFFICE TO APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Indians' Right Upheld to Hunt On Crown Lands Out of Season

MR. JUSTICE DAVEY
. . . right preserved

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal Tuesday ruled that an 1854 treaty gives some Vancouver Island Indians the right to hunt game on Crown lands out of season.

In a written judgment the court said the Indians have the right under a treaty covering sale of Indian land to the Hudson's Bay Company.

The land was sold by the Saalequun tribe and it was given the perpetual right to hunt for food over the unoccupied lands within their ancient tribal hunting grounds.

Nanaimo lawyer D. M. Cunliffe, crown prosecutor when the case was in magistrate's and County Courts, said the attorney-general has informed him the crown will appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The decision arises from charges laid against Clifford White and David Bob who were found in possession of six deer, shot in July, 1963, on Mount Benson, near Nanaimo.

They were convicted in magistrate's court of having game in their possession during the closed season.

UPHELD

County Court Judge A. H. J. Swencisky, upset the conviction on appeal, in effect upholding the ancient treaty rights.

The crown appealed to the Court of Appeal and its arguments were rejected by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, Mr. Justice H. W. Davey and Mr. Justice H. J. Sullivan.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord and Mr. Justice F. A. Sheppard dissented with the majority.

The crown contended that the treaty conferred no hunting rights and also that the document was not actually a treaty.

In the judgment Mr. Justice Davey said in the charter granting Vancouver Island to the Hudson's Bay Company, the company was charged with settlement and colonization of that Island.

PART OF POLICY

It was clearly part of the imperial policy to head off American settlement of the territory and in that sense the company was an instrument of imperial policy.

It was also the long-standing policy of the Imperial government and the company that the Crown or the HBC should buy Indian lands for settlement by white colonists.

The judge said he had no doubt that Parliament intended the word treaty in Section 87 of the Indian Act to include all such agreements. This being the case, he said Section 87 does not extend the general provisions of the Game Act to the Indians in the exercise of their hunting rights over the lands in question.

ONE AUTHORITY

The judgment also said that it was the plain policy of the British North America Act to vest legislative control over Indian affairs generally in one central authority, Parliament.

"In pursuance of that policy, many agreements, some very formal, others informal, were made with various bands and tribes of Indians for the purchase of their lands. These agreements frequently conferred on the grantors hunting rights over the unoccupied lands so sold.

"Considering the relationship between the Crown and the Hudson's Bay Company in the colonization of this country, and the Imperial and corporate policies reflected in those agreements, I cannot regard Exhibit 8 (the treaty) as a mere agreement for the sale of land made between a private vendor and a private purchaser.

"ONLY PARLIAMENT"

"In my opinion," Mr. Justice Davey said, "their peculiar rights of hunting and fishing over their ancient hunting grounds arising under the agreements by which they collectively sold their ancient lands are Indian affairs over which Parliament has exclusive legislative authority, and only Parliament can derogate from those rights."

As a result, he said, the right of the two Indians to hunt the lands in question are preserved by the Indian Act and remain unimpaired by the Game Act and they were therefore rightfully in possession of the deer carcasses.

'Triumph Over Emotional Attacks'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Dental Association said Tuesday a fluoridation vote in last Saturday's municipal elections was a triumph over non-professional attacks.

Plebiscites in 15 areas resulted in seven communities passing the measure by the required 60 per cent majority, six others rejecting it clearly and two areas just short of the majority.

"These results show most voters in B.C. are confident enough in their dentists, doctors and public health officials to accept fluoridation in spite of emotional attacks by non-professionals," the association said in a statement.

Areas accepting fluoridation were Chapman Camp, Golden, Marysville, North Kamloops, Terrace, Kimberly and Port Moody.

Fuel Dump Raided

VIENTIANE (AP) — A communist Pathet Lao raid on a fuel dump at Thakhek, a Mekong riverside town 140 miles southeast of Vientiane, did an estimated $25,000,000 damage, A. C. M. Landsberg, director of the Shell Oil Company in Laos, said Wednesday. Landsberg returned from an inspection trip to his company's storage depot in Thakhek.

NDP Names Full-Time Organizer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia New Democratic Party has appointed a full-time organizer to head a drive aimed at signing new members and bolstering party funds.

An NDP spokesman said Tuesday Clive Lyttle, a research director for the B.C. Federation of Labor, will start working with the party Jan. 1.

"We will be conducting a very extensive organization drive," the spokesman said, adding that Mr. Lyttle will travel the province making speeches and signing new members.

Mr. Lyttle's salary was not disclosed but the spokesman said it would be paid out of the party's George Hobb's Memorial Fund which consists of party pledges. Mr. Hobbs was MLA for Revelstoke until his death in 1962.

The NDP launched a fund drive last summer when its debts totalled $24,000.

Esquimalt-Sanich MP George Chatterton will explain technical aspects of the Canada Pension Plan at a public meeting next week in the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday under sponsorship of the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council.

BOY BLIND AFTER DRINK OF ALCOHOL

QUEBEC (CP)—A 16-year-old boy from nearby Neufchatel is blind as a result of drinking adulterated alcohol sold to him last Friday by a 14-year-old friend, Police Chief Fernand Michaud of Neufchatel said Tuesday night.

An investigation was carried out Tuesday after doctors at St. Ambroise de Loretteville Hospital said it appeared impossible to restore the boy's sight.

Chief Michaud said the 14-year-old apparently filled a 16-ounce bottle with alcohol taken from a gallon container in his parents' basement.

Sailor Pays $225 In Fines

A sailor ended up paying $225 Tuesday because he wanted "to see how fast his car would go" on Broad Street Monday night.

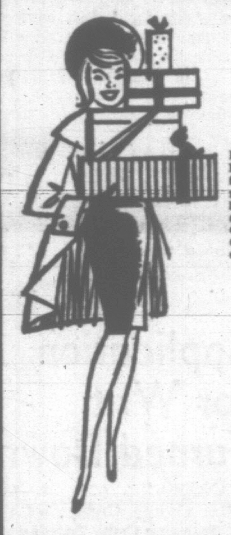

Charles R. Leeson, HMCS Sussexvale, pleaded guilty in city court to failing to remain at the scene of an accident, careless driving and being a minor without insurance.

The Crown prosecutor, Peter Birkett, said Leeson drove out of an alley on to Broad Street, near Johnson, at 9:20 Monday.

He hit a parked car but kept on going. He was caught about one hour later.

Mr. Birkett said Leeson told police he left the scene because he had no insurance. He said he pulled out fast "to see how fast his car would go".

Magistrate William Ostler suspended Leeson's licence.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

POT POURRI: British popular music impresario Brian Epstein, discoverer of the Beatles and other top-selling vocal groups, will present a weekly segment of NBC-TV's new one-hour variety show, "Hullabaloo," when it makes its debut in January. The program, other than the three-minute and four-minute segments introduced by Epstein, will originate in New York.

The New Zealand government has ruled that the whole country should get full television coverage before provision is made for a second channel. The government took this decision in face of pressure for a second channel on two grounds. First, the rapid increase in licences in remote districts, and second, the cost of supplying an alternative program at a time of heavy demand on overseas exchange funds.

Television in New Zealand did not start until 1960. The demand for sets has now reached a point well in excess of all estimates. So far, 250,000 sets have been licensed with 50,000 more in the pipeline. It now is believed 450,000 sets will be in use by 1966. When the first licences were issued in 1960, television totalled only eight hours a week. Today it has risen to 50 hours, normally running from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m.

For this service, householders pay an annual licence fee of $19.50. The programs include advertisements on alternate days, but on other days continue uninterrupted. There are no sponsored programs. The service is controlled by the New Zealand Broadcasting Corporation, a government-appointed body.

Clark Gable, Marilyn Monroe and Montgomery Clift appear in Arthur Miller's modern western drama, The Misfits, on ABC-TV's Sunday night movie, Jan. 3.

Julie Andrews, who followed Broadway musical successes with motion picture hits, has entered into an exclusive agreement with NBC-TV to star on a number of TV musical color specials . . . George Burns and Connie Stevens, co-starring in Wendy and Me, have been booked for Hollywood Palace on Feb. 13. This will be their first appearance as a duo in another TV show.

Perry Como's traditional narration of the Nativity—the formal, world TV debut of the 1,300-year-old Sistine Chapel Choir—songs by soprano Roberta Peters—the antics of Burr Tillstrom's Puppets, Kukla and Ollie—seasonal songs and carols—and a visit to Boys' Town of Rome made Como's special Christmas program taped in the Eternal City a splendid hour of tuneful enjoyment. The show, seen on Channels 2 and 6 Monday, will be repeated on Channel 5 tomorrow evening.

ABC has a Feb. 4 date with a new sort of monthly series called "Alcon Preview." Douglas Fairbanks Jr. will be the host. The one-hour shows will involve on-location, candid, behind-the-scenes presenation of future entertainment items such as Broadway shows, motion pictures and other entertainment. The Motion Picture Association of America and the League of New York Theatres are co-operating in the venture.

'Mad Killer' Sought In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Homicide detectives Tuesday night continued their investigation into the slaying of William A. Elletson, 60, killed in a savage whisky bottle attack in a downtown hotel room.

Police said death occurred Sunday night, but the body was not found until Tuesday because a "do not disturb" sign was hung on the door.

Elletson, a desk clerk at a motor hotel, was repeatedly struck on the head with the bottle and then pushed under the bed at his room in the Angelus Hotel, where he had lived since Sept. 18, detectives said.

The room was ransacked, and clothing, empty drawers and pillows piled over the dead man, police said.

Pieces of the shattered whisky bottle were scattered throughout the room.

"It looks like the work of a mad killer," a hotel spokesman said.

Detectives found a note in the room, but refused to disclose its contents pending further investigation.

19th Century Ruling Aids Sooke Count

Old judgments dating to 1882 helped decide the Sooke school board election Tuesday.

In Saturday's election, John Pearson polled 103 votes to incumbent R. E. Fitten's 100 in the contest for the Milne's Landing seat.

Returning officer L. W. Wheeldon wasn't sure about some of the crosses on ballots so he called in board solicitor Sean Howard.

Some ballots had crosses with little embellishments; some had loops or tails and one had an extra line which made it into a star.

Ballots should be marked with a simple x.

The odd-looking ballots were ruled in order after Mr. Howard said a late 19th century judge declared if a ballot makes clear the voter's choice the ballot is good.

Fire Area Boundary Approved

Boundaries of Langford and Colwood fire protection districts were decided Tuesday by two orders in council.

The cabinet agreed to turn over all the Triangle Mountain area from the Langford protection district to the Colwood fire department's jurisdiction.

"It was the only sensible thing to do because the Triangle Mountain area could only be reached by the Langford department by going through our district," an official of the Colwood department said.

Several lots in the Colwood Corners area also were added to the Colwood department's jurisdiction in order to close gaps in the boundary line.

FIGHT FOR WATER

Dams Political Levers In Troubled Mid-East

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Water is the essence of life.

It is water that man is trying to harness to serve a globe he threatens to over-run by sheer numbers.

All over the world, dams are being built or planned—dams to irrigate, dams for hydro-electric power, dams to control floods.

Water projects threaten war in the Middle East where Israel and Jordan stand at gunpoint over diversion of the Jordan River which flows between the two nations.

But India and Pakistan, at odds over the possession of Kashmir, are co-operating in a gigantic effort to regulate the waters of the Indus River.

Dams have become political levers in the East-West struggle to win friends in the uncommitted bloc.

The Special Fund of the United Nations has financed searches for dam sites in 20 countries.

WORLD DAM SURVEY

A survey made with the aid of Associated Press bureaus over the world shows this flood of water projects:

India and Pakistan—The Indus River, rising in the Himalayas from five main tributaries, is one of the great river systems of the world. The Indus project, the largest earth-moving task ever undertaken, began in 1960 after long and delicate negotiations that several times threatened to break out into war. The partition of the two countries in 1947 cut through the river and its tributaries. The total cost of the eight dams, 400 miles of canals and 2,500 wells and drainage facilities is estimated at $1,500,000,000, with the U. S. contributing $515,000,000 and Canada, Britain, West Germany, Australia, New Zealand and the World Bank, $210,000,000. When completed by 1970, the Indus system will water an area where 50,000,000 people live.

Nigeria — The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development has completed a survey for a $190,000,000 multi-purpose dam that will have a larger power capacity than any dam in Western Europe or more than all the hydro-electric power capacity available in all of Africa 10 years ago.

BRIDGE HOSTILITY

Mekong River — Despite the hostility that envelops the area, the four neighboring countries of Thailand, Cambodia, South Viet Nam and Laos are participating in a project to build a series of dams along this 2,600-mile river, one of Asia's greatest. As projected, the plan will take decades to complete and cost $2,000,000,000 at a mini-12,100,000,000 kilowatts of power annually. Since the beginning of planning in 1957, 20 nations, 11 United Nations agencies, three foundations and a number of private companies have participated in the work and pledged a total of $44,000,000.

Thailand—Last May, Thailand opened the Bhumibol Dam, said to be the seventh largest concrete dam in the world.

Iran — The spectacular 647-foot high dam on the Dez River, built with oil revenues and a $42,000,000 loan from the World Bank, is part of an ambitious program to revitalize an impoverished, arid area. About 120,000 persons will be affected directly by controlling the flood-drought cycles that yearly afflict the area.

Yugoslavia and Romania—These two countries recently inaugurated a joint construction in the Iron Gate Gorge of the Danube River that divided them. To be completed in 1971, the $400,000,000 project will tame the wild rapids of the river, and a hydro-electric dam will increase the power production of both countries by a third.

PLAN TUNNEL

Peru—Two hydro-electric and irrigation dams, one to cost $187,000,000, are planned in the Andean foothills. The larger, a dam on the Mantaro River, includes a 12-mile tunnel cut through the mountains to send the waters in a 2,400 - foot straight drop to the turbines in a valley.

Argentina—Argentina is considering a $408,000,000 hydro-electric dam in conjunction with Uruguay which would be the world's 15th largest. It would transmit power over a 730-mile line. Argentina also is contemplating a $307,000,000 project of two dams on the Neuquen and Limay rivers over 700 miles from Buenos Aires.

New Zealand—Work is ready to begin on a series of days to produce electricity from the snow-fed rivers that rise among the high volcanic cones of New Zealand's North Island.

Venezuela — The $550,000,000 Guri Dam in the Caroni River canyons is expected to double Venezuela's hydro-electric output when the first phase is completed in 1967. Its potential of 6,000,000 kilowatts is the greatest of any like project in the world. Near Lake Maracaibon, the government is also working on a six-dam reservoir to irrigate enough farm land to support 90,000 persons.

FEW FACTS KNOWN

China—Little has been released on the mammoth Yellow River project that would have controlled the disastrous floods that have swept China since recorded history. The lack of figures very likely means that the ending of Soviet aid may have hurt the project.

Mexico—During the last six years, the administration of President Adolfo Lopez Mateos spent $637,000,000 on irrigation projects including 38 major dams. The bulk of the financing has come from the federal budget.

United Arab Republic — The huge Aswan Dam on the Nile, being built and financed with Soviet help, is nearing completion. It will control the age-old flooding of the Lower Nile.

Zambia—One of the world's great dams, the Kariba on the Zambezi River, already is backing up water as a huge hydro-electric power source.

South Africa—The Organge River project taking shape in the arid heart of South Africa, will cost $630,000,000 and when completed in 30 years will water and supply power to a backward area the size of West Germany. The region will be able to support three times its present population. Productivity will be increased fourfold. A 52-mile tunnel, one of the world's longest, will be drilled as part of

WOULD TRIPLE POWER

Sudan—The World Bank completed a survey for a U.N. Special Fund project which would triple the country's generating capacity by 1978 at an estimated cost of $111,000,000.

Nepal—The Special Fund is studying a $300,000,000 plan to tap the Karnali River to produce 4,000,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. This is enough electricity to bring the mountainous Himalayan kingdom into the industrial age with power left over to export to India.

Guatemala—A study for the Special Fund indicates hydro-electric development could meet an anticipated quadrupled demand for power by 1976 and that the central American country's hydro-electric potential is more than 13 times that expanded figure.

Canada, the Soviet Union and, the United States as well as the nations of Western Europe, have built massive hydro-electric and irrigation systems in the past and construction continues apace.

Food Stall Operator Honored for Efforts

Mrs. E. E. Harper, operator of Victoria's famous Free Food Stall, has been rewarded for her years of effort on behalf of needy citizens.

She will share part of the reward by taking 100 children of welfare recipients to Ice Capades in the Memorial Arena Thursday night.

Mrs. Harper will also receive a sweater, hockey tickets, dinner for two and a corsage.

The prizes were awarded in a local radio station contest. The winner, Mrs. Sylvia Lyons, 2962 Milgrove, asked the station to give the prizes to Mrs. Harper in return for her good neighbor activities.

"It's just wonderful," Mrs. Harper said. 'I never really expected anyone to thank me. I only operate the food stall because it gives me a warm feeling to help others."

The Free Food Stall at 732 Cormorant Street will open Saturday at 11 a.m. and Mrs. Harper would appreciate gifts of food, especially vegetables. Her telephone number is 658-8177.

Deprived of All But Bread and Water . . . They Succeed

By DON DINGWALL

Cynics in agriculture say a man is crazy to invest now in dairy farming.

In the Cowichan Valley, 75 per cent of dairy farmers are immigrant Dutchmen.

And they are making money.

Why?

Hard work.

As Bill Barker, secretary-manager of Cowichan Agricultural Society, puts it: "They'll deprive themselves of everything but bread and lard until they get their toes in the dirt."

"And it's all work and hustle, plus the fact they have the know-how from being raised on Dutch farms.

"In Holland they couldn't hope to own a foot of land. When they get here they go all out to own a piece of dirt."

No one knows the Dutch better than Mr. Barker.

One of his special fields is supervising artificial insemination in this district.

He says: "Practically none of these Dutchmen has a bull. They're smart."

★

It costs about $300 to feed a bull for a year, and first you have to buy a bull.

Artificial insemination costs $6 a cow so that for $240 you can breed 40 cows. And that, says Mr. Barker, is from the best bull money can buy.

Rev. John van Dyke, minister of Christian Reformed Church in Duncan, says of his countrymen: "They feel at home here with the soft winters."

He thinks the Dutch immigrant integrates quickly and well and is keenly interested in technical progress.

Reeve Donald Morton of North Cowichan, farmer and farm writer, said people were inclined to think the Dutch came here as a colony. This is not true.

They play their part in many aspects of community life, notably in agricultural groups.

A good example is Case van Jaarsveld, chairman of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association.

He keeps 24 cows on his farm two miles north of Duncan.

What was nothing but trees and stumps in 1951 is now beautiful pasture. He financed himself into farming by working for years as a logger.

After a trip back to Holland, he decided Canada was the place if he wanted to live.

He says of his work: "The money angle is not favorable but I love farming.

"I made more money in the woods but it was not satisfying."

Dutchmen appoint a spokesman to attend all political meetings.

His job is to question candidates and report back.

The Dutchmen then debate and eventually vote as a block.

Also, many of the younger generation are active in 4-H.

A schoolteacher said, almost without exception, Dutch children are hungry to learn.

Trollers Ask Better Ships In Emergencies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Stanton, secretary of the Pacific Coast Trollers Association, said Wednesday the Canadian Coast Guard is of little use in rough-weather emergencies on the open Pacific.

"The cutters Ready and Racer can buck out into weather but once they have arrived at the scene they can't stand by and work," he said in an interview.

He said the association has made several applications to the Department of Transport in Ottawa, seeking a boat that could patrol the open waters off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

About 1,000 troll fishermen work from early spring to late fall in the area, protected in emergency by two lifeboats stationed at Bamfield and Tofino.

"The two lifeboats have done a magnificent service," Mr. Stanton said.

'TAKES GUTS'

"It takes guts and courage to take out a boat less than 30 feet in weather that produces emergencies.

"They are a legend but are simply not up to the job."

Mr. Stanton said the lifeboats are not equipped with radar and other equipment required to meet emergencies found in the area.

He said the association is trying to interest insurance companies in supporting the fishermen in their bid for a larger coast guard vessel that could patrol the area.

78 VESSELS

He said the Department of Transport lists about 78 vessels available for rescue duty but that most of them are not able to withstand heavy seas or rough weather and many are tied up in refit. They were police craft, lighthouse tenders and others.

"We are trying to get proof for another application to show how many of these boats are available if there was a call."

The Ready and Racer, 95-foot cutters with a top speed of 18 knots, went into service in the fall of 1963 and have since served mainly within the Strait of Georgia, located between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Most marine traffic is situated in the strait.

VIOLETS AREN'T TOO ACTIVE at this time of year. But there's plenty of work ahead for another Violet. She is Violet Merilees of Cowichan Station, who, with husband Bob, raises thousands of Indian Violets each year. Since starting growing 15 years ago, the couple has built up a business which is known throughout the world. Violets from their greenhouses are shipped thousands of miles each year and cost anything from $1.25 to $15. The violets live as long as 20 years.

Joint Programs Studied

PORT ALBERNI — Two steps toward amalgamation of Alberni and Port Alberni have been taken by councils in both cities.

Both councils Monday passed first readings of by-laws to form a single parks and recreation commission and another authorizing joint use of Port Alberni's sewage lagoon.

Alberni will share part of the lagoon's cost.

Also discussed by council here was a proposal to set up a joint works yard. It will be discussed by the next joint meeting of both councils.

Ratepayers in both cities voted for amalgamation earlier this year.

Meanwhile, the 1965 Port Alberni council will have to deal with the question of purchasing police radar equipment.

Council on Tuesday deadlocked on the issue after hearing conflicting evidence on the relative merits of the $600 speed-checking equipment.

No provision for the expenditure was made in the 1964 budget.

City council was also asked to help save the Canadian Scottish Cadet Corps here which is in danger of being disbanded.

Maj.-Gen. J. M. Rockingham has told Port Alberni all national defence buildings will be closed Jan. 20, but if the city wants to buy the buildings it can then offer cadets a place to parade.

Eliminate Duplication

ALBERNI — Alberni District School Board is preparing to ask the cities of Alberni and Port Alberni to take over maintenance of school grounds. Trustee Doug Goode says the takeover would eliminate duplication of services and equipment.

DUNCAN—The Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Comerce directors were told today that Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. were moving from their downtown premises here to a new location on the northeast corner of the Trans-Canada Highway at Trunk Road. The transfer will be made in January.

School Spending Probe Asked by Municipalities

PORT ALBERNI—Ald. Jack Perry said Tuesday a complaint has been made to Education Minister Peterson about extravagant school expenditures.

Ald. Perry told council here the extravagant expenses included excessive library costs, dues paid to the B.C. School Trustees' Association by school boards, hiring of professional engineers and summer tuition fees for teachers.

A TOTAL of $3,500 has so far been received from the sale of 1B Christmas seals at Duncan, Bob Corney, chairman of the annual fund-raising campaign, said today. Last year's receipts were $4,200.

He said the complaint to Mr. Peterson was made by Central Saanich Reeve R. G. Lee on behalf of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

He said one case of excessive spending involving libraries was that the cost of operating a district school library was more than for a public library in the same district. He said the public library was open longer and employed more staff.

★ ★ ★

DUNCAN — Cliff Pasco, president of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, dismissed as "irresponsible" a statement that the city of Duncan and the chamber "had not contributed one penny" towards Island publicity.

The claim was made by Charles Pearce, president of the Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Pasco said the Duncan Chamber in 1963 raised $500 for the Vancouver Island publicity bureau. The sum was matched by the city council.

So far this year, he said, the chamber has raised $400 and when the $500 mark is reached it would again be met by a similar grant from the city.

★ ★ ★

MAPLE BAY—Art Young of Ganges, has been invited by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to outline his plan for a bridge linking Salt Spring Island and Vancouver Island.

Mr. Young proposed construction of the bridge from Bold Bluff on Salt Spring to Sansum Point on the Maple Bay peninsula—a distance of about 1,600 feet.

★ ★ ★

LADYSMITH—John Corrins of Lantzville, was fined $150 in police court after pleading guilty to impaired driving. His driving licence was also suspended for four months.

ALBERNI — Art Thompson has been re-elected president of the Alberni Valley's 4-H senior council at an annual meeting held here recently.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Vivian Thomson, treasurer; Mrs. Doris Stephens, secretary.

Court Lays Wrong Charge?

GANGES — A criminal negligence hearing was adjourned to Jan. 11 Tuesday after defence counsel applied for dismissal of the charge.

Facing trial on the charge of criminal negligence in the death of Victor John Sholes, of Ganges, July 16, is Harold Francis Jones, of New Westminster.

At his preliminary hearing in the legion Hall here, defence counsel Paul Delaney, of Vancouver, submitted the prosecution had laid the wrong charge.

He said at the worst his client was guilty of careless driving and possibly civil negligence.

Speaking of the accident on the brow of a hill on the Ganges-Fulford Road, he said:

"This man was lured into a trap from which he could not escape because of this optical illusion."

He said there was a point at which it was impossible to see an approaching car.

Where the accident took place there were no signs saying it was unsafe to pass and there was a broken white line.

He also submitted there was no evidence of speed on Jones' part and suggested the case should come under the Motor-Vehicles Act.

Prosecutor George McMinn, of Victoria, submitted there was enough evidence to send Jones for trial.

Several witnesses were called.

Evidence was given that Sholes died outright in the two car collision.

His wife was critcaly injured. Jones' jaw was broken in several places.

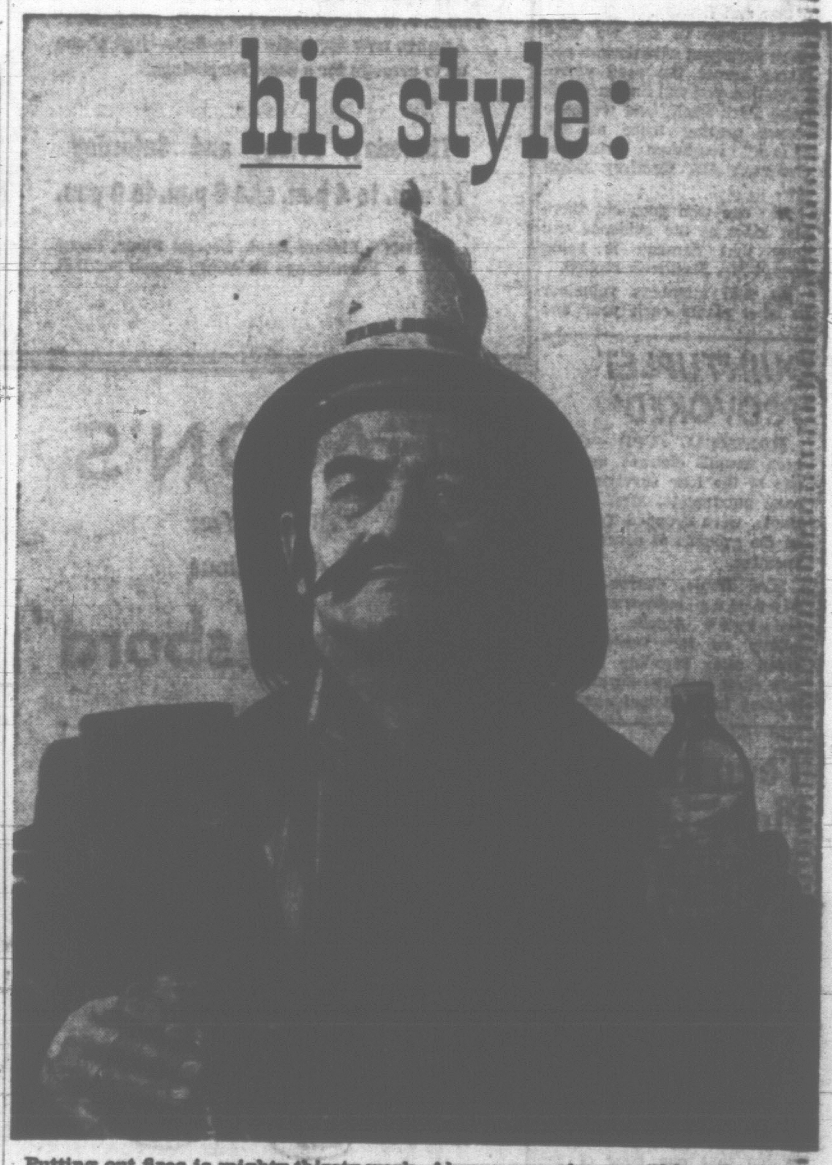

Magistrate D. G. Ashby said he would reserve judgment until Jan 11.

Birthday Celebration To Be Joint Effort

The four Greater Victoria municipalities agreed formally Monday night to make a joint effort of 1967 centennial celebrations in the capital region.

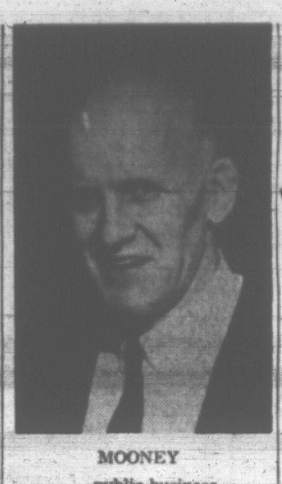

Ald. A. I. Curtis, chairman of an inter-municipal centennial study committee, said there will be one celebration, perhaps encompassing sports events and a pageant type of show.

"But pageants are expensive," he observed. He noted there would be travelling productions sponsored by federal and provincial governments that will be available to local celebrations.

The municipalities have agreed also to "seriously consider" as a group whatever suggestions may be put up for study as a permanent centennial project.

So far, the committee has studied no specific proposals for either a project or celebration.

Meanwhile, he said, it is expected that a centennial coordinator for the local area will be appointed within a few days.

RCMP Backs Gaglardi; Road Patrols Too Few

The RCMP is in full agreement with Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi that there should be more patrolling of highways, a spokesman said Tuesday.

At present, there are 97 men assigned to traffic law enforcement on highways and 45 more in the same capacity in municipal areas, said Supt. G. R. Engel of E Division headquarters, RCMP.

RCMP highway patrols average 287,000 miles a month, he said. In the last six months there have been 24,000 prosecutions for highway offences related to motor vehicles.

In that time, 180,000 vehicles were examined and about 29,000 checkup slips issued requiring corrections to be made on various faults in the cars.

Mr. Gaglardi was quoted in Vancouver as saying B.C. should have highway patrols with police powers similar to those in the U.S.

He wasn't criticizing the RCMP, he said, but primarily they were "better trained for other duties."

Supt. Engel said some highway patrol personnel are given a highly-specialized form of traffic training and all were given special traffic law enforcement training in addition to regular police training.

The RCMP highway patrol men have spent an average of nine years in the force, 5½ years in traffic law enforcement.

"Our men are experienced policemen with full powers of police officers," he said.

But he did agree with Mr. Gaglardi that more patrols are needed.

"Our manpower is spread pretty thin," he said.

Public Should Be Informed Of Traffic Survey: Mooney

A special capital region traffic survey will be public information as soon as it leaves the hands of Capital Region Planning Board, chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney said Tuesday.

His statement opposes earlier remarks by Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, who said councils should have at least a week to study the long-awaited report before the public gets it.

Thirteen months in the making and now undergoing minor technical updating, the survey will go to CRPB Jan. 12.

It was commissioned by the board, south Vancouver Island municipalities and the provincial highways department.

It is expected to outline the streets, highways and parking requirements of the region for considerable time to come, as well as forecasting areas in which special attention will be required.

Saanich is one major area in which it is expected considerable money will have to be spent to accommodate the regional traffic demands.

For Victoria, the report could recommend such features as one-way streets downtown and a bridge over the Inner Harbor linking James Bay with Victoria West.

Ald. Mooney said "our approval or disapproval will be made known to councils.

"If it comes to the councils, then it is public business," he said.

MIGRATING OWL

The U.S. snowy owl is one of the few owl species that migrates—from the Arctic tundra to more temperate climes, but never the tropics.

NO FATALITY IN 10 YEARS

TRAIL (CP) — Congratulatory telegrams were received Tuesday by this city, marking 10 years without a traffic fatality.

"Your achievement of 10 years without a traffic fatality is an example for motorists, traffic safety groups, police and engineers throughout Canada," said a message from Prime Minister Pearson.

Thetis Nature Walk Banned to Horsemen

City parks committee Tuesday pledged itself to the principle of banning horses from the nature sanctuary at Thetis Lake Park.

Members asked parks administrator Herb Warren to recommend a method of keeping riders off the "nature walk" area on the east shore of the lake, near the foot of Seymour Mountain.

Action followed a submission from Harold Matthews, representing the 536-member Thetis Lake Park Nature Sanctuary Association, who described himself as a former rider and not unsympathetic toward horsemen.

But horses and plant lovers don't mix at Thetis Park, where hooves tear up the trails and damage the flora, he said.

"The trails are ankle deep in dust in the summer and ankle deep in mud in the winter," Mr. Matthews said.

He asked that signs be posted, as in such provincial parks as Miracle Beach, Shuswap and Francis, and a number of U.S. parks, forbidding horses in certain areas.

The sanctuary covers 400 acres of the 1,200-acre park and is noted for a profusion of wild plants and flowers.

"I venture to say we have more variety of wild flowers and plants across the road where I live than you will find in Thetis Lake Park itself, and we have horses grazing there all the time," remarked committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

"No one who goes out there and looks at the evidence can deny that damage is being done," Mr. Matthews replied.

He said members volunteer to label plants each year and have 350 documented on four trails in the sanctuary.

"I feel the same as Mr. Matthews," said the parks administrator. "There is plenty of scope for horsemen elsewhere in the park."

Highland Road and fire roads are also used as equestrian trails.

QUINTUPLET 'PROVOKED'

MONTREAL (UPI) — Common assault charges against one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets, Mrs. Marie Houle, were dropped Tuesday on the grounds of severe provocation.

Mrs. Houle, charged with slapping babysitter Mrs. Georges Asselin, smiled briefly as the verdict was given after standing tensely and close to tears during the hearing in municipal court.

Teen Program Plays Host To Orphans

The children at Victoria's Protestant Orphanage received an extra Christmas treat last Saturday in the form of a Special Television Orphans' Party.

The 44 orphans were entertained by CHEK-TV's Club 6 dance party.

The local television group's 50 "regular kids" planned and organized the event under direction of emcee Boy Aylward.

A resolution by the club membership that one hour of the year could pleasantly be devoted to the children at the orphanage put the show in production.

More than 175 teen-agers turned out to entertain the children.

Local sponsors provided transportation to and from the television studios.

The party was complete with hot-dogs, pop, candies and all the trimmings.

Money donated by the teen-agers bought Christmas gifts for the youngsters.

A Santa Claus distributed the presents, following which there were games and dances around the Christmas tree.

BOILING radiators were common sight today in local service stations. Operator Jack Hawkins warms up in the steam coming from Mrs. H. De Beck's car. Many drivers had too little anti-freeze.

STEAM rose like mist from Greater Victoria harbors this morning, sending sea watchers scurrying to telephones. The water was warmer than the air. But there was no sign of anyone swimming.

MEMO TO PROBE

Denis Denied Bribe Attempt Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified today that there was an undetermined sum of money to be paid to the Liberal party in addition to the $20,000 he says he was offered by a ministerial assistant as a bribe.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in a memo read to the Dorion judicial inquiry today that he was informed Sept. 2 of allegations of bribery against Raymond Denis and that the former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay had denied them.

The memo also said that Justice Minister Favreau had informed the prime minister at the same time that the RCMP was investigating.

Mr. Pearson was quoted as saying in the memo that Mr. Denis was immediately sent on leave while the investigation was taking place and that the prime minister was content to await the result of the RCMP investigation.

The prime minister's memo was read before the inquiry by Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government.

He said it was a copy of a statement Mr. Pearson had been unable to make in the Commons before the inquiry opened because of the procedural situation.

Mr. Deschenes said the memo was attached to a letter from Mr. Pearson to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion who was appointed by the federal cabinet to inquire into allegations of bribery and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers.

HEARD STORY NOV. 23

The memo said that on the evening of Nov. 23 and the morning of Nov. 24 Mr. Pearson first learned of the details of the allegations and of the RCMP reports.

It said that as Mr. Pearson had told the Commons Nov. 24, he had not known until then of the involvement of his parliamentary secretary, Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard, in the Rivard affair.

Mr. Rouleau resigned as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, saying in the Commons that he had made representations in connection with an application for bail for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, whose extradition from Canada is being sought by the United States government.

Rivard is wanted by U.S. authorities on narcotics smuggling charges.

Mr. Pearson's memo noted that Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary North, had asked him in the Commons on Nov. 24 as to when the prime minister first heard of the allegations aginst Denis.

The memo said his answer at that time to Mr. Harkness "should be clarified." He had first learned of the content of the RCMP reports shortly before the justice department estimates came up for debate in the Commons on Nov. 23.

However, Mr. Favreau had informed him on Sept. 2 of the allegations, the denial and that the RCMP were investigating.

Earlier, Mr. Lamontagne testified that he rejected immediately $20,000 offered him by Denis.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was slightly surprised but not shocked at the offer. He interpreted it as an offer not to oppose bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government in the case. The U.S. wants Rivard extradited to face narcotics smuggling charges under an indictment which links his name with the Mafia international crime syndicate.

As the hearing went into its second day, there were these developments:

RULES OUT EFFORTS

1. Chief Justice Dorion ruled against efforts to find out source of information placed on the Commons record by Erik Nielsen, MP for Yukon, which sparked the appointment of the judicial inquiry.

2. The judge also ruled that counsel for the four opposition political parties — Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats,

New Soviet Premier Will Go to London

LONDON (UPI) — Alexei Kosygin, the new Soviet premier, will travel to London "in the new year" for talks with Britain's Labor government, Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced today.

The visit was expected to be Kosygin's first abroad since he took over from ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev Oct. 15 — the same day Wilson's Labor party was elected to power.

Wilson said Kosygin also was "anxious" for him to go to Moscow.

The Prime Minister, who talked with President Johnson in Washington last week in his first trip abroad since his election, also announced new journeys in his stated campaign to become a welder of western and world unity.

After his scheduled meeting with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard in Bonn Jan. 22, he said, he would be making trips to Paris and Rome for talks with government leaders there.

Alberta Storm Leaves 5 Dead, Moves to Sask.

By The Canadian Press

One of the worst prairie blizzards in history continued to batter parts of southern Saskatchewan today after dealing a savage blow to Alberta.

At least five deaths were attributed to the storm in Alberta.

One man died of exposure, three men died from apparent heart attacks and another man burned to death in a shack Tuesday near St. Albert, Alta., in a fire believed to have started near a heater.

Four men reported missing at midnight Monday on a 22-mile car trip to Alliance in central Alberta turned up safely at a farm house.

The storm centred today at Swift Current in southern Saskatchewan where temperatures dipped to 30 below and winds hit 70 miles an hour.

Alberta reported similar conditions Tuesday but the winds eased today. Temperatures remained far below zero.

Schools closed, travel was cut to essentials and the public was warned to stay home.

A Calgary hospital official warned residents not to walk more than four blocks in the storm.

Clem Trimming, 80, of the Red Deer district was found dead in his shack after his wood-burning stove went out. Police said the inside temperature matched the outside reading—30 below.

Edmonton postmen were told not to complete their afternoon deliveries Tuesday and a Calgary milk company official said some of his drivers were still trying to complete their calls at midnight.

Some areas in Southern Alberta reported electrical failures Tuesday and as the brunt of the storm struck Saskatchewan, the southwestern part of the province was plunged into darkness when two power lines touched, causing a short circuit.

Weather officials said the combination of strong wind and extremely cold temperatures made the blizzard one of the worst in history. A wind chill of 105 degrees below zero was reported at Moose Jaw by RCAF weather officials.

Cold Wave Increases Flood Fear

FAIRBANKS (AP) — Alaska remained in the grip Tuesday of a massive cold wave that sent temperatures to 60 degrees below zero, endangered two areas with flooding from ice-choked rivers and froze the usually moderate Alaska Panhandle.

Fort Yukon and the Cooper River Valley recorded 60-below temperatures Monday night, as did Dawson in the Yukon Territory.

On the Kenai Peninsula, the Kenai River was jammed with ice for seven miles from below Soldotna to the town of Kenai. Six families were evacuated during the weekend.

12 Die In U.K. Fog Accidents

LONDON (Reuters) — At least 12 persons were reported dead in Britain today after a wave of automobile accidents Tuesday night brought on by dense freezing fog and icy roads.

A blanket of fog spread to nearly all parts of the country and plummeting temperatures threatened to turn flood-stricken areas of Wales and the West of England into icebound islands.

Early today, police closed off the M-1 motorway linking London and Birmingham after an accordion pile-up of 70 cars and trucks in which one man was killed.

On the M-6 motorway two persons were killed and nine were injured when 20 vehicles collided in fog and ice.

Big Snowstorm Hits North U.S.

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A mammoth snowstorm packing deadly winds churned through the northern United States today, driving temperatures far below zero in some areas and closing schools and roads.

The powerful storm, described by the weather bureau as almost unprecedented for late autumn, covered the entire northwestern quarter of the U.S.

A weather bureau meteorologist in Helena said "venturing out of doors is considered dan-

Coldest Ever For December

By PETE LOUDON

A freezing north wind brought snow and record-shattering temperatures to Greater Victoria Tuesday night . . . and there's more snow threatening.

It was the coldest night ever recorded in December.

And the mercury nudged the all-time low of 6.4 degrees registered Jan. 13, 1950.

Our overnight low: 6.9 degrees.

The weather stunned Victoria and before the community was fully recovered, weatherman Bill Mackie said:

"The next weather system heading south from Alaska could bring an appreciable amount of snow by tomorrow—and I do mean snow."

He said it will be clear tonight with the odd cloud and the occasional snow flurry, but the potential for early Thursday is snow. Low tonight 15 (a bit higher), Thursday 25.

It was snowing at Sooke before noon.

The 40-mile north wind that hit Victoria late Tuesday left the city gasping.

- Hundreds of residents found water pipes frozen today.
- Hundreds of cars were weather-bound.
- Power was disrupted in some areas, ferries were rocked, a radio station was put off the air, small boats were harbor-locked.

Other Stories, Pictures On Pages 13, 14

Police and fire departments and city and district road crews worked overtime with weather problems and warnings went out against fire and collision dangers. But through it all, the loss in accidents was small.

There was only three-tenths of an inch of snow but it made roads glassy.

Mrs. Irene Evans, 2715 Maddison, and her son Robert went to hospital after their car shot over a 20-foot embankment on Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum.

There were tie-ups at most main intersections as drivers slid and skidded homeward from work. All police departments today reported abandoned cars. There were only about a dozen collisions reported however.

Chimney fires were numerous, there were two house fires in Central Saanich this morning and a small fire today at B.C. Forest Products in Victoria.

But the biggest trouble and the biggest fire threat came from frozen pipes and domestic attempts to thaw them.

Three city plumbers said they had a total of 72 calls early today.

"As fast as we thaw them, they're freezing again," said Shade Brothers.

MOTHERS, CHILDREN ANSWER PLEA

Donations Ease Agony of Parents

By MARGE GILROY

A mother of seven, a mother of four, and a grandmother of six are among the recent contributors who have helped to boost the "Help The Hungry Child" fund past last year's total at this time.

Total today is $6,658.71.

In a sense these contributors represent all mothers who realize the agony parents in other countries must feel when they are not able to place a bowl of food on the table.

But it is not only a mother who can respond to the call of a hungry child. It is sometimes another child.

Recently when a four-year-old boy saw another boy on television crying because he was hungry, he took the jar of pennies he had been saving for a toy tractor and asked his mother to give them to the hungry boy.

Another $1.55 came from Pam Wills and Susan Trythall who used the potato masher to grind up flower petals to make perfume, which they sold in the neighborhood.

Viki and Cheryl Barber, Jacqueline LaRoy and Brenda Gordon formed a theatre club and performed in the base-

PC Senator Bids to Block Endorsation of Leaf Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—A fresh flood of flag talk welled up in Parliament Tuesday, highlighted by a move in the Senate to kill off the yet-unborn red maple leaf flag.

In the Commons another hassle developed over a special committee's report recommending that the Union Jack be designated as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and membership in the Commonwealth.

Both Houses were headed for more of the same today.

Tuesday's events were an anti-climax, however, to Monday night's roaring wind-up of the Commons main flag debate in which a closure-imposed vote adopted the maple leaf flag, 163 to 78, after 33 days of bitter argument.

The chosen design is a single red leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

But it requires Senate endorsation and a proclamation by the Queen before it can fly over the nation.

A bid to deny that endorsation was made by Senator Grattan O'Leary of Ottawa who moved that the government suspend action on the maple leaf

MEMBER PUTS PUNCH INTO FLAG ARGUMENT

OTTAWA (UPI)—A Liberal and Conservative Member of Parliament tangled briefly in the corridor outside the Commons following Tuesday morning's hectic windup to the national flag debate, it was disclosed today.

Eye-witnesses said at least one punch was thrown before the pair were separated by onlookers. The two MPs were identified as James Byrne (L—Kootenay-East) and A. D. Alkenbrack (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox).

Both men played down the clash, although neither denied it.

. . . STORM COMING

The same firm reported many cases of oil congealing in furnace fuel lines and houses left without heat.

Warn Against Flame For Thaw

Plumbers advise—wrap the lines where they are exposed and use hot water to thaw them — don't use a flame. Also, where water lines are close to the weather, leave taps running, tonight.

Outside work became dangerous and uncomfortable. Victoria's three major shipyards sent their outside workers home this morning.

But for garage workers, there was no relief. They couldn't get all the cars into their garages. Drivers found they had too little anti-freeze. In one case a man who had a gallon in his car's system, found it had congealed.

Batteries gave up trying to crank cold motors. Service calls kept most service statoins hopping.

Sanich road crews spread 86 yards of sand mixed with salt on district streets, working five trucks and 18 men until midnight. Victoria spread salt until 10 p.m. and then the crews were out agin this morning.

Both departments were in control of the ice and snow this morning—but looking dolefully toward the promised snow.

B.C. Hydro crews worked most of the night when trees fell across wires in Central Snich, cutting power for 1½ hours, and in Mill Bay reas, where the longest dark period lasted four hours. Hydro buses were busier than they've been this winter.

Taxis experienced a heavy demand all night and early today they were asking customers to settle for a two-hour wait. B.C. Automobile Association was lso two hours behind in service calls.

Fuel dealers said their phones were ringing constantly. Most were promising delivery Thursday or Friday.

One oil company reported many of the calls were complaints that customers were not getting enough heat, although they had fuel. Concensus was that Victoria homes just aren't built to withstand low temperatures.

Radio station CJVI suffered a power break when high winds disrupted facilities at Strongtide Island. The break occurred at 8:30 p.m. The station was silent about 12 hours.

No Small Boats Cross Strait

Repairs were delayed because no small boat could get across the strait to the island. Finally, this morning, a helicopter from Vancouver carried station engineer Mike Doyle across and service was resumed at 9:20 a.m.

All Greater Victoria school boards reported heating systems working adequately and all schools open.

In Saanich District 63 one school bus was inoperative and student passengers were expected to find other transportation or stay home.

All Air Canada flights were reported on schedule.

The Department of Highways reported all Island highways passable, with chains required on the Alberni-Tofino Road. Sanding and salting was still in progress at noon.

RCMP joined with city police in warning of possible snow.

"Keep your foot of the brakes, use your gears to slow down. Avoid hills. Allow 12 times as much space as normal for stopping. Drive slowly."

Duncan reported a low of 7 degrees Tuesday night, the coldest ever recorded there. There was less than an inch of snow.

Hydro area manager Al Van Sacker reported power failures, mostly in the Gulf Islands. Saltspring, Saturna, Galiano and Mayne, some of which lasted several hours.

. . . BRIBE

Social Credit and Creditistes—could question witnesses.

Mr. Lamontagne noted that he made no specific statement the opening day about rejecting the bribe offer.

He said he wants it clearly understood that he rejected it and that he then asked why Mr. Denis was getting himself into a business like that.

He hadn't gone to the police until about Aug. 11 mostly out of friendship for Denis, whom he called his "close friend" in earlier testimony. Political aspects of the matter were only minor.

Mr. Lamontagne testified Tuesday that Mr. Denis told him Rivard was a good Liberal and might be needed since an election might soon be called.

Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government, opened up the question of Mr. Nielsen's sources of information. He asked whether Mr. Lamontagne discussed the offer with the Progressive Conservative MP.

Mr. Lamontagne acknowledged Mr. Nielsen came to see him, without indicating a date. At this point, protests were voiced by Ross Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party, and Richard A. Bell, former Conservative immigration minister and counsel for Mr. Nielsen.

Mr. Bell charged the question of the source of Mr. Nielsen's information was only a red herring across the real line of inquiry—whether bribery and coercion allegations were true—and would only lead to a witch hunt.

Mr. Deschenes argued that the inquiry had to go into how RCMP reports of their investigations of the bribe allegations were handled. It was important to determine whether a public servant had committed a violation.

Chief Justice Dorion, in ruling that the point shouldn't be pursued, said that he did not see how this line of questioning would help determine whether or not the allegations were true.

Later, Mr. Lamontagne volunteered the statement that Mr. Nielsen had apparently come to see him as a courtesy because, he said, the MP already had the information on which he based his Commons charges.

Mr. Lamontagne said he gave Mr. Nielsen no information in the case.

Chief Justice Dorion rejected the request of Francois Chapados, counsel for a witness named Guy Masson, that lawyers for the political parties in Parliament be barred from cross-questioning witnesses.

He said it was logical to invite representatives of all parties to help bring to light all the facts.

PENGUINS COLD TOO

VANCOUVER (CP) — Temperatures tumbled throughout British Columbia during the night as icy winds from the north, up to 70 miles an hour, whipped across the province.

In Vancouver the overnight low of two degrees was a record for December, and too cold even for Stanley Park's penguins.

Zoo officials reported the Antarctic creatures were kept inside because they have become climatized to the usually balmy west coast.

The all-time record low for Vancouver was zero, set in January of 1950.

Victoria Buzzes and Booms

By PETE LOUDON

Watching Victoria grow is like watching a beehive.

Everybody is buzzing around, but you have to look deep inside to see what they're doing.

There are 5,000 new people a year in the capital region. What are they all doing for a living? Well, so far nobody's looked into it. But there are indications many of us now are catering to the needs of people who come here to retire or get an education.

Capital Region planner Tony Roberts and Saanich planner Tom Loney both threw up their hands at the question.

They agreed that our shipbuilding and forest industries are booming and that we have the benefit of being a garrison community, the seat of provincial government, and we have a healthy tourist industry.

But these industries have been stable for years. Something new is stirring our economy. And there are strong indications that the industry of catering to people who come here to retire or stay here to get a university education is the industry of the future.

"No study has yet been made of this," said Mr. Roberts. "If we knew the answer, it might indicate that we should be wise to launch a campaign to bring more people here to retire."

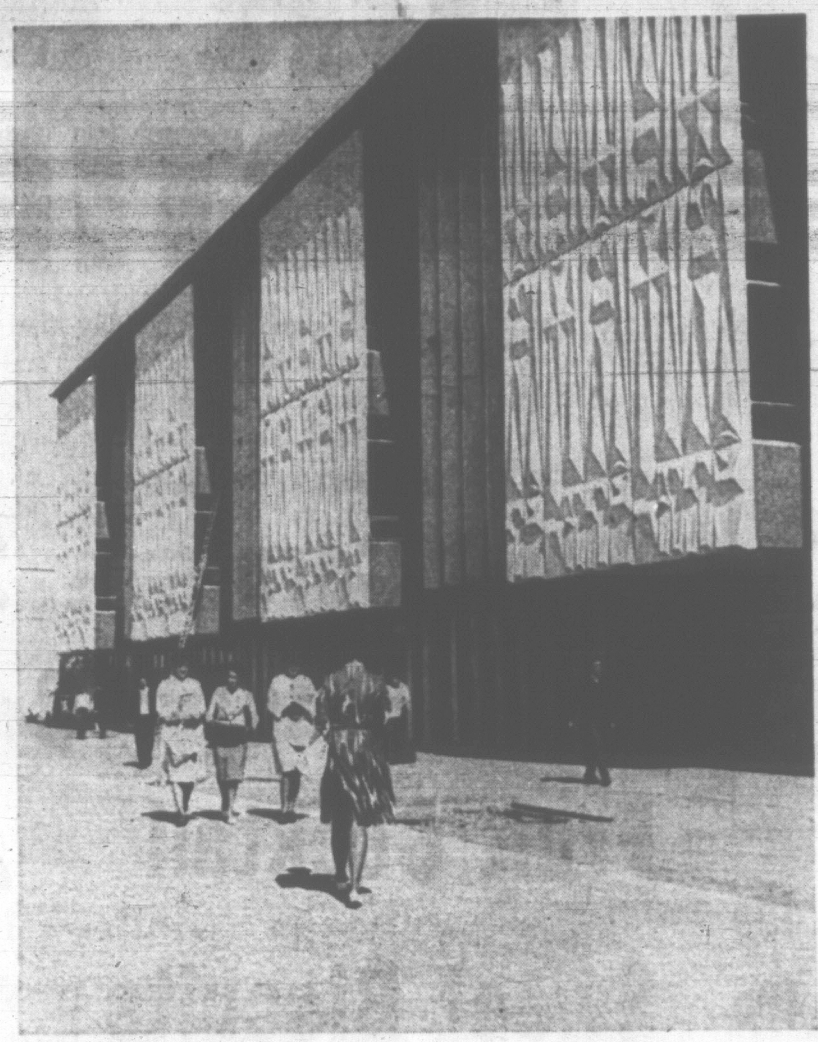

In Canada generally, only 7 per cent of the population is aged over 65. But in this region the total is far greater —about 16 per cent and as high as 21 per cent in some sections, such as Oak Bay.

Steady Income

There are unofficial estimates voiced that 500 couples a year come here to retire on assured incomes.

Almost any day downtown you can see something of the purchasing power they represent. Shopping seems to be a major occupation for many of our retired population. As Mr. Roberts says, we should measure this activity.

In 1960 the total value of retail sales in B.C. was $1.66 billion. Last year this had climbed to $1.87 billion. It was established that 15 per cent of the total sales were made by department stores. No figures were available for Victoria, but the creation of two new department stores in this area recently, speaks for itself.

MODERN STYLING of the new University of Victoria is symbolic of district progress. But more than that, the university plant is a new stable industry for the capital region, one which contributes $10 million a year to the local economy. Its expansion is assured.

The new university plant with its 2,500 students is an easier source of revenue to measure.

University president Dr. Malcolm Taylor told Rotarians here last month that the university had operational costs of $4 million—which were returned to the district in purchase of homes, clothing, groceries and the payment of taxes.

Capital expenditures of $1.5 million in the same period benefitted builders, suppliers and workmen. He estimated the students spend $600 each for books, clothes, meals and recreation annually.

And parents who no longer have to send their sons and daughters to other centres for schooling, save an average of $1,500 per year per student, which they would have paid for room, board and travel.

The grand total for the one year amounts to something close to $10 million in new or conserved money in Greater Victoria.

As the university expands, this could well become a solid mainstay of the community economy.

REPORT DUE IN FEBRUARY

Study of Aged Completed

OTTAWA (CP) — A special committee of the Senate has completed an exhaustive study of the problems faced by Canada's growing numbers of aged citizens.

The committee began its study Oct. 17, 1963. It held 31 meetings and heard submissions from 47 organizations representing a cross-section of Canadian life.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), committee chairman, said today the study showed the most serious problems facing the aged are lack of adequate incomes, housing, health services and recreation.

However, he said the study also has shown that many aged Canadians are not aware of services provided by all levels of government and by welfare and service organizations.

Senator Croll said committee staff now is co-ordinating views expressed in the 2,000 pages of evidence taken during the hearings.

He expects the committee will be in a position by mid-February to make recommendations to the Senate.

The committee heard oral representations from six provincial governments and received briefs from three others. The only province which did not present its views was Ontario.

New Driveways Out for Route

The full length of the Trans-Canada Highway — from the Victoria city limits to Nanaimo —was declared a controlled access highway Tuesday by the provincial cabinet.

The order in council invokes regulations prohibiting new driveways leading onto the highway without departmental approval. A similar order already covers the Patricia Bay Highway.

ISRAEL SEEKS CHIEF AS PREMIER RESIGNS

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Israel's ruling Mapai Party meets today and Thursday to discuss candidates as possible successors to Premier Levi Eshkol. He resigned Monday in dispute with former premier David Ben-Gurion.

Most observers expected Eshkol will be named to succeed himself by President Zolman S. Shazar.

Under Israeli law, the president calls the heads of the major parties to listen to their proposals for a new government.

The Mapai Party is the leading party in the government coalition.

Ben-Gurion, 78 has demanded that a full judicial inquiry be held in the 10-year-old Lavon affair, a 1954 "security mishap" believed to involve an abortive espionage mission.

Eshkol objected to the inquiry, saying it would cause more harm than good, and that there was no basis for it according to evidence on hand.

flag and replace it with a design incorporating "appropriate symbols of the founding peoples of this nation."

The motion might reach a vote today.

The motion recalled the argument advanced repeatedly by Conservatives in the Commons debate that a Canadian flag ought to include both the Union Jack and the Fleur-de-Lis.

Senator O'Leary stressed that he was not arguing for retention of the Canadian Red Ensign or for a national flag plebiscite, favorite topics of conservative MPs.

But a flag without the symbols of the past was no flag at all and "I for one refuse to believe that the majority of the people of Quebec want to tear the last vestige of the Union Jack symbol from the Canadian flag."

TORIES ABOUND

Although Conservative senators have insisted they do not intend to filibuster the flag resolution, observers noted that 31 of the 33 Conservative members of the upper chamber were present for Tuesday's opening of the Senate flag debate. Most of the Liberals also were in attendance.

While the Senate was enjoying one of its rare moments in the spotlight, the Commons launched its new flag argument with another verbal sparring match Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

It came after Hugh John Flemming (PC — Victoria, Carleton) moved an amendment to the committee report to provide that the Red Ensign, not the Union Jack, be the

Mr. Pearson said the idea is to have a symbol associated with the Queen as head of the Commonwealth.

'AN AUTHORITY'

"Therefore, what could be more appropriate for this purpose than the royal unit flag, (Union Jack) which is the Queen's flag?"

"Completely specious," Mr. Diefenbaker interjected.

"My honorable friend is an authority on specious arguments," Mr. Pearson shot back.

Referring to the Red Ensign amendment, Mr. Pearson asked:

"How can we have a Canadian national flag, and a former Canadian national flag as the one emblematic of our association with the commonwealth?"

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister had made "a series of statements that are historically unsound."

Mr. Pearson said that if Mr. Diefenbaker "will just contain himself for about two minutes he will be able to get up on his feet and give me a lecture in history."

Both men then got into a hassle over questions of privilege, their anger mounting.

Later, H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said he would back the Red Ensign amendment, along with some of his colleagues.

MEMO TO PROBE

Denis Denied Bribe Attempt Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified today that there was an undetermined sum of money to be paid to the Liberal party in addition to the $20,000 he says he was offered by a ministerial assistant as a bribe.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in a memo read to the Dorion judicial inquiry today that he was informed Sept. 2 of allegations of bribery against Raymond Denis and that the former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay had denied them.

The memo also said that Justice Minister Favreau had informed the prime minister at the same time that the RCMP was investigating.

Mr. Pearson was quoted as saying in the memo that Mr. Denis was immediately sent on leave while the investigation was taking place and that the prime minister was content to await the result of the RCMP investigation.

The prime minister's memo was read before the inquiry by Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government.

He said it was a copy of a statement Mr. Pearson had been unable to make in the Commons before the inquiry opened because of the procedural situation.

Mr. Deschenes said the memo was attached to a letter from Mr. Pearson to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion who was appointed by the federal cabinet to inquire into allegations of bribery and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers.

HEARD STORY NOV. 23

The memo said that on the evening of Nov. 23 and the morning of Nov. 24 Mr. Pearson first learned of the details of the allegations and of the RCMP reports.

It said that as Mr. Pearson had told the Commons Nov. 24, he had not known until then of the involvement of his parliamentary secretary, Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard, in the Rivard affair.

Mr. Rouleau resigned as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, saying in the Commons that he had made representations in connection with an application for bail for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, whose extradition from Canada is being sought by the United States government.

Rivard is wanted by U.S. authorities on narcotics smuggling charges.

Mr. Pearson's memo noted that Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary North, had asked him in the Commons on Nov. 24 as to when the prime minister first heard of the allegations aginst Denis.

The memo said his answer at that time to Mr. Harkness "should be clarified." He had first learned of the content of the RCMP reports shortly before the justice department estimates came up for debate in the Commons on Nov. 23.

However, Mr. Favreau had informed him on Sept. 2 of the allegations, the denial and that the RCMP were investigating.

Earlier, Mr. Lamontagne testified that he rejected immediately $20,000 offered him by Denis.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was slightly surprised but not shocked at the offer. He interpreted it as an offer not to oppose bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government in the case. The U.S. wants Rivard extradited to face narcotics smuggling charges under an indictment which links his name with the Mafia international crime syndicate.

As the hearing went into its second day, there were these developments:

RULES OUT EFFORTS

1. Chief Justice Dorion ruled against efforts to find out source of information placed on the Commons record by Erik Nielsen, MP for Yukon, which sparked the appointment of the judicial inquiry.

2. The judge also ruled that counsel for the four opposition political parties — Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats,

New Soviet Premier Will Go to London

KOSYGIN
... to see Wilson

LONDON (UPI) — Alexei Kosygin, the new Soviet premier, will travel to London "in the new year" for talks with Britain's Labor government, Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced today.

The visit was expected to be Kosygin's first abroad since he took over from ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev Oct. 15 — the same day Wilson's Labor party was elected to power.

Wilson said Kosygin also was "anxious" for him to go to Moscow.

The Prime Minister, who talked with President Johnson in Washington last week in his first trip abroad since his election, also announced new journeys in his stated campaign to become a welder of western and world unity.

After his scheduled meeting with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard in Bonn Jan. 22, he said, he would be making trips to Paris and Rome for talks with government leaders there.

Alberta Storm Leaves 5 Dead, Moves to Sask.

By The Canadian Press

One of the worst prairie blizzards in history continued to batter parts of southern Saskatchewan today after dealing a savage blow to Alberta.

At least five deaths were attributed to the storm in Alberta.

One man died of exposure, three men died from apparent heart attacks and another man burned to death in a shack Tuesday near St. Albert, Alta., in a fire believed to have started near a heater.

Four men reported missing at midnight Monday on a 22-mile car trip to Alliance in central Alberta turned up safely at a farm house.

The storm centred today at Swift Current in southern Saskatchewan where temperatures dipped to 30 below and winds hit 70 miles an hour.

Alberta reported similar conditions Tuesday but the winds eased today. Temperatures remained far below zero.

Schools closed, travel was cut to essentials and the public was warned to stay home.

A Calgary hospital official warned residents not to walk more than four blocks in the storm.

Clem Trimming, 80, of the Red Deer district was found dead in his shack after his wood-burning stove went out. Police said the inside temperature matched the outside reading—30 below.

Edmonton postmen were told not to complete their afternoon deliveries Tuesday and a Calgary milk company official said some of his drivers were still trying to complete their calls at midnight.

Some areas in Southern Alberta reported electrical failures Tuesday and as the brunt of the storm struck Saskatchewan, the southwestern part of the province was plunged into darkness when two power lines touched, causing a short circuit.

Weather officials said the combination of strong wind and extremely cold temperatures made the blizzard one of the worst in history. A wind chill of 105 degrees below zero was reported at Moose Jaw by RCAF weather officials.

MOTHERS, CHILDREN ANSWER PLEA

Donations Ease Agony of Parents

By MARGE GILROY

A mother of seven, a mother of four, and a grandmother of six are among the recent contributors who have helped to boost the "Help The Hungry Child" fund past last year's total at this time.

Total today is $6,658.71.

In a sense these contributors represent all mothers who realize the agony parents in other countries must feel when they are not able to place a bowl of food on the table.

But it is not only a mother who can respond to the call of a hungry child. It is sometimes another child.

Recently when a four-year-old boy saw another boy on television crying because he was hungry, he took the jar of pennies he had been saving for a toy tractor and asked his mother to give them to the hungry boy.

Another $1.55 came from Pam Wills and Susan Trythall who used the potato masher to grind up flower petals to make perfume, which they sold in the neighborhood.

Storm Threatens Heavy Snow Here

Cold Wave Increases Flood Fear

FAIRBANKS (AP) — Alaska remained in the grip Tuesday of a massive cold wave that sent temperatures to 60 degrees below zero, endangered two areas with flooding from ice-choked rivers and froze the usually moderate Alaska Panhandle.

Fort Yukon and the Cooper River Valley recorded 60-below temperatures Monday night, as did Dawson in the Yukon Territory.

On the Kenai Peninsula, the Kenai River was jammed with ice for seven miles from below Soldotna to the town of Kenai. Six families were evacuated during the weekend.

12 Die In U.K. Fog Accidents

LONDON (Reuters) — At least 12 persons were reported dead in Britain today after a wave of automobile accidents Tuesday night brought on by dense freezing fog and icy roads.

A blanket of fog spread to nearly all parts of the country and plummeting temperatures threatened to turn flood-stricken areas of Wales and the West of England into icebound islands.

Early today, police closed off the M-1 motorway linking London and Birmingham after an accordion pile-up of 70 cars and trucks in which one man was killed.

On the M-6 motorway two persons were killed and nine were injured when 20 vehicles collided in fog and ice.

Big Snowstorm Hits North U.S.

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A mammoth snowstorm packing deadly winds churned through the northern United States today, driving temperatures far below zero in some areas and closing schools and roads.

Coldest Ever For December

By PETE LOUDON

A freezing north wind brought snow and record-shattering temperatures to Greater Victoria Tuesday night . . . and there's more snow threatening.

It was the coldest night ever recorded in December.

And the mercury nudged the all-time low of 6.4 degrees registered Jan. 13, 1950.

Our overnight low: 6.9 degrees.

The weather stunned Victoria and before the community was fully recovered, weatherman Bill Mackie said:

"The next weather system heading south from Alaska could bring an appreciable amount of snow by tomorrow—and I do mean snow."

He said it will be clear tonight with the odd cloud and the occasional snow flurry, but the potential for early Thursday is snow. Low tonight 15 (a bit higher), Thursday 25.

It was snowing at Sooke before noon.

The 40-mile north wind that hit Victoria late Tuesday left the city gasping.

- Hundreds of residents found water pipes frozen today.
- Hundreds of cars were weather-bound.
- Power was disrupted in some areas, ferries were rocked, a radio station was put off the air, small boats were harbor-locked.

Other Stories, Pictures On Pages 13, 14

Police and fire departments and city and district road crews worked overtime with weather problems and warnings went out against fire and collision dangers. But through it all, the loss in accidents was small.

There was only three-tenths of an inch of snow but it made roads glassy.

Mrs. Irene Evans, 2715 Maddison, and her son Robert went to hospital after their car shot over a 20-foot embankment on Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum.

There were tie-ups at most main intersections as drivers slid and skidded homeward from work. All police departments today reported abandoned cars. There were only about a dozen collisions reported however.

Chimney fires were numerous, there were two house fires in Central Saanich this morning and a small fire today at B.C. Forest Products in Victoria.

But the biggest trouble and the biggest fire threat came from frozen pipes and domestic attempts to thaw them.

Three city plumbers said they had a total of 72 calls early today.

"As fast as we thaw them, they're freezing again," said Shade Brothers.

PC Senator Bids to Block Endorsation of Leaf Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—A fresh flood of flag talk welled up in Parliament Tuesday, highlighted by a move in the Senate to kill off the yet-unborn red maple leaf flag.

In the Commons another hassle developed over a special committee's report recommending that the Union Jack be designated as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and membership in the Commonwealth.

Both Houses were headed for more of the same today.

Tuesday's events were an anti-climax, however, to Monday night's roaring wind-up of the Commons main flag debate in which a closure-imposed vote adopted the maple leaf flag, 163 to 78, after 33 days of bitter argument.

The chosen design is a single red leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

But it requires Senate endorsation and a proclamation by the Queen before it can fly over the nation.

A bid to deny that endorsation was made by Senator Grattan O'Leary of Ottawa who moved that the government suspend action on the maple leaf

MEMBER PUTS PUNCH INTO FLAG ARGUMENT

OTTAWA (UPI)—A Liberal MP and a Conservative MP tangled briefly in the corridor outside the Commons following Tuesday morning's hectic windup to the national flag debate, it was disclosed today.

Eye-witnesses said at least one punch was thrown before the pair were separated by onlookers. The two MPs were identified as James Byrne (L—Kootenay-East) and A. D. Alkenbrack (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox).

Both men played down the clash, although neither denied it.

HEALTH BOARD

Storm Brews Over Money

By AB KENT

First squall in a larger storm looming over Metro Health was felt at a board meeting Tuesday when Victoria balked at technicalities involving new program expenditures.

The conflict broke when Victoria delegate Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson objected to a $300 item that will pay expenses for a Vancouver-based audiologist who will come here to help pre-school hard of hearing youngsters.

"I have strict instructions from my council not to approve any money expenditure not provided for in the budget until we get a new agreement," Ald Wilson said.

Trouble continued with discussion of the next item on the agenda, the appointment of a pediatrician, for which an interview had been scheduled today.

Again, Mrs. Wilson objected to the engagement until city council had a chance to approve the salary range.

NO LEGAL STATUS

Mrs. Wilson was accompanied at the meeting by city manager Dennis Young; who said the health board really had no legal status to make such decisions and it was up to the councils to approve cost items.

At one point the air became frosty as Mr. Young expressed a difference of opinion with Metro Health senior officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Board chairman Reeve R. Gordon Lee, of Central Saanich, cut in to remind Mr. Young he was present as an observer only, and that his remarks must be directed through the chairman.

Mr. Young apologized and said he hadn't suggested Dr. Whitbread had acted improperly.

CLARIFICATION

Reeve Lee remarked at the end of the meeting that as a result of it "we may obtain certain clarification of problems and cost administration. The meeting has not been entirely protractive without some good coming of it."

"If we had a proper basis we wouldn't have these bothers," Ald. Wilson said.

The chairman said the matter would be reviewed before the next meeting.

The city wants Metro Health to be set up on properly constituted lines permitting each area represented to control cost items.

Mr. Young said the city balked Tuesday to try to force realization that there is no proper constitution.

He had commented that expenditure of money as proposed from an annual bequest would not likely be approved by city council if the service was to be provided in the entire Metro Health area.

This referred to the audiologist, which Dr. Whitbread wants to start in January or February as part of program being initiated throughout B.C.

JANUARY START

It was agreed to start the service in January and include the cost in the 1965 budget.

Mr. Young said the city's concern was for use of staff paid by Victoria without having control over their use by the health service.

Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, together with the provincial government, pay most of Metro Health costs.

Mrs. Wilson said the city would vote against the salary range for a pediatrician if it were not included in the 1965 budget. Reeve Lee said this would circumscribe the medical health officers.

"Yes it would," Mrs. Wilson said.

Mr. Lee wondered whether it was not enough that the city had a member on the board when the salary scale was approved by it in September.

"No," Mrs. Wilson said. "It's the three municipalities that have to approve."

"What are we here for if not to send back information from the board? Is it up to the chairman?" asked school district 63 representative Mrs. J. M. Thomas.

"I simply cannot be expected to send back all the details we deal with here," Mrs. Wilson replied.

ADVISORY BODY

"The board is no more than an advisory body without legal constitution," Mr. Young said.

"It is only an agreement—unsigned—between the municipalities and the provincial government and its employees are employed by either the city or the board.

"When employee salaries change . . . the city should have the opportunity to say yea or nay.

"A properly constituted Metro Board of Health could be established. Meanwhile, we go through these rather embarrassing procedures."

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, school district 61 chairman, said Oak Bay, the city and Esquimalt should be informed of the proposed salary range and meanwhile the interview be postponed. The board agreed.

. . . SNOWSTORM

gerous unless a person is thoroughly prepared."

A van carrying nine prisoners from the county jail in Seattle, Wash., to a reformatory tipped over on a snowy highway, but officials took no chances — a tow truck righted the vehicle with the prisoners still inside.

Schools were closed in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Washington states.

Visibility was cut to zero in blowing snow in some areas.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for Montana, Wyoming and North and South Dakota.

DUST BLOWS

Huge clouds of dust floated over the plains of Kansas and Colorado.

Residents in Bear Valley, southeast of Denver, reported up to four inches of dirt accumulation. The Colorado department of agriculture said the winter wheat crop was hit hard. It also reported a shortage of cattle forage.

Destructive winds accompanied by bitter cold belted Washington state, closing schools to an estimated 10,000 pupils. Snow falls ranged from one to 12 inches.

BALCER NOT INVITED TO CAUCUS

OTTAWA (CP)—Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Conservative party, said today he and other Quebec Conservative MPs received no invitations to a special party caucus Tuesday to discuss further strategy on the flag.

"I didn't know about the caucus until after it was over and it is a fact that we did not have any invitations," Mr. Balcer said. "That's all we can say, at the moment."

Eric Winkler, party whip, said that notices of the caucus meeting went to the offices of all Conservative MPs without exception and that his office early today had confirmed receipt of the notices.

Canadian Beauty Unpopular in U.K.

MARY LOU
. . . fuss over Queen

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Mary Lou Farrell of St. John's, Miss Dominion of Canada for 1964, says she was the most unpopular contestant in the Miss World contest in London because of controversy over the Queen's visit to Canada.

Miss Farrell said she was shunned by the press and photographers excluded her from pictures.

"They would pick out so many girls to pose," she said.

"When I told them I was Miss Canada, they would take me out and put another girl in."

She said one reporter told her he was leaving her out because "you didn't want our Queen in your country."

Miss Farrell was eliminated in the first round of the contest in London. She will be a participant in the Miss United Nations contest to be held in Spain in May and the Miss International contest in June.

Gov't. Non-Committal On UBCM Requests

The Union of B.C. Municipalities Tuesday made a strong pitch for higher provincial grants in lieu of taxes and extension of grants to university buildings.

But UBCM president Reeve Peter Jenewein of Maple Ridge said the provincial cabinet was non-committal.

The request was among eight made by the UBCM executive at its annual meeting with government ministers.

It said the present 15-mill payment on a severely restricted number of provincial holdings in various municipalities—which produces $500,000 in civic revenues including slightly more than $90,000 to Victoria—was unrealistic.

The brief urged the government to increase the 15-mill grants—which would significantly help Victoria—or at least reduce the number of exempt properties such as universities—which would help Oak Bay and Saanich.

"A university, unlike public school buildings, served the province as a whole and not just the municipality in which by chance it is situated," the brief pointed out.

The civic leaders also pointed out that federal grants in lieu of property taxes on its holdings are more generous than those of the province.

Other points raised by the brief—all of them resolutions adopted at the annual UBCM convention in September — sought:

A procedure permitting the UBCM executive to discuss draft legislation affecting municipalities before it is brought to the legislature; legislation permitting commercial sports and entertainment on Sunday afternoons on a local option basis; establishment of an ambulance service by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service;

Elimination of the present tax exemption for Pacific Great Eastern railway trackage; establishment of a research staff on air pollution and tighter control of potential offendors; establishment of provincial chronic hospitals; and exemption of municipal purchases from the provincial sales tax.

Green Belt Resolution Supported

Ae resolution designed fo prevent Saanich Peninsula becoming one huge subdivision was passed unanimously Monday at a public meeting of the local branch of the Community Planning Association.

The resolution urges provincial and municipal governments to halt the conversion of farm, recreational and parkland to other uses.

It also asks removal of school taxes from farmland. The farmer should be taxed only on his house and land until another base for education tax is found.

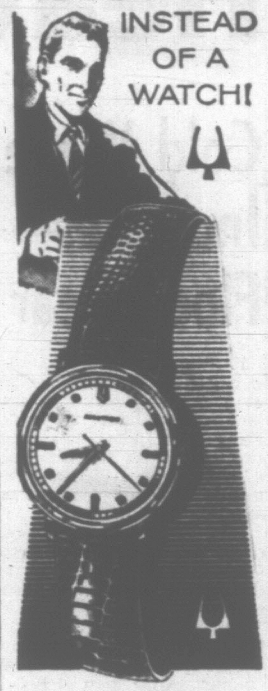

Moderator Hugh Stephen said the district has 163,000 residents on 81,000 acres. The population is expected to increase to 250,000 by 1981.

District agriculturalist Alan Littler said the only real solution is to make farming so attractive people will stay on the land.

RESISTS WINTER

The cecropia silkworm moth protects itself against winter cold by spinning a vacuum bottle-type cocoon with two walls and an air space for insulation.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1964—PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

Once in New York's Central Park zoo, I watched a gorilla take a large, succulent head of lettuce and deal with it after the dainty fashion of his tribe.

It was plain immediately that his black-avised majesty from the rain forests of Africa had no use for the scuffed and wilted outer leaves.

These he peeled off delicately with one hand or paw, clutching the lettuce head in a hind hand or paw, until he had prepared for himself a crisp, slug-free and unflawed tidbit.

The gorilla mashed this into a salad, which he devoured delicately but with obvious relish.

His repast concluded, the noble beast got up and scratched, trampling the while on the discarded lettuce leaves.

And, this, bus-users all, seems to me remarkably like what's happening to the power complex we once knew as the B.C. Electric, of which the urban transit system is a scuffed and wilted, but integral part.

★ ★ ★

Studying those atrocious fare raises handed down by B.C. Public Utilities Commission, I think we can assume that the initial phase in the jettisoning by the provincial government of its unprofitable city bus services is almost complete.

For the sake of parents of bus-dependent school children and our pensioners, we can only hope the pill is to be cased in a sugar coating of reduced fares for the young and the old.

It will surprise me not at all if some such concession isn't offered before the PUC ruling becomes effective.

("There, you see? That didn't taste so bad after all!")

★ ★ ★

In any case, we may as well accept the fact that another hole will soon be added to the pockets Social Credit purports to keep stuffing for us with goodies.

But we don't have to like this latest government ploy, which smacks to me of a cynicism we have grown rather too familiar with in these years of the five per cent sales tax and blacktop where it shows.

In fairness to our present government, not all that it acquired when it undertook to provincialize the B.C. Electric was buckshee. Public transit had for long been a recognized loss leader.

The cynicism lies in government's refusal to continue transit honestly at a loss. These fare raises serve no truly useful purpose.

They will not boost the transit operation out of the red. Here in Victoria, I see it as unlikely that they will improve maintenance or tighten schedules which keep patrons on at least one suburban line waiting an hour between buses.

What those long-fanged fares just might do, however, is provide an inducement which would make public transport, the discarded leaves of the hydro lettuce, more palatable to the municipalities that must eventually take it over.

★ ★ ★

Social Credit, we are assured by its supporters, is to be with us for a sum of years measured only by each speaker's optimism.

For myself, I believe Mr. Bennett will retain the premier's chair at least until our provincial Liberals have healed the wounds of wartime coalition.

But in the end (and for our children's sake, may it not be too long coming!) I think this cynical giving with one hand, and snatching from us with the other a sum larger than the "gift," will lay its practitioners low.

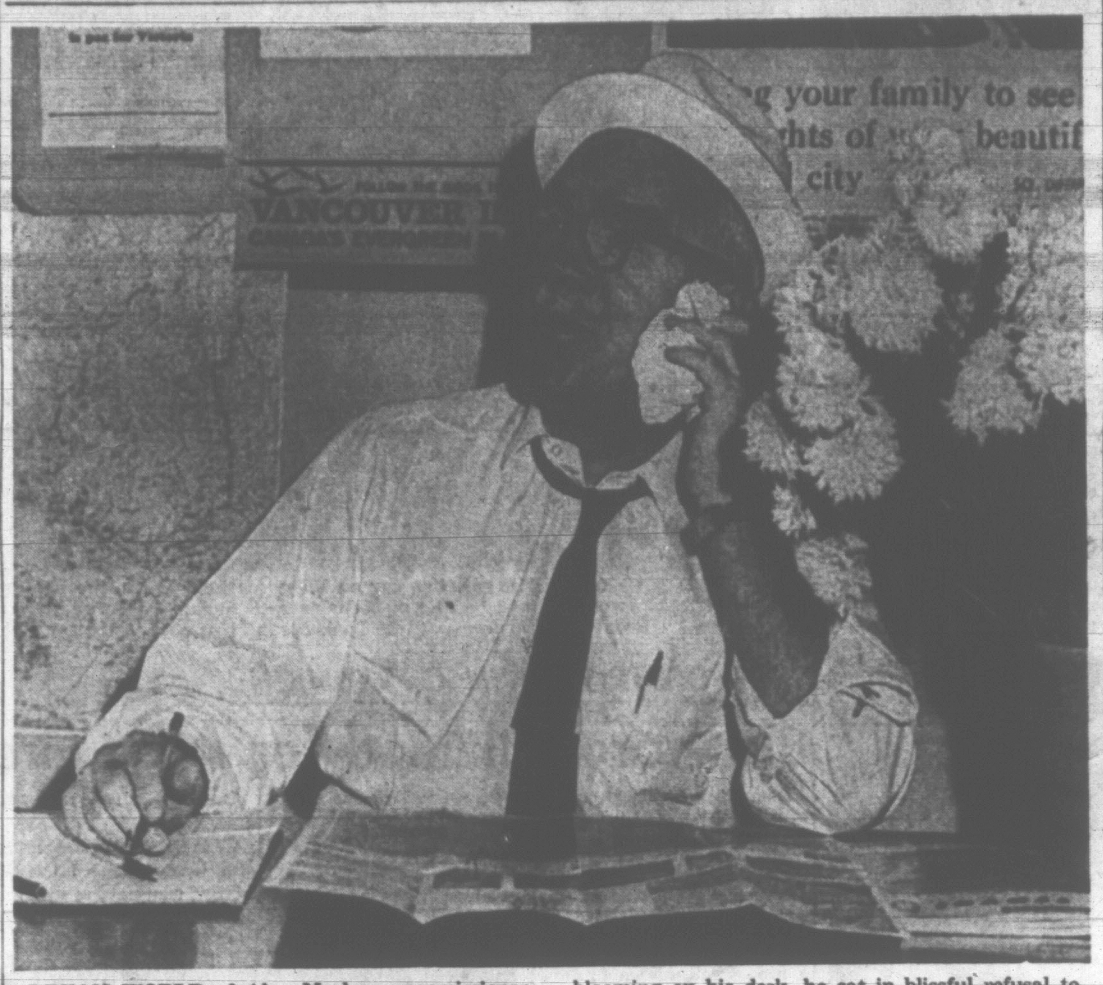

Meanwhile, in this remarkable government's attempt to out-socialize the Socialists, whose lettuce will the paw next reach for?

Mail Delivery Takes Holiday

There will be no mail delivery or letter-box collections Christmas and New Year's Day.

Letter-box collections will be made Boxing Day only, but there will be no letter carrier service.

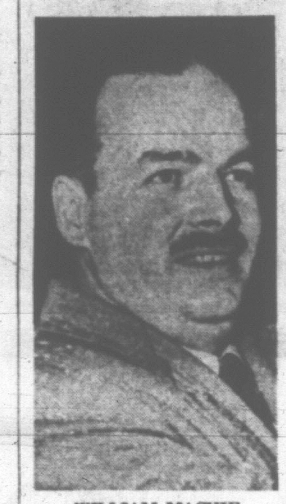

The Post Office's box lobby will be closed Dec. 25 and Jan. 1, but will be open Dec. 26.

DREAM WORLD of Alan Maclean, commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, was undisturbed today by wind, snow and low temperature. In straw hat and shirt sleeves, with a bouquet blooming on his desk, he sat in blissful refusal to accept weather reports, writing to tourists and coaxing them to come here for the "mild season". It takes a dedicated man . . . (Robin Clarke photo.)

(COLD) MOMENTS TO REMEMBER

Mackie Victim of Own Prediction

WILLIAM MACKIE
. . . poetic justice

Weatherman Bill Mackie was late for work today.

His car was a victim of the weather.

Friends said it was poetic justice.

Mr. Mackie said, "It was supposed to be a new battery, but . . ."

★ ★ ★

Most important part of Centennial Square carpark construction job was shut down by icy weather today.

Machinery of Sedco Drilling Company was frozen, idling a two-month job of drilling 74 feet to bedrock that will support reinforced concrete caissons for the structure on Fisgard Street.

★ ★ ★

There was also a certain satisfaction for passersby who noticed a car abandoned in Saanich when it ran into cold weather problems.

Not only was it abandoned, but some later car lurched into it.

Normally, we'd feel sorrier, but this car was wearing Manitoba plates. And today we are up to our ears in knowing Prairie drivers who tell us how we should drive, how to keep our houses warm, how to thaw our pipes.

Then they say, "Cold, this isn't cold. Why I can remember, back in Saskabush, etc., etc., etc.

★ ★ ★

Residents of various waterfront areas phoned in to say the sea was steaming this morning. And it was. For once the air was colder than the water, and even in summer, that's cold.

B.C. Ferries all were operating today but there was some seasick passengers reported Tuesday night.

Tuesday, winds gusting up to 70 miles an hour disrupted some schedules. The Crofton-Vesuvius ferry couldn't make her morning trip.

The Queen of The Islands was forced to bring Gulf Islands traffic here for transshipment to the mainland on the larger Queen vessels. Two windows were broken aboard.

Prairie dwellers visiting here are chortling over Victoria's much-advertised "mild season."

"Brrrrr it's colder than when we left Regina," said Victor Stanshell, one of some 20 Prairie guests at Hotel Douglas. "I suppose you'll say we brought it with us."

"It's not what we expected but we feel right at home," chuckled William Crawford, also from Regina.

Ken King, manager of the hotel, says 15 more Prairie visitors are expected this week.

"I've heard no complaints about the weather," he said. "They just joke about it."

BONNER ON HIGHWAY POLICE

Patrols Costly, Confusing

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a provincial highway patrol to replace present RCMP traffic squads would cost more, be less efficient and confuse the public.

The suggestion of a provincial patrol was raised by Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday. He has raised it before and Mr. Bonner has shot it down before.

Taking time for a comprehensive reply to the suggestion, Mr. Bonner emphasized he was not aware of any discussions going on that might lead to a provincial highway patrol.

Although it is true that some states in the U.S. maintain highway patrols, he said it has never been considered suitable for B.C. — apart from a "courtesy patrol to assist traffic on certain bridges" that was operated by the defunct toll authority.

Mr. Bonner said the arrangement with the RCMP for patrolling B.C. highways "is both efficient and economical to this province.

"First, it is more efficient because these patrols not only look after traffic but also are available to the detachments for general police duties.

"Second, it is more economic from the province's point of view because the cost is shared with the federal government on a 60-40 basis which is a financial arrangement that can't be matched by a B.C. highway patrol.

"From the standpoint of the public too, it would be better to avoid the confusion that would arise from having two police forces in operation in the province.

Freeze Destroys Late Farm Crops

Farmers Battle Wind To Salvage Plants

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The late vegetable crop in Saanich was practically wiped out overnight by freezing temperatures and penetrating winds.

Some damage was also caused to ornamental greenhouse plants and rooted vegetables kept in storage for sale during the late winter months.

William Mattick, Cordova Bay grower, said freezing temperatures ruined between 40 and 50 tons of turnips in the ground.

Cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and cabbages were also hard hit by the frost, he said.

"It was the wind which caused the real damage," he said. "It enabled the cold to penetrate deep into the ground."

The growing season for late winter crops, he said, generally ends around Jan. 7.

Geoff Vantreight, Gordon Head grower, reported losing several acres of cabbages and cauliflower.

"Luckily most of the crop was out of the ground," he said.

He was able to keep temperatures up in his extensive greenhouse operations and save his ornamental flowers from frost damage.

'TOUCH AND GO'

"But it was touch and go," he said. "We were just able to maintain sufficient heat. I understand some operators were unable to do so."

Leslie Smith, Patricia Bay highway greenhouse nurseryman, reported slight damage to his poinsettas grown for the Christmas trade. But other nurserymen in North Saanich with less extensive heating systems are believed to have suffered considerable losses.

Most of the nurserymen and farmers with crops in storage were up all night "keeping the fires burning" in their greenhouses or storage sheds.

Tom Michell, Island View Road farmer, said he had to keep vigil in his storage shed where tons of potatoes are in storage.

"I'm afraid farmers who didn't have adequate heating systems in their storage sheds are out," he said. "It was a battle to keep the temperature up."

FEAR TONIGHT

But what most farmers and nurserymen are more concerned today about is the possibility of lower temperatures tonight.

"If the temperature drops a few more degrees tonight I don't know how we will be able to maintain adequate heat in our greenhouses, especially if there is wind," said one grower.

Farmers also report extensive damage to water pipe lines.

Council Asked To 'Ground' High-Rise

The proposed 12-storey apartment block south of the White House on Beach Drive may never get off the ground.

Oak Bay zoning and planning committee Tuesday night recommended against the by-law permitting relaxation of setback allowances.

It also recommended the building be restricted to a maximum of 60 feet, and the setback allowances in front should be 18 inches for each foot in height, one foot for each foot in height at the sides, and a minimum of 125 feet at the rear.

Owner of the property, Gordon Lovitt, said such restrictions were ridiculous, and he referred to the recommendations as a "discriminating by-law pertaining to Lovitt."

The proposed building would have produced $24,000 a year in revenue for the municipality: Now, Mr. Lovitt said he is doubtful if the land is even saleable with such restrictions.

"They must want me to donate it to them," said the builder.

With such restrictions they might as well pass a bylaw saying no more apartments in Oak Bay, said Mr. Lovitt.

Deputy Checks Dismissal Of Jail Guard

Allegation that a guard at the Wilkinson Road Provincial Jail was fired for suggesting improvements will be checked by deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy.

He said he would ask provincial director of corrections, Rocksborough Smith, for a report of his investigation into the claim made by R. E. Douglass, 2633 Cadboro Bay Road.

Mr. Douglass claimed he was fired Friday, one hour after submitting a report passing on 10 improvements suggested by prisoners. He was hired as a temporary guard six weeks earlier.

Mr. Smith said he would look into the matter although hiring and firing of temporary officers did not normally come before him.

'BALDERDASH'

"Nobody would be released from service for giving good advice—that's just balderdash," he said.

"Any of our officers—whether temporary or permanent—who come forward with good suggestions are not going to be let out."

"These are the kind of people we want."

Mr. Douglass, who is 40 and father of four children, said his recommendations included:

A plea for more work or activities to reduce prisoners' idle time; more sports, concerts, movies and television time; a reading room for correspondence students; permission for prisoners to engage in hobbies or have musical instruments; an inmates' committee to provide liaison with prison officials; and a Roman Catholic padre as well as an Anglican one for Sunday services.

"The idea of the whole thing is supposed to be rehabilitation," he said.

"There are some there who keep going back but there are also a lot of 17 and 18-year-olds who I think can be helped to become useful citizens if they are put on the right track."

Eclipse On View Friday

A total eclipse of the moon should be visible throughout B.C. Friday night.

Such an eclipse occurs about once a year on the average, said a spokesman at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

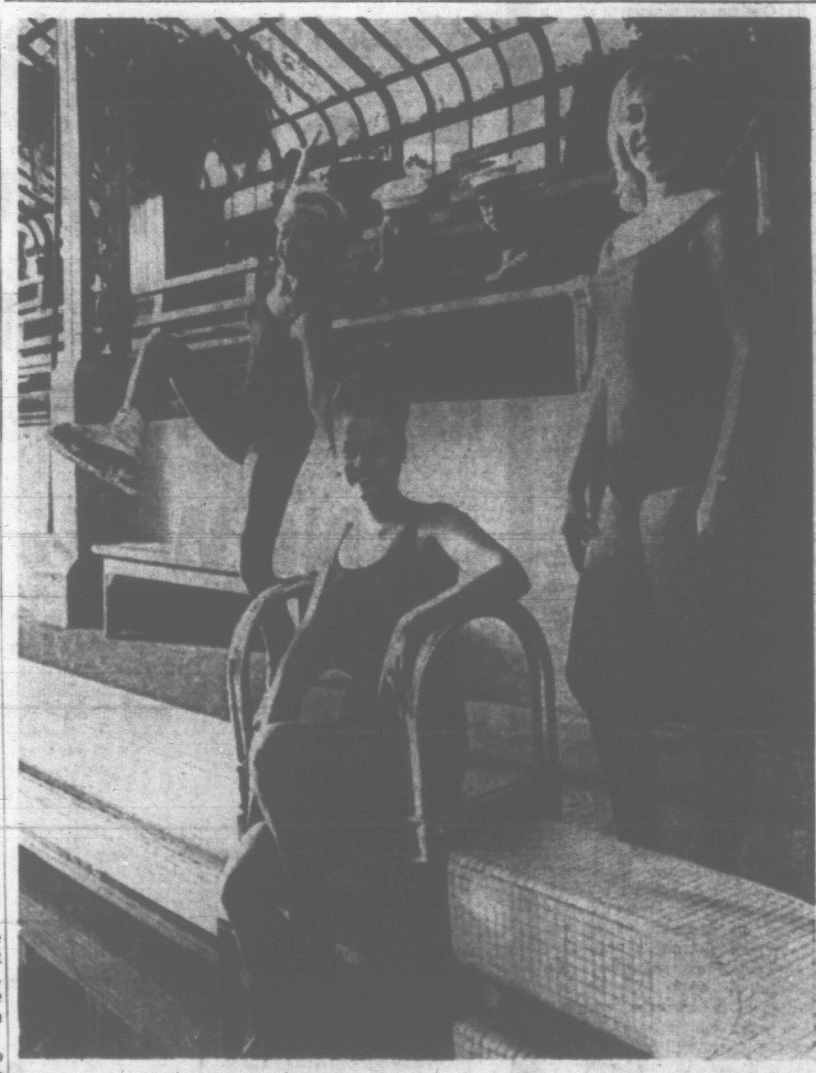

The total eclipse will be between 6:08 p.m. and 7:08 p.m. but the eclipse will begin about 5 p.m.

The eclipse is caused by the moon entering the shadow cast by the sun shining on the earth.

What the moon will look like during the eclipse will depend on atmospheric conditions.

Sometimes the moon turns to a copper-red color but if the sky is clear, the moon will be quite bright.

No special attention is being paid by the observatory because the eclipse is fairly common and not in its line of special interest, the spokesman said.

MEMO TO PROBE

Denis Denied Bribe Attempt Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in a memo read to the Dorion judicial inquiry today that he was informed Sept. 2 of allegations of bribery against Raymond Denis and that the former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay had denied them.

★ ★ ★

The memo also said that Justice Minister Favreau had informed the prime minister at the same time that the RCMP was investigating.

Mr. Pearson was quoted as saying in the memo that Mr. Denis was immediately sent on leave while the investigation was taking place and that the prime minister was content to await the result of the RCMP investigation.

The prime minister's memo was read before the inquiry by Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government.

He said it was a copy of a statement Mr. Pearson had been unable to make in the Commons before the inquiry opened because of the procedural situation.

Mr. Deschenes said the memo was attached to a letter from Mr. Pearson to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion who was appointed by the federal cabinet to inquire into allegations of bribery and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers.

HEARD STORY NOV. 23

The memo said that on the evening of Nov. 23 and the morning of Nov. 24 Mr. Pearson first learned of the details of the allegations and of the RCMP reports.

It said that as Mr. Pearson had told the Commons Nov. 24, he had not known until then of the involvement of his parliamentary secretary, Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard, in the Rivard affair.

Mr. Rouleau resigned as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary, saying in the Commons that he had made representations in connection with an application for bail for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, whose extradition from Canada is being sought by the United States government.

Rivard is wanted by U.S. authorities on narcotics smuggling charges.

Mr. Pearson's memo noted that Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary North, had asked him in the Commons on Nov. 24 as to when the prime minister first heard of the allegations aginst Denis.

The memo said his answer at that time to Mr. Harkness "should be clarified." He had first learned of the content of the RCMP reports shortly before the justice department estimates came up for debate in the Commons on Nov. 23.

However, Mr. Favreau had informed him on Sept. 2 of the allegations, the denial and that the RCMP were investigating.

Earlier, Mr. Lamontagne testified that he rejected immediately $20,000 offered him by Denis.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was slightly surprised but not shocked at the offer. He interpreted it as an offer not to oppose bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government in the case. The U.S. wants Rivard extradited to face narcotics smuggling charges under an indictment which links his name with the Mafia international crime syndicate.

As the hearing went into its second day, there were these developments:

RULES OUT EFFORTS

1. Chief Justice Dorion ruled against efforts to find out source of information placed on the Commons record by Erik Nielsen, MP for Yukon, which sparked the appointment of the judicial inquiry.

2. The judge also ruled that counsel for the four opposition political parties — Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats,

LAWYER SAYS

'Money Offered Liberals'

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified today that there was an undetermined sum of money to be paid to the Liberal party in addition to the $20,000 he says he was offered by a ministerial assistant as a bribe.

Under questioning by Francois Even, counsel for the Creditiste party, Mr. Lamontagne said Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, did not tell him (Mr. Lamontagne) the source of the $20,000.

Mr. Lamontagne testified Tuesday that Mr. Denis offered him the money July 14.

ASKS ABOUT SUM

Mr. Even asked whether, apart from the $20,000, there also was a question of another sum to be paid to a political organization.

Mr. Lamontagne replied yes, there was another sum, not determined, which was to be paid the Liberal party.

When Mr. Even asked for details of the amount, Chief Justice Dorion stepped into rule that care must be taken that the inquiry not become a political one.

Chief Justice Dorion said the exact sum was not important.

Mr. Even asked what Denis had replied when Mr. Lamontagne told him (Denis), that he was fed up with the pressure being put on him to agree to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne replied that Denis had said he would look after the matter and that he was sorry.

IN SENATE

Tory Bids To Block New Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—A fresh flood of flag talk welled up in Parliament Tuesday, highlighted by a move in the Senate to kill off the yet-unborn red maple leaf flag.

In the Commons another hassle developed over a special committee's report recommending that the Union Jack be designated as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and membership in the Commonwealth.

Both Houses were headed for more of the same today.

Tuesday's events were an anti-climax, however, to Monday night's roaring wind-up of the Commons main flag debate in which a closure-imposed vote adopted the maple leaf flag, 163 to 78, after 33 days of bitter argument.

The chosen design is a single red leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

But it requires Senate endorsation and a proclamation by the Queen before it can fly over the nation.

A bid to deny that endorsation was made by Senator Grattan O'Leary of Ottawa who moved that the government suspend action on the maple leaf

OUR 'WIND CHILL' WAS 17 BELOW

It's cold at 7 above zero.

But it's colder when there is a 13-mile-per-hour wind blowing at the same time—at least it seems that way.

And the weather bureau folks have worked out a way of finding how much colder the wind makes it feel to a shivering human.

The combination of 7 degrees temperature and a 13-mile-per-hour wind affects human endurance just as if it was 17 degrees below zero and there was no wind.

They call it a wind chill. Our wind chill Tuesday night was 17 below. In Moose Jaw the wind chill was 105 degrees below zero.

But it's a fiction, according to Victoria weatherman Bill Mackie. Because if the temperature was 35 and the wind 25 m.p.h. the wind chill temperature would be far below freezing. But water wouldn't freeze because the actual temperature wasn't below 32.

However, if you want to impress someone with our cold weather, you can say we had a wind chill of 17 below.

FAIRBANKS (AP) — Alaska remained in the grip Tuesday of a massive cold wave that sent temperatures to 60 degrees below zero, endangered two areas with flooding from ice-choked rivers and froze the usually moderate Alaska Panhandle.

Mercury Skids To 6.9 Degrees

By PETE LOUDON

A freezing north wind brought snow and record-shattering temperatures to Greater Victoria Tuesday night . . . and there's more snow threatening.

It was the coldest night ever recorded in December.

And the mercury nudged the all-time low of 6.4 degrees registered Jan. 13, 1950.

Our overnight low: 6.9 degrees.

The weather stunned Victoria and before the community was fully recovered, weatherman Bill Mackie said:

"The next weather system heading south from Alaska could bring an appreciable amount of snow by tomorrow—and I do mean snow."

He said it will be clear tonight with the odd cloud and the occasional snow flurry, but the potential for early Thursday is snow. Low tonight 15 (a bit higher), Thursday 25.

It was snowing at Sooke before noon.

The 40-mile north wind that hit Victoria late Tuesday left the city gasping.

- Hundreds of residents found water pipes frozen today.
- Hundreds of cars were weather-bound.
- Power was disrupted in some areas, ferries were rocked, a radio station was put off the air, small boats were harbor-locked.

Other Stories, Pictures On Pages 13, 14

Police and fire departments and city and district road crews worked overtime with weather problems and warnings went out against fire and collision dangers. But through it all, the loss in accidents was small.

There was only three-tenths of an inch of snow but it made roads glassy.

Mrs. Irene Evans, 2715 Maddison, and her son Robert went to hospital after their car shot over a 20-foot embankment on Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum.

There were tie-ups at most main intersections as drivers slid and skidded homeward from work. All police departments today reported abandoned cars. There were only about a dozen collisions reported however.

Chimney fires were numerous; there were two house fires in Central Saanich this morning and a small fire today at B.C. Forest Products in Victoria.

But the biggest trouble and the biggest fire threat came from frozen pipes and domestic attempts to thaw them.

Three city plumbers said they had a total of 72 calls early today.

"As fast as we thaw them, they're freezing again," said Shade Brothers.

Alberta Storm Leaves Five Dead

By The Canadian Press

One of the worst prairie blizzards in history continued to batter parts of southern Saskatchewan today after dealing a savage blow to Alberta.

At least five deaths were attributed to the storm in Alberta.

One man died of exposure, three men died from apparent heart attacks and another man burned to death in a shack Tuesday near St. Albert, Alta., in a fire believed to have started near a heater.

Four men reported missing at midnight Monday on a 22-mile car trip to Alliance in central Alberta turned up safely at a farm house.

The storm centred today at Swift Current in southern Saskatchewan where temperatures dipped to 30 below and winds hit 70 miles an hour.

Alberta reported similar conditions Tuesday but the winds eased today. Temperatures remained far below zero.

Schools closed, travel was cut to essentials and the public was warned to stay home.

A Calgary hospital official warned residents not to walk more than four blocks in the storm.

Clem Trimming, 80, of the Red Deer district was found dead in his shack after his wood-burning stove went out. Police said the inside temperature matched the outside reading—30 below.

Edmonton postmen were told not to complete their afternoon deliveries Tuesday and a Calgary milk company official said some of his drivers were still trying to complete their calls at midnight.

Some areas in Southern Alberta reported electrical failures Tuesday and as the brunt of the storm struck Saskatchewan, the southwestern part of the province was plunged into darkness when two power lines touched, causing a short circuit.

Weather officials said the combination of strong wind and extremely cold temperatures made the blizzard one of the worst in history. A wind chill of 105 degrees below zero was reported at Moose Jaw by RCAF weather officials

Donations Ease Agony

By MARGE GILROY

A mother of seven, a mother of four, and a grandmother of six are among the recent contributors who have helped to boost the "Help The Hungry Child" fund past last year's total at this time.

Total today is $6,658.71.

In a sense these contributors represent all mothers who realize the agony parents in other countries must feel when they are not able to place a bowl of food on the table.

But it is not only a mother who can respond to the call of a hungry child. It is sometimes another child.

Recently when a four-year-old boy saw another boy on television crying because he was hungry, he took the jar of pennies he had been saving for a toy tractor and asked his mother to give them to the hungry boy.

Another $1.55 came from Pam Wills and Susan Trythall who used the potato masher to grind up flower petals to make perfume, which they sold in the neighborhood.

HEALTH BOARD

Storm Brews Over Money

By AB KENT

First squall in a larger storm looming over Metro Health was felt at a board meeting Tuesday when Victoria balked at technicalities involving new program expenditures.

The conflict broke when Victoria delegate Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson objected to a $300 item that will pay expenses for a Vancouver-based audiologist who will come here to help pre-school hard of hearing youngsters.

"I have strict instructions from my council not to approve any money expenditure not provided for in the budget until we get a new agreement," Ald Wilson said.

Trouble continued with discussion of the next item on the agenda, the appointment of a pediatrician, for which an interview had been scheduled today.

Again, Mrs. Wilson objected to the engagement until city council had a chance to approve the salary range.

NO LEGAL STATUS

Mrs. Wilson was accompanied at the meeting by city manager Dennis Young, who said the health board really had no legal status to make such decisions and it was up to the councils to approve cost items.

At one point the air became frosty as Mr. Young expressed a difference of opinion with Metro Health senior officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Board chairman Reeve R. Gordon Lee, of Central Saanich, cut in to remind Mr. Young he was present as an observer only, and that his remarks must be directed through the chairman.

Mr. Young apologized and said he hadn't suggested Dr. Whitbread had acted improperly.

CLARIFICATION

Reeve Lee remarked at the end of the meeting that as a result of it "we may obtain certain clarification of problems and cost administration. The meeting has not been entirely protractive without some good coming of it."

"If we had a proper basis we wouldn't have these bothers," Ald. Wilson said.

The chairman said the matter would be reviewed before the next meeting.

The city wants Metro Health to be set up on properly constituted lines permitting each area represented to control cost items.

Mr. Young said the city balked Tuesday to try to force realization that there is no proper constitution.

He had commented that expenditure of money as proposed from an annual bequest would not likely be approved by city council if the service was to be provided in the entire Metro Health area.

This referred to the audiologist, which Dr. Whitbread wants to start in January or February as part of program being initiated throughout B.C.

JANUARY START

It was agreed to start the service in January and include the cost in the 1965 budget.

Mr. Young said the city's concern was for use of staff paid by Victoria without having control over their use by the health service.

Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, together with the provincial government, pay most of Metro Health costs.

Mrs. Wilson said the city would vote against the salary range for a pediatrician if it were not included in the 1965 budget. Reeve Lee said this would circumscribe the medical health officers.

"Yes it would," Mrs. Wilson said.

Mr. Lee wondered whether it was not enough that the city had a member on the board when the salary scale was approved by it in September.

"No," Mrs. Wilson said. "It's the three municipalities that have to approve."

"What are we here for if not to send back information from the board? Is it up to the chairman?" asked school district 63 representative Mrs. J. M. Thomas.

"I simply cannot be expected to send back all the details we deal with here," Mrs. Wilson replied.

ADVISORY BODY

"The board is no more than an advisory body without legal constitution," Mr. Young said.

"It is only an agreement—unsigned—between the municipalities and the provincial government and its employees are employed by either the city or the board.

"When employee salaries change . . . the city should have the opportunity to say yea or nay.

"A properly constituted Metro Board of Health could be established. Meanwhile, we go through these rather embarrassing procedures."

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, school district 61 chairman, said Oak Bay, the city and Esquimalt should be informed of the proposed salary range and meanwhile the interview be postponed. The board agreed.

. . . SNOWSTORM

gerous unless a person is thoroughly prepared."

A van carrying nine prisoners from the county jail in Seattle, Wash., to a reformatory tipped over on a snowy highway, but officials took no chances — a tow truck righted the vehicle with the prisoners still inside.

Schools were closed in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Washington states.

Visibility was cut to zero in blowing snow in some areas.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for Montana, Wyoming and North and South Dakota.

DUST BLOWS

Huge clouds of dust floated over the plains of Kansas and Colorado.

Residents in Bear Valley, southeast of Denver, reported up to four inches of dirt accumulation. The Colorado department of agriculture said the winter wheat crop was hit hard. It also reported a shortage of cattle forage.

Destructive winds accompanied by bitter cold belted Washington state, closing schools to an estimated 10,000 pupils. Snow falls ranged from one to 12 inches.

BALCER NOT INVITED TO CAUCUS

OTTAWA (CP) Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Conservative party, said today he and other Quebec Conservative MPs received no invitations to a special party caucus Tuesday to discuss further strategy on the flag.

"I didn't know about the caucus until after it was over and it is a fact that we did not have any invitations," Mr. Balcer said. "That's all we can say, at the moment."

Eric Winkler, party whip, said that notices of the caucus meeting went to the offices of all Conservative MPs without exception and that his office early today had confirmed receipt of the notices.

MARY LOU
. . . fuss over Queen

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Mary Lou Farrell of St. John's, Miss Dominion of Canada for 1964, says she was the most unpopular contestant in the Miss World contest in London because of controversy over the Queen's visit to Canada.

Miss Farrell said she was shunned by the press and photographers excluded her from pictures.

"They would pick out so many girls to pose," she said. "When I told them I was Miss Canada, they would take me out and put another girl in."

She said one reporter told her he was leaving her out because "you didn't want our Queen in your country."

Miss Farrell was eliminated in the first round of the contest in London. She will be a participant in the Miss United Nations contest to be held in Spain in May and the Miss International contest in June.
